FIRST PICTURES!

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 1 [Special].—All 10 passengers in an army glider, including the mayor of St. Louis, the backer of Charles A. Lindbergh's flight to Paris, the president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and other civic and aviation officials and army officers, were killed today when the glider crashed during a public demonstration.

Maj. W. B. Robertson.

An estimated 4,000 persons, gathered to watch the army's display of its troop carrying air auxiliaries, got a closeup view of the tragedy as the huge ship with its load of dignitaries plummeted from 1,000 feet to strike the ground a short distance from the runway at the north end of Lambert-St. Louis field.

Bodies Thrown Into Air.

Eyewitnesses said women screamed and fainted in the crowd as the glider went into its death plunge, while men stared at the spectacle as if hypnotized. The glider seemed to disintegrate when it struck the ground and bodies and debris were thrown 50 feet in the air.

The state highway patrol listed the dead as:

William Dee Becker, 66 years old, mayor of St. Louis since 1941 and for 24 years previously a judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

Maj. William B. Robertson, original employer of Charles A. Lindbergh on the St. Louis to Chicago night air mail run and one of the angels of the Lindbergh Paris flight, president of the Robertson Aircraft corporation, builder of the glider.

Lt. Col. Paul H. Hazelton of the army air forces.

Pvt. J. M. Davis, attached to the 1st troop carrier command.

Witnesses agreed that at least one wing of the glider collapsed before the plunge began. Some observers said both wings came off. About two hours before the fatal flight the glider had made a successful test flight carrying six passengers. It was designed to carry 15 fully equipped soldiers.

Circled Over Field.

Mayor Becker's wife had accompanied him to the field expecting to make the flight with him, friends said. As she sought to enter the glider, however, army officials informed her that regulations prohibited the carrying of women as guests in army aircraft. She watched the flight and crash from the airport administration building.

U. S. Bombers Rip Rumania; Hit Oil Fields

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 1 (AP).—An American Liberator bomber force of 175 planes flying a round trip of 2,400 miles raided the Ploesti oil fields of Rumania today in the "biggest low level mass raid in aviation history," Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the 9th United States air force, announced tonight.

Maj. Gen. Brereton.

Attacking from less than 500 feet with delayed action bombs, the four engined Liberators hurled 600,000 pounds of explosives on seven huge refineries in a sensational daylight blow to Germany's fuel sources.

Gen. Brereton announced the raid thru Brig. Gen. Victor H. Strahm, his chief of staff, and warmly praised the gallantry of the 2,000 American airmen who participated.

Great Fires Set Off.

The round trip flight was believed to be the longest of the war and the 300 tons of explosives were hurled on fields which supply one-third of Germany's oil for the Italian and Russian fronts.

Long after the first attack great fires still raged in the vital fields 35 miles north of Bucharest, the Rumanian capital.

While figures were not compiled immediately on the number of enemy planes downed, it is safe to say dozens were.

The thrust into Rumania was made even more daring by the fact that the heavy bombers employed light bomber tactics, swooping low over their objectives to machine gun them as well as to drop bombs. Long training and previous experience in attacking Italian cities in that manner produced excellent results, it was said.

Targets of Raiders.

Brig. Gen. U. G. Ent led the mission. After leaving the target area he radioed back to his base that the mission was a success.

"We bombed the refineries, storage tanks, distilleries, and cracking plants," said Gen. Strahm. "Between 150 and 200 big Liberators went over their targets and dropped high explosive bombs and wrecked installations with machine gun fire."

The big four engined bombers flew over axis held Greece and Bulgaria to smash the heart of Rumania.

"They left Ploesti's big refineries burning," Gen. Strahm announced. "Long after the bombers passed, delayed action bombs continued to explode in the region. We are satisfied Ploesti has been seriously damaged.

"The axis may have been deprived of the margin of aviation and other motor fuels it requires to continue effective resistance, certainly in Italy and very possibly in Russia."

[Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, underwent seven alerts during July when unidentified planes flew over. In the light of yesterday's raid, those machines apparently were allied reconnaissance planes gathering information for the blow at Ploesti. The attack itself caused a 4 hour and 20 minute air raid alarm in Sofia.]

First Raid by 15 Planes.

The powerful display of American aerial strength sharply contrasted with the initial United States air stab at Ploesti in June, 1942. In that attack 15 Liberators struck at the Rumanian fields. Four were forced down in Turkey in their effort to regain Egyptian bases.

The low flying Americans concentrated on the larger among the 13 refineries in the Ploesti area, the main souce of Rumania's peace time annual production of 7,000,000 gallons.

3 Bomb Blasts Slow Up Printing of Laval's Paper

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 1.—Three bombs exploding in Clermont-Ferrand have done considerable damage to the printing plant of Chief of Government Pierre Laval's newspaper Le Moniteur. One press was put out of action and production was generally handicapped. The Vichy government explained that the explosives were "pencil detonators" dropped by British airplanes and that the authors of the outrage were De Gaullist partisans.

FEARS CAPITAL FACES BOMBING LIKE HAMBURG

Women, Children, Aged Told to Leave

Tells of Order

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—German Propaganda Minister Goebbels has ordered the immediate evacuation of all citizens in Berlin, David Anderson, NBC reporter in Stockholm, said tonight in a message to the National Broadcasting company.

BY GEORGE AXELSSON.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 1.—Berlin is to be evacuated immediately. Fears that Berlin would come to the same fate as Cologne, Essen and Hamburg have led Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, in his capacity as gauleiter of Berlin, to order the immediate evacuation of the German capital.

Paul Joseph Goebbels

Leaflets dropped into Berlin mail boxes today stated that those persons not obliged to remain for military reasons should make preparations to leave at the earliest possible moment.

The evacuation order especially affects women, children and the aged. Preparations were made as long as two months ago for this pending evacuation. Food supplies, blankets and other essentials have been stored in specially designated regions.

Berlin to Pay Expense.

All travel expenses will be paid by the city of Berlin, and those included in the evacuation order will be asked to make immediate application for food ration cards and possible housing facilities, provided those concerned have no relatives to whom they can go.

Hospitals, old people's homes and children's homes are given priority in the evacuation, but Dr. Goebbels' order suggests that train facilities will be available for everybody planning to leave.

It was suggested that the recent pounding of Hamburg inspired the evacuation order. It was said that ambulance trains arriving in Berlin from Hamburg had told their own story. "The ashes and ruins of Hamburg" have been imprinted in the minds of Berlin inhabitants thru eyewitness accounts or by incoming refugees from the second largest German city.

Claim 10,000 Killed.

This, it was indicated, has led Dr. Goebbels to try to prevent the great loss of life suffered in Hamburg—10,000 persons, according to the most recent reports available here.

Fears that their city will be the next target has sent Berliners out with pick and shovel, digging trenches in parks and squares, as well as family shelters in back yard gardens, one correspondent reported. Men and women alike, mostly party members, obeyed the call of the authorities Saturday to report for this task.

Wounded Give Warning.

As one correspondent points out: It is no longer possible to conceal the shattering effects of the bombing war now that "trainloads of homeless and wounded are arriving daily in Berlin from the west."

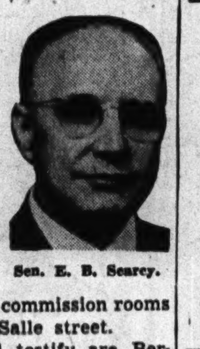
The tales that these evacuees tell are of unparalleled horror. They have drawn the picture of Hamburg being today little more than a blackened skeleton with fires still smouldering. City authorities estimate that more than 400,000 of the town's 1,500,000 have fled, and mass evacuation continues.

Many Hamburg evacuees could find no lodging, so they slept in the fields or along roadsides. By nightfall on Saturday 1,500 Germans stood at the Danish frontier pleading to be let in. But they were refused.

FOR ORDER, NOT CHAOS

Oil Executives Will Testify at Gas Ration Quiz Today

Three Chicago representatives of the oil industry will appear as witnesses today before the Illinois joint legislative commission investigating the necessity of a threatened reduction in supplies of gasoline for midwestern motorists. The meeting will begin at 10 a. m. in the Illinois commerce commission rooms at 160 North La Salle street.



Sen. E. B. Searcy.

Those who will testify are Bernard Majewski, president of the Deep Rock Oil company and chairman of the marketing group of district 2 of the petroleum industry committee; Bradley Provis, president of the Gasoline Retailers association of Chicago, and George C. Peterson of the George C. Peterson gasoline distributors.

Summoned by Butler.

The witnesses were summoned by State Sen. Walker Butler [R., Chicago] at the request of State Sen. Earle Benjamin Searcy [R., Springfield], chairman of the commission.

The threats to reduce the midwest's supply of gasoline were made last week in Washington, by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, petroleum administrator. Ickes warned of an "equalization program," which is interpreted as a plan to raise "A" coupon values in eastern states at the expense of the middle west.

Expert Opinion Sought.

Sen. Butler said the witnesses will be asked what they know about present stocks of crude oil and whether in their opinion the opening of the new oil pipe line to the east will make a difference in available supplies here. He said they also will be asked how much paper work they must do in filling out ration forms.

Up to last night Ickes had not replied to Sen. Searcy's telegraphed request that the commission be permitted to meet with him Thursday when he comes to Chicago to appear before a congressional rationing committe headed by Rep. Clarence Brown [R., O.]. Rep. Brown has said that further reductions in gasoline rations in Ohio are not necessary.

Want Questions Answered.

The Illinois legislative commission would like the privilege of asking Ickes some questions about the federal government's attitude toward gasoline rationing and gasoline production, Searcy said. On the Illinois commission in addition to Senators Searcy and Butler are Sen. Nicholas Hubbard [D., Mount Pulaski], and Representatives Lyle Prescott [R., Dixon], Lottie Holman O'Neill [R., Downers Grove], and J. L. Wellinghoff [D., Belleville].

The commissioner will attempt to discover whether Ickes plans to withdraw an additional 4,200,000 barrels of gasoline a day from the midwest for the east; the extent of the black market, and why the midwest motorist should be compelled to share the plight of drivers in the complaining east.

Tax Receipts Fall

A decrease of approximately $760,000 in receipts from wheel taxes for the first seven months of 1943 as against the same period last year was reported by City Collector Louis Rixmann. Receipts from Jan. 1 to July 31 totaled $4,728,888.20, compared with $5,489,573.20 in 1942. City licenses have been issued for 455,209 passenger automobiles, compared with 545,777 in the year 1942.

LIN SEN, PRESIDENT OF CHINA, DIES; PICK CHIANG AS SUCCESSOR

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 2 [Monday]—(AP).—Lin Sen, 79 years old, president of China, died yesterday. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was immediately designated acting president by the Kuomintang's central executive committee, China's highest executive body. Lin Sen, who had been ill for some months, had been president since 1932.

Lin Sen.

Born at Foochow, Fukien province, in 1864, Lin Sen received his early education in the United States. While living in California for many years, Lin acquired thoro familiarity with American psychology and the American way of doing things and applied these methods in his administration.

Returning to China from California shortly after the revolution in 1911, he was elected a senator and served from 1912 to 1923 between long visits to the United States. Lin Sen became president in 1932, succeeding Chiang Kai-Shek, who resigned as head of the government to devote his full attention to preparation for the war with Japan.

YANKS SWEEP THRU NEAR ANCHOR OF GERMAN LINE

Advance 9 Miles; British Close In on Catania.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 1 (AP).—American troops sweeping thru German defenses in northern Sicily were reported tonight to have captured nine key towns, leading to the belief that they probably have decisively turned the German flank on the north coast.

In a swift advance of approximately nine miles made two days ago and only now disclosed, the Americans advanced to within two miles of San Stefano, northern coastal anchor of the axis Mount Etna line.

Towns Taken by Yanks.

As British forces battered closer to Catania, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr.'s 7th army occupied Castel di Tusa, on the Tyrrhenian sea, and Motta, Pettineo, and Castel di Lucio inland. Earlier it was announced the Americans had taken San Mauro, Castelverde, Sperlinga, and three unidentified towns.

In the struggle for Castel di Tusa, the doughboys pushed thru a rain of German 88 mm. shells described as one of the fiercest of the campaign. During the fighting the civilian population at Castel di Tusa sought shelter in a tunnel.

The German withdrawal, it was announced, came when the Americans consolidated their position at Castel di Tusa and thrust east along the interior front.

Extend Catania Bridgeheads.

American troops surging ahead from Nicosia were increasingly threatening the vital junction town of Troina, 12 miles away, advancing at a pace better than forecast despite the tortuous mountainous country and "stiffening resistance."

Bridgeheads at Catania, eastern hinge of the Mount Etna line, were "further extended and established," headquarters said, after the British had crossed a river to capture a town.

The official war bulletin was silent on the progress of the Canadian 1st division fighting on the western flank of the Catania defense ring.

In heavy support of ground actions, allied fighter bombers battered the Messina bridgehead, sank a merchant vessel off San Agata on the north coast of Sicily, and hit the port of Milazzo, west of Messina, in a blow at enemy reënforcement attempts.

Raiders' Other Targets.

The axis base of Biancavilla also was heavily attacked and the highway town of Adrano, 18 miles northwest of Catania, was raided.

Planes from Malta pounded shipping and seaplane bases on the western coast of Greece and bombers from the middle east raided fuel depots at Reggio Calabria on the Italian mainland opposite Messina.

No allied planes were lost.

3 Million Italians Flee Cities in Fear of Bombs.

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 1 (AP).—The allied radio warning that heavy bombing of Italy would be resumed because of Premier Pietro Badoglio's temporizing attitude was reported today to have driven hundreds of thousands of unhappy Italians into the country in search of safety.

Reports from the Swiss-Italian frontier said 3,000,000 persons abandoned their city homes today in the quest for refuge.

The military government tightened its measures, including a press censorship as severe as that of Mussolini, and momentarily appeared to be holding undecided Italians in check.

But there were numerous signs of seething unrest. A Swiss telegraphic agency dispatch from Chiasso said the people, realizing the war continued and that the future was somber, were "profoundly troubled."

Swiss Army Warned.

Gen. Henri Guisan, commander of the Swiss army, warned his soldiers in an order of the day that "the battle threatens to reflame close to our territory. From day to day we may be compelled to increase measures severely."

Altho all political activity was forbidden by Badoglio's government, five anti-Fascist parties in northern Italy, including Communists and Socialists, have accused Badoglio and even the king of being "bound by fascism."

The Italian press henceforth will appear as single sheets four times weekly. A Rome dispatch said space was reduced for foreign news. All references to liberty, peace, and freedom were chiseled out of the pages.

Get 24 Hours More.

LONDON, Aug. 1 (AP).—Allied radio stations in Algiers and England continued today to broadcast the warning of Gen. Eisenhower that the allied air offensive is about to be renewed against Italian cities. Lack of reports of bombing of the Italian mainland was taken as an indication that another 24 hour breathing spell had been given for the ominous words to sink in.

Reports early today said the first response in Italy had been a fresh wave of angry demonstrations for peace.

The Algiers radio said thousands of copies of Eisenhower's message offering the return of Italian prisoners to their homes when peace is made were being circulated in northern Italy, and that in one town processions of women marched in the streets shouting "Set free our prisoners" and "Peace."

The Swiss radio said quiet seemed to have been restored nearly everywhere in Italy, with the curfew at Trieste, Pola and Fiume lifted.

Deny Revolution Reports.

The Rome radio, giving the first Italian press reaction quoted Il Popolo di Roma as commenting:

"In war it is decisive acts that count, not threats."

"Reports of revolution in Italian cities, German occupation of Italian territory such as Trieste, Pola and Fiume, disarmament by Germans of Italian troops in Greece and invasion by Slovenes of Italian territory are pure invention," said this broadcast.

Then the broadcaster added, "The enemy radio, particularly in London, is putting out all manner of rumors in an effort to start a war of nerves against the Italian population and disintegrate the unity of the Italian nation and loyalty to the king."

"Allies Bolshevistic."

The Berlin radio quoted the official Italian news agency, Stefani, as declaring, "In view of latest events it can only be repeated that Great Britain and the United States are ready to deliver up Europe to bolshevism for the sake of their hegemonic aims."

There was no confirmation that Gen. Eisenhower was negotiating with representatives of the Italian government. Madrid dispatches said, however, that rumors among diplomats there were that unofficial peace soundings for Germany as well as Italy were in progress.

Germans in Madrid were quoted as saying that even if Badoglio succeeded in holding his war-weary people in the war temporarily, Italy was likely to topple like a dead tree at the first offensive blow against the mainland.

Laval Seeks Support.

Vichy dispatches to the Spanish press said Pierre Laval was trying to enlarge his cabinet and gain wider support by taking in some former Radical Socialists. Representatives of Marshal Petain were reported to have approached the veteran Rightist leader, Louis Marin, on the possibility that Marin might take Laval's place, and to have met a flat "no!"

In Croatia, the puppet chief Ante Pavelic was reported trying to draw the support of the veteran peasant leader, Vladimir Macek.

Stockholm dispatches quoted the German newspaper Neueste Nachrichten of Munich as admitting that the collapse of Fascism would affect the outcome of the war, and as revealing that Nazi leaders fear the same thing may happen in Germany. Dispatches to the Swedish press said official Berlin still clung, however, to Badoglio's statement that the "war continues."

The Algiers radio quoted the German freedom station "Atlantik" as saying German officers and soldiers were frustrated in an attempt last Friday to take Mussolini from his villa outside Rome for removal to Germany.

Fire on Evacuees.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 1.—An incipient revolt was reported to have flared up again in Milan early today when a machine gun patrol fired on a column of evacuees obeying Gen. Eisenhower's injunction to get away from military objectives.

Fighting was said to have been fierce as many of the evacuees brought out hidden weapons and retaliated. It was reported some of those arrested were shot on the spot.

Today "ordered evacuation" of women and children was begun in special trains moving out every 15 minutes "to somewhere in Italy." The presence of these trains did much to reduce the hysteria which threatened revolution.

In today's batch of Rome decrees rescinding former legislation, was one voiding the application of the Nuremberg laws in Italy and ordering the immediate release of 12,000 Jews in concentration camps.

SPELLMAN BACK IN N. Y. AFTER TRIP TO AFRICA

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York arrived at his home here tonight by airplane after an extended tour of England, the Mediterranean, and Africa.

At the archbishopric, from where his arrival was reported, he sent word that he was "feeling well and happy to be home," but would make no public statement until tomorrow.

He left the United States last winter after conferring with President Roosevelt, and during his tour he visited Prime Minister Churchill and Pope Pius XII.

SWEDEN STUDIES POLICY ON WAR CHIEFS IN FLIGHT

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 1 (AP).—A government spokesman said today that Sweden is consulting with other neutral nations on its policy toward political refugees. There have been indications that Sweden would not offer asylum to any one who could be charged with a specific crime in connection with war guilt.

[The allied nations yesterday announced that they were informing neutral governments that they would regard the granting of asylum to Benito Mussolini or axis war criminals as contrary to allied nations aims and policy.]

CANADA CALLED UPON TO SPEAK UP FOR HERSELF

LONDON, Aug. 1 (AP).—W. J. Haley, editor of the Manchester Evening News, tonight called on Canada to be heard and known in its own right apart from being an interpreter between the United States and Britain. Haley, who is a director of Reuters News agency, the British Press association and the Manchester Guardian, spoke from London over the Canadian Broadcasting company's national network.

"No one will underestimate the importance of complete Anglo-American understanding," he declared. "It is one sure foundation stone of peace. Canada with its peculiar advantages of tradition and environment can play that grand design.

"But Canada must also be heard and known in its own right apart from being the interpreter. When the great conventions of history are done with, who remembers the interpreter? Canada may have that role, but it will only be incidental. It has many others more vital."

SAYS GERMANS IN CRETE DISARM ITALIAN TROOPS

British Tell of Firing on Unit That Resisted

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 1 (AP).—British middle east headquarters announced tonight that it had evidence of an interaxis clash in Crete in which Italian troops, defying German attempts to disarm them, are still "standing firm," altho surrounded and once fired upon.

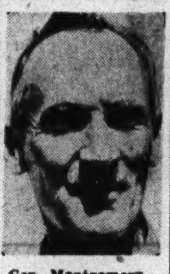
This news followed reports of similar incidents in Greece and apparently was brought about by German fears their allies would return home if the new Italian government makes peace.

The announcement said: "General headquarters for the middle east has obtained evidence of a German plan to disarm Italian troops in Crete and arrest the Italian commanding officer and his staff, and to preclude the return home of Italian troops if Italy got out of the war.

"News has reached the middle east that some of the Italian troops were ordered into the German area in Crete and there disarmed. Senior Italian artillery officers were ordered by Germans to report to German headquarters. They refused. One Italian unit was surrounded and fired on. The Germans are threatening to attack the Italians who are standing firm."

NARROW ESCAPE BY MONTGOMERY IN SICILY IS TOLD

AT U. S. 7TH ARMY HDQ. IN SICILY, July 27 [Delayed]—(AP).—Narrowly avoiding a crackup when the Flying Fortress in which he was riding ground looped on a short runway, Gen. Bernard L. Montgomery called on Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr. today to discuss the Sicilian campaign.



Gen. Montgomery.

The dapper 8th army commander who chased Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel across Libya praised American troops as "first class soldiers" and declared emphatically: "There's no doubt that between us we'll clean up this island."

When Montgomery's Fortress, which was presented to him by Gen. Eisenhower, landed at a nearby airport only the skill of Capt. R. E. Evans of Knoxville, Tenn., prevented it from cracking up.

The field lies in a basin ringed by high mountains. Prevailing northwesterly winds make landings difficult on the short runway. Evans set the ship down perfectly but threw it into a ground loop when it neared the end of the runway, shaking up the passengers, including members of Montgomery's staff.

"I had to do it to keep from running off the field," Evans said. "The general was shaken up, but he took it like a good sport. He knew I had to do it, as he was sitting beside me in the co-pilot's seat."

In an interview with correspondents the Britisher who outfoxed the "Fox of the Desert" was particularly enthusiastic in praise of American soldiers.

"You know," he said, "I never had contact with your American soldiers before. When we pushed thru Tunisia we joined hands at Gafsa, but then we went our way and never really fought side by side until the invasion. I must say that the assistance and help given me by Americans has been first class."

ADM. ROBERT SPURNS DE GAULLE-GIRAUD AS FRENCH GOVERNMENT

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Aug. 1 (AP).—Adm. Georges Robert, deposed ruler of Martinique, today bitterly assailed both Gen. Henri Giraud and Gen. Charles de Gaulle and warned that Marshal Petain's supporters never will associate themselves with those who have worked against the Vichy government.

The admiral also disclosed that Vichy had asked him repeatedly to scuttle French war vessels at Martinique. He refused, and as a result the ships, including the aircraft carrier Bearn and the cruisers Emile Bertin and Jeanne d'Arc, fell into the hands of the Giraud-De Gaulle representatives. Robert said he did not recognize De Gaulle's and Giraud's Algiers committee as the French government. "In that," he added, "I am imitating the attitude of the governments in London and Washington."

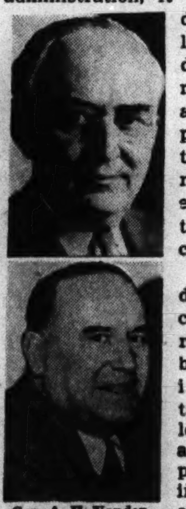
SENATE FORCES F. D. R. TO YIELD ON PACT MAKING

Post-War Treaties to Be Submitted.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—The administration, it was learned today, has capitulated to senate demands that no more international agreements on post-war coöperation shall be made by the executive without the consent of congress.



Sen. A. H. Vandenberg [top] and Sen. Bennett Clark.

As a result, the draft agreement creating an allied relief and rehabilitation administration, patterned on the league of nations and regarded as a possible model of international machinery to preserve peace, will be submitted to congress for approval in the form of enabling legislation. The text also will be revised to meet senate objections.

This represents a victory for Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] who exposed the effort of the administration to by-pass congress in putting the United States into this post-war agency and to do it by chicanery.

Yields on Air Agreements.

The administration has acceded also to the demand of Sen. Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.], chairman of a senate committee studying the development of post-war commercial aviation that no air commerce agreements shall be entered into with other nations without the assent of congress. The Berle interdepartmental committee is maturing plans of this character which there was reason to fear might not sufficiently protect American interests.

These are additional consequences of the 1942 elections in which the people gave congress a mandate to check the autocratic and socialistic activities of the Roosevelt administration. In a score of instances in this session so far congress has rebuked and reversed the President and put a decided crimp in the New Deal. In these latest two cases the administration surrendered without a fight, well knowing that the opposition had the votes.

The administration set out to put across the international relief and rehabilitation agency without consulting congress in the manner it put thru the lend-lease master agreements with the allied nations, establishing an international New Deal to be financed by the United States. That was done before the 1942 elections and before congress threw away the rubber stamp.

31 Nations Affected.

The draft agreement for the international relief and rehabilitation agency was devised by the state department, in collaboration with British, Russian, and Chinese representatives, and has been submitted to 31 nations other than the United States for approval. The machinery provided is reminiscent of the league of nations. There is to be a council composed of all the allied and associated nations and any others whose membership is desired. Then there is to be a central committee of the council of representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Russia, and China who will run the machinery by unanimous vote.

Then there are to be regional committees on policies, chiefly a committee for Europe composed of European countries and a committee for the far east composed of nations in that region or possessing territories therein.

Vast powers are conferred on the agency to mobilize and distribute resources for relief and rehabilitation of the populations of allied countries and countries liberated from enemy rule. The provision of a quart of milk a day for every human being, proposed by Vice President Henry Wallace, would be child's play for the relief administration as projected.

Vested with Broad Powers.

In order to furnish food, clothing, and shelter, the relief administration is vested with power to acquire, hold, and convey property; to enter into contracts and undertake obligations; to designate or create agencies, and to review the activities of agencies to be created; to manage undertakings, and in general to perform any legal act appropriate to its objects and purposes."

The agency is to provide "food, fuel, clothing, and other basic necessities, housing facilities, medical and other essential services; and to facilitate in areas receiving relief, the production and transportation of these articles and the furnishing of these services so far as necessary to the adequate provision of relief."

The administration is also to provide a program for the coördination of purchasing, use of ships, and other procurement activities. It is to work out nutrition, health, agricultural, transport, repatriation, and financial programs.

Pledge "Full Support."

"Each member government," the draft agreement provides, "pledges its full support to the administration. Within the limits of its available resources and subject to the requirements of its constitutional procedure, thru contributions of funds, material, equipment, supplies, and services for use in its own, adjacent, or other areas in need."

Many internationalists hold that machinery of this sort could be employed to establish a world state with an international police force supplied by the member governments in the manner that food, fuel, and clothing are to be supplied to the relief administration. The suggestion also has been made that the vast powers conferred would enable the relief administration itself to function as a league to preserve peace.

The Roosevelt administration sought to by-pass congress not only to avoid opposition, but to create a precedent for exclusive executive action in post-war agreements.

When Sen. Vandenberg protested against the intent to by-pass congress, Secretary of State Cordell Hull wrote him that "it has been decided, after consultation with the majority and minority leaders of both houses of congress, that United States participation in the establishment of this united nations administration should be thru an executive agreement." Both Sen. Charles L. McNary [R., Ore.], minority leader of the senate, and Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. [R., Mass.], minority leader of the house, denied that they had entered into any such understanding.

A senate investigating committee thereafter had a heated session with Mr. Hull, the upshot of which was the administration's capitulation.

VICTIM OF GLIDER CRASH A GRADUATE OF GLENBARD HIGH

Harold H. Krueger, 26 years old, one of 10 men killed yesterday in the crash of an army glider during a demonstration in St. Louis, Mo., was a resident of Glen Ellyn until a year ago when he left to take a position with the Robertson Aircraft corporation in St. Louis. His widow, Dorothy, 20, lives at 682 Western avenue, Glen Ellyn.

Officer John Eaton of the Glen Ellyn police force, said Krueger is remembered as a glider enthusiast. He recalled that Krueger put together the first glider ever made in Glen Ellyn five years ago and that the plane won first place in a contest. Eaton said Krueger was a graduate of Glenbard High school.

Krueger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Krueger, and his sister, Elaine, moved from Glen Ellyn to California recently. A brother, William, a war worker, has just been inducted into the army.

Burglars who smashed a window glass robbed a liquor store at 901 North Franklin street during the night of 36 quarts of whisky and 25 cartons of cigarets, valued at $225, the owner, Frank Sorci, reported to police yesterday.

ST. LOUIS MAYOR AND 9 KILLED IN GLIDER CRASH

into the air and circled the field at 1,500 feet, observers said. It then headed northward and returned to the field after a flight of about 10 minutes. The glider was brought into a position to cast off its tow for a landing, and witnesses said they believed the tow had been cut loose before trouble developed.

"About midway over the field there was a splintering noise and both wings seemed to fall away," said Joseph C. Payne, a St. Louis union business agent, an eyewitness. "At that moment the tow cable snapped and the fuselage dropped like a rock."

Hits with "Ripping Crash."

Payne said the glider struck the field with a "ripping crash" and bodies were thrown 30 to 50 feet from the splintered ship.

Lt. Col. J. R. Johnston, army air forces public relations officer, said a seven man board of officers from Stout field, headed by Lt. Col. Albert T. Wilson Jr., has called in the federal bureau of investigation to help with an inquiry into the crash. Johnston said preliminary investigation showed no evidence of sabotage.

News Cameras Seized.

A guard was thrown around the field after the crash and the cameras of several newspaper and amateur photographers were seized. Films will not be released until proper clearances have been obtained, army officials said.

There were unofficial reports that all gliders of that type manufactured by the Robertson company will be grounded until their structural makeup is completely checked.

Mayor Becker was elected to a four year term on a reform platform in 1941, scoring an upset victory which smashed the so-called Dickmann-Hannegan Democratic machine which had controled municipal affairs for eight years. This machine was an alliance between former Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, whom Becker defeated, and Robert Hannegan, former St. Louis city Democratic chairman.

A Republican, Becker served 24 years on the St. Louis court of appeals before his election as mayor. He was a graduate of Harvard university and studied law at St. Louis Law school. His temporary successor as mayor will be A. P. Kaufmann, chairman of the board of aldermen.

Maj. Robertson was a pioneer air enthusiast in St. Louis. He founded the Robertson Aircraft corporation in 1918, and in 1919 with Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, he selected the airport site where he was killed today.

Sponsored Lindbergh's Flight.

While operating an air line in the '20s, Robertson employed Lindbergh as an air mail pilot, and later became one of the group of St. Louis business men who financed the flight of the Spirit of St. Louis to Paris. While a vice president of the Curtiss-Wright corporation in 1932 he made a survey of Turkish air lines and prepared a plan for the Chinese government of establishing a $10,000,000 air service for passengers, mail, and freight.

Krueger, 26 years old, was a glider enthusiast whose home was at 682 Western avenue, Glen Ellyn, Ill. He joined the Robertson firm last November, becoming vice president in March. He founded the Illinois State Vocational school at Springfield.

INVASION MONEY PRINTED IN U. S. TO PAY TROOPS

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 1 (AP).—Both the United States and British armies were supplied with military currency after they landed in Sicily, it was disclosed today.

The American note is called a "yellowhead" rather than greenback because of a yellow seal on which is named the place of circulation.

United States treasury printers carried the job right up to the most vital phrase, printing the word "Sicily" on the bills. Having reached that point, they sat down to wait for the flash that the landing had begun. When it came July 9 they went into action. A few days later two transports left America with the bills, headed for Sicily. The people were told in a proclamation that the allied currency would be accepted as legal tender.

94 DEGREE HEAT BREAKS RECORD HERE FOR AUG. 1

The temperature surged upward yesterday to a new Aug. 1 high of 94 degrees at 5 p. m., surpassing the previous high of 1894 by .6 of a degree. More than 250,000 persons sought relief from the heat in the forest preserves and thousands more visited the parks and beaches. The record for the month was set Aug. 5, 1918, when the thermometer recorded 101.9. The weather bureau predicted temperatures near 95 today, with thundershowers, and lower temperatures in the evening.

GERMANY GIRDS FOR LAST STAND, SPANIARDS TOLD

Berlin Officials Talk of "Hard Battle."

MADRID, Spain, Aug. 1 (AP).—The Spanish press is acknowledging that Germany has abandoned all hope of a future offensive, and is saying that the Nazis now are trying to prepare the people for a "defense battle of hard and disastrous times."

The crumbling of Italy and consequent tremors in the Balkans have led official Berlin spokesmen to talk of a "wall of blood," Spanish correspondents wrote from Berlin tonight.

Germany, said Berlin correspondents for Ya, is engaged now in "extrema defensa," a last stand.

Up to the day of Mussolini's fall, the same correspondents were writing of the coming German offensives on the eastern front, of an axis counter-offensive in Sicily "which will not be long delayed," and of approaching German submarine offensives.

German People Anxious.

The Berlin correspondent for the Madrid newspaper "ABC" said tonight German newspapers' silence on Italian developments had not prevented the German people from "anxiety visible in all their reactions." The most optimistic Germans hoped the Italians and Germans both "would withdraw northward from the Apennine peninsula." Others believed the Germans alone "would withdraw to a line roughly corresponding with the Po valley."

Articles by German news agency writers reported "considerable Communist activity" among Italians in the Po valley. The implication was that the Germans might have to take over to crush "Communists."

Another indication that the Germans believe they may soon be forced to try to justify occupation of the Po valley came in a Transocean dispatch from Berlin saying the allies will ask for military bases in Italy "in the event of Italian capitulation."

Sabotage in Po Valley.

Reports from persons reaching Spain from northern Italy, however, indicated Germany might not be able to hold the Po valley. They said sabotage already has begun on a large scale. Many northern Italians, including a number of Italian troops in the Po area, are waiting only to ascertain the Badoglio government's position before going into action.

Large quantities of German military stores lie in Italian warehouses guarded by Italian troops who have refused to give them up.

Germans, engaged in troop movements thruout the Po valley region, have so far avoided a direct clash except in Milan.

U. S. FLYERS BAG 500 NAZIS OVER EUROPE IN JULY

LONDON, Aug. 1 (AP).—The United States 8th air force dropped more than 3,600 tons of bombs on Europe in July, almost double the amount in June, and destroyed more than 500 German fighters, it was announced tonight by headquarters of the European theater of operations of the United States army.

It was a record month for the American force which destroyed 75 per cent more enemy fighters than in June while its own losses dropped to less than 4 per cent. Thunderbolts of the fighter command also set a record for enemy fighters destroyed over Europe in a single day—25 Focke-Wulfs and Messerschmitts on July 30.

Final figures on fighters downed by Fortresses are not yet compiled for the last two days and the figure of 500 is based on a "conservative average." In addition, more than 150 probably were destroyed and more than 275 damaged. During these operations 108 Fortresses were lost.

[Acme Telephoto.]

LT. JOY BRIGHT HANCOCK.

Kearny, N. J., Aug. 1 (AP).—A WAVES officer and veteran of the first World war, Lt. Joy Bright Hancock, who lost two husbands in naval dirigible accidents, christened the destroyer Hancock in honor of her late husband at a double launching at the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company yard today.

Lt. Comdr. Lewis Hancock Jr., was killed Sept. 3, 1925, when the navy dirigible Shenandoah, crashed near Caldwell, O. The couple had met at Lakehurst, N. J., where the future Mrs. Hancock was working in the bureau of aeronautics and her future husband was fitting out rigid airships. They were married in 1924. She had served as a first class yeoman in the first World war. Her first husband, Lt. Charles G. Little, was killed in the explosion of the dirigible, R-2, in England less than a year after their marriage in 1920.

NAZIS HELD ONLY BAR TO ITALIAN PLEA FOR PEACE

Practically Thru, Says U. S. Expert.

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 1 (AP).—Italy, for all practical purposes, is already out of the war, a political expert said today.

Only the continued presence of German troops is delaying the formal cessation of hostilities, in the view of this source. The Italian people were reported tired, scared, hungry, and ready for an immediate armistice.

Whether or not an armistice is concluded, it is believed that the Germans can count only on such cooperation from Italians, both at the front lines and on the mainland, as they can obtain by force. Italian troops in Sicily are fighting only when Germans are behind them, pointing guns at their backs.

Naples Is Unrepaired.

The failure to repair any of the enormous damage at Naples, wrecked by the massive air raid July 11, points toward outright refusal or at least disinclination on the part of Italian workmen to continue to support the war.

However, the Badoglio government is regarded as being squeezed between the allies and the Germans.

The ability of the allied air forces to bomb Italian cities out of existence is obvious. The weakened axis air forces may attempt to defend a few military objectives.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that allied ground forces will carry the war to the Italian mainland if necessary. Conversely, experts said there were reports that Hitler was threatening to establish a short defense line inside Italy and continue the war from there if the nation laid down its arms.

Can't Defend All Italy.

The Germans are physically unable to garrison all Italy and still continue to fight effectively in Sicily.

A breakdown in the nation's administrative machinery and the collapse of normal public utilities alone would seriously impede the German plan to use Italy as a fortified outpost. Allied headquarters has been bringing these facts home to the Italian people.

The people were also told that an avenue for an honorable peace is wide open, either thru the Badoglio government or the Vatican.

It is understood armistice negotiations would be conducted directly by Washington and London. Only technical military phases of surrender would be discussed by the allied high command and Italian representatives.

TELLS HOW 8TH ARMY GAINS AT EDGE OF CATANIA

Planes Knock Out Axis Guns to Lead Way In.

BY NOLAND NORGAARD.

WITH BRITISH 8TH ARMY IN SICILY, July 31 [Delayed]—(AP).—British and Canadian forces have enlarged and strengthened their vital bridgehead menacing Catania, crossing a river to capture a village, amid growing evidence of enemy difficulties in readjusting their forces to meet fresh threats at the edge of the Catania plain.

[This dispatch did not identify the river nor the village taken by 8th army troops, who have driven up the east coast to just south of Catania.]

At the same time, the German defense problem is complicated by substantial fresh gains of the United States 7th army, which chewed its way thru German-Italian forces along the north coastal road and advanced steadily from Nicosia, 40 miles northwest of Catania.

Road Junction Taken.

A mixed British and Canadian force which fought its way across the river captured the town yesterday and gained a road junction opening routes to the northeast and northwest.

The enlargement of the bridgehead which accompanied capture of the village came in the face of stubborn German resistance and heavy fire of Nazi guns. Much of the resistance appeared to come from the anti-aircraft regiment of the Hermann Goering division, some members of which were captured.

The British and Canadians knocked out three of six German 88 mm. guns which attempted to stem the assault on the village and nearby elevated ground.

Planes Knock Out Guns.

Allied bombing likewise curbed enemy artillery activity. After the air attacks only single batteries were left firing in some parts of the strongly entrenched enemy lines.

The difficulties of the German defenders in making readjustments were reflected by absence of the usual reactions when the Nazis were driven from the vital point.

Allied armies have grown to expect that a German withdrawal from any important point will be followed immediately by heavy air and artillery action against troops consolidating their gains.

Yesterday's reaction was comparatively minor. Eight Messerschmitts attacked the area behind the British-Canadian sector, but an eyewitness said the pilots appeared reluctant in the face of ground fire and fled quickly after dropping their bombs and attempting to shoot up dispersed motor transport.

Nazis Swing to Meet Yanks.

Despite the vigilance of allied air patrols which have taken a steadily growing toll of axis vessels, the enemy is continuing to send what was called "considerable traffic" to Messina from the nearby Italian mainland.

The enemy also is strengthening anti-aircraft defenses at key points along the highway and railroad encircling lofty Mt. Etna, notably to the west and southwest.

The bulk of the reconstructed 15th German armored division is believed concentrated in the area west to southwest of Mt. Etna.

RIDGE BY RIDGE, YANKS RIP THRU NAZI VETERANS

Face Hard Going Over Hills of Sicily.

BY DON WHITEHEAD.

WITH U. S. 7TH ARMY NEAR SAN STEFANO, Italy, July 29 [Delayed]—(AP).—Battling against German veterans who escaped from Stalingrad, tough American troops from the midwest and west fought their way yard by yard yesterday up a rocky ridge on the road to Messina and entrenched themselves on Hill 335.

That is the story of this struggle along the northern coast road—vicious, bitter fighting for ridge after ridge.

Now there are only a few Italians facing the American advance. Most of the enemy troops are German veterans, rushed to Sicily eight days ago to bolster the island's defenses.

Drive to Outflank Nazis.

They are defending prepared positions in country as rough as any in which American troops ever have fought. Lads of the 45th infantry division, principally from Oklahoma, Colorado, and Mexico, have been battering at the enemy without letup for more than 24 hours.

As I write this, American artillery is still pounding German positions on a ridge overlooking Hill 335 and infantry is moving across a precipitous ridge to flank the entrenched Germans.

There are no "haymaker" swings in this country. The blows are short, vicious infantry jabs. There is only one winding road clinging to the hills which sweep down to the blue Tyrrhenian sea, and it is along this road that the Americans must move.

One Company Repels Nazis.

Hill 335 is just another razorback ridge of rock and scrub growth running laterally to the coast, but it was a strategic point and the Nazis were astride it in strength. So they were knocked off with an artillery barrage and unending pressure by our infantry.

The weary American soldiers held the hill this morning, and then from the ridge above them came the Germans in a counter-attack. On the right flank nearest the German attack was Company A, 3d battalion of the 157th regiment, led by Lt. Joseph Robertson of Lamar, Colo.

It caught the full force of the enemy attack and threw it back with machine gun and mortar fire. Among axis soldiers captured in the brief engagement were some Poles who said they had been drafted into the German army.

Nazis Fight Doggedly.

"They are happy to be captured," said Capt. Stanley W. White of Denver, Colo.

Now that the Germans are cornered in northeastern Sicily, they are consolidating their positions and fighting doggedly. That is why progress is slow, even tho the fighting is more intense. There still is plenty of tough mountain fighting ahead for the foot troops and artillery before the enemy can be shoved back into country where the allied weight of armor can be thrown into the scrap.

Yanks Re-enact AEF Part in London Peace Parade

LONDON, Aug. 1 (AP).—The march which United States soldiers made in a peace procession in London on July 19, 1919, was reënacted a few days ago by American soldiers of 1943 wearing uniforms and equipment such as their dads wore 24 years ago. They were providing authenticity for Noel Coward's movie "This Happy Breed."

FREE GERMANY GROUP BACKED BY RED PAPER

Committee Asks Revolt, Ousting of Hitler.

MOSCOW, Aug. 1 (AP).—Russia's Communist party gave its backing to the free Germany national committee by an article in Pravda today which upheld the international importance of this organization of anti-Facist refugees and prisoners.

The article gave the first soviet comment on the committee which was created at a Moscow conference on July 13 and which published a manifesto July 21 urging the German people and army to revolt, demand immediate peace, and establish a democracy.

Pravda, organ of the central committee of the Communist party and the most important newspaper in the soviet union, said "the national committee will contribute to the unity of the anti-Hitlerite forces inside Germany and increase the number of Hitler's enemies."

Aim to Oust Hitler.

The newspaper recalled the committee's declaration that no foreign foe had ever plunged Germany into such an abyss as had Adolf Hitler and that its aim was to overthrow Hitler and establish a "post-war free democratic Germany."

"We think the free Germany committee will play an even more useful role in overthrowing the Hitlerite regime and withdrawing Germany from the war to peace than was played with regard to Italy by the committee of 'free Italians' founded in London long ago and which consists of representatives of various political opinions and which assumed a similar function and program of overthrowing fascism and retiring Italy from the war," said Pravda.

Inspired by Kursk Defeat.

The newspaper said the major impulse for creation of the committee was the defeat of the Germans in the battle of Kursk in July. One delegate to the Moscow anti-Fascist conference was quoted as saying this defeat was even more dangerous for Nazi Germany than the loss of Stalingrad.

Pravda said the anti-Fascist writers, politicians, workers, officers, and soldiers, who created the Free Germany organization, would themselves have "considered the formation of such a committee impossible a year ago."

UNVEIL PLAQUE FOR EVANSTON'S 42 DEAD IN WAR

Dr. Emory Luccock, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and the Rev. Peter Witmanski, pastor of the Ascension of Our Lord parish, spoke at dedication ceremonies for the new war memorial in Evanston's Fountain square yesterday. A cream and gold plaque, 12 feet by 8, was unveiled. It contains a gold star for each of the 42 Evanston men who have died in military service in this war. The colors were posted by the Evanston American Legion posts.

REDS SWEEP ON, NAZIS RETIRE IN 2 OREL SECTORS

Russians Say Drive Nets 100 Villages.

LONDON, Aug. 2 [Monday]—(AP).—Advancing 5 to 7½ miles against hard fighting Germans, Russian forces captured more than 100 villages in the Orel area and killed more than 4,600 Nazis in fierce encounters along the long front from there south to Voroshilovgrad, Moscow announced early today.

Earlier dispatches from Moscow said the Germans were retreating both north and south of Orel behind a screen of light tanks. Altho retiring, they are resisting stoutly, Moscow's midnight war bulletin said.

Stop Nazi Offensive.

The Nazis staged nine counter-attacks, all of which were repulsed, in one Orel sector. These counter-attacks cost the enemy about 3,000 officers and men.

Near Belgorod, 165 miles south of Orel, the soviets thwarted several German attacks.

Farther south, in the Donetz basin and southwest of Voroshilovgrad, the Russians claimed they were holding a German offensive to a standstill and inflicting heavy losses. In an unidentified sector one soviet unit killed about 1,500 Nazis.

Blast 70 Tanks, 97 Planes.

On the Leningrad front, the war bulletin said, patrols and snipers killed about 500 Germans.

On all these fronts, the announcement added, 70 German tanks were destroyed, 50 of them in the Donetz area. In addition, 97 German planes were shot down.

The German high command yesterday said that in the Orel sector soviet attacks were thrown back.

Depot Is a City with Full Equipment.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT A U. S. GENERAL DEPOT, Somewhere in England, Aug. 1.—A man who only two years ago disposed of the last World war surplus motor parts today is sitting on top of a billion dollars worth of supplies at an American army installation in England.

He is Col. C. W. Richmond of Jackson, Mich., having 29 years of service in the regular army and three years with the Michigan National Guard. In March, 1941, he cleaned up the leftovers from the last big unpleasantness by selling 3,000 tons of equipment in Baltimore.

312,000 Ordnance Parts.

"I hope we use all this stuff up this time," he mused today.

Near a little English village the colonel has his establishment, with 312,000 parts of ordnance stored in one square mile. He has everything from tanks to turnips, from Very pistols to 155 mm. guns, and from bicycles to locomotives. What he does not have he can make in shops equipped to repair anything a soldier can break.

In 1914, Richmond enlisted to go to Vera Cruz with the field artillery but, found himself in the Philippines, assigned to a cavalry unit.

Strictly Military.

This supply base, which is part of the services of supply command of Maj. Gen. John Lee of Junction City, Kas., is run on military lines. Everybody knows his job and everybody does it with very little left to the imagination.

If a soldier is in doubt about what to do in case of fire, he has only to look at signs on the walls, which read: "In case of fire: 1. Shout 'Fire.' 2. Attack with available apparatus." This seemed pretty clear to the Tribune correspondent.

There is a theater on the base which seats 900 and when a big attraction comes along the seats are folded and there is standing room for 3,500. Lights, backdrops, and all the equipment have been constructed on the spot.

Hold Dances at Depot.

Several nights a week the depot holds dances which attract girls from the little towns for miles around. About 1,400 pedal in on bicycles. Adjoining the theater is a gymnasium with punching bags, a boxing ring, and other equipment.

A 50 bed hospital takes care of the disabled while modern fire engines provide protection from blazes.

The base has 17 miles of railroad track and cars and locomotives which were built in the United States. The six locomotives and other rolling stock are operated by 100 railroad men brought from the United States,, mostly from the Pennsylvania and New York Central lines.

There is a lively rivalry between the groups of railroad men, each claiming that the other doesn't have the slighest idea of how railroads should be run.

War Bulletins on Sicily

ALLIED.

"Bridgeheads were further extended and established on the front of the [British] 8th army.

"The [United States] 7th army captured three towns about five kilometers [three miles] beyond yesterday's positions."

ALLIED AERIAL.

"During the day our fighters continued their sweeps and patrols.

"One enemy aircraft was destroyed on the night of July 30-31.

"Attacks were made on enemy shipping and seaplanes at anchor on the coast of Greece. Two enemy aircraft were destroyed in combat during these attacks.

"None of our aircraft is missing from these operations."

MIDDLE EAST AIR.

CAIRO, Egypt, Aug. 1.—A middle east announcement of aerial activities said today:

"R. A. F. heavy bombers bombed railway installations at Reggio Calabria in the toe of Italy during the night of July 30-31, scoring hits on railway lines. Other bursts were seen near fuel tanks and fires were seen burning over a wide area.

"In daylight on July 30 a merchant vessel and a barge were damaged by cannon and machine gun fire south of Seriphos Island [Greece] by Beaufighters.

"From these and other operations all our aircraft returned safely."

ITALIAN.

Following is the Italian Sunday war report, as broadcast from Rome and recorded by the Associated Press:

"On the Sicilian front the day before yesterday [Friday] there was heavy fighting in the Regalbuto sector. Violent and repeated enemy attacks were beaten back.

"Enemy naval formations bombarded places on the Tyrrhenian and Ionian coasts of Calabria without causing notable damage."

GERMAN.

Of the action in Sicily, Germany's broadcast war report, as recorded by the Associated Press, said yesterday:

"In Sicily the enemy continued his efforts to break thru the central front. In mobile warfare our troops frustrated the enemy and inflicted great losses in man power and material on him. All enemy attacks on the north and south fronts also collapsed.

"Fast bombers of the German air force dispersed enemy motorized formations and put anti-aircraft guns out of action."

BURMA 'SET FREE' BY JAPS; DECLARES WAR AGAINST ALLIES

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Tokio radio said yesterday that Japanese-occupied Burma had "formally declared war" against the United States and Britain.

The broadcast said also that Burma's independence had been formally recognized by the Japanese government and that Burma's defense would now pass from the Japanese into the hands of the new state. It added that Prime Minster Ba Maw had notified friendly governments of Burma's independence.

Ba Maw, long a leader of anti-British factions in Burma, was once sentenced to prison by the British.

94 ALLIED SHIPS, 17 NAVAL CRAFT SUNK, NAZIS SAY

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The German high command declared yesterday that Nazi war craft had sunk 94 allied merchant ships totaling 550,241 tons and three destroyers, a submarine and eight smaller naval vessels in the Atlantic and in the Mediterranean during July. They also reported 53 other ships were hit, two by torpedoes.

These claims, which were without confirmation in allied quarters, were made in a bulletin broadcast from Berlin and recorded by The Associated Press.

The July report compared with previous Berlin statements that 31 ships totaling 149,900 tons were sunk in May and 76 totaling 433,000 tons were destroyed in June and it implied that Nazi submarines, surface warships and planes were out of a seasonal slump.

DROP 27 TONS OF BOMBS ON GUN BASES AT MUNDA

Yank Planes Score Many Direct Hits.

ALLIED HDQ. IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 2 [Monday] —(AP).—Dive bombers continued their task of softening enemy positions at Munda, New Georgia, yesterday.

A brief statement from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said 27 tons of bombs were dropped on gun emplacements and supply dump areas. Many direct hits were scored.

It was the only reported action in the New Georgia battle, save for a night patrol attack on enemy positions on Kolombangara Island, across the Kula gulf from New Georgia.

Gasmata Station Hit.

Mitchell bombers from the 5th airforce swept over the south coast of New Britain bombing buildings at the government station at Gasmata and machine gunning small craft along the coast.

Belated reports said five enemy barges had been destroyed on the New Britain coast, in addition to seven reported sunk yesterday.

The only other actions reported were attacks on the Lae, New Georgia, airdrome and on enemy oil installations at Boela on Ceram Island off the northwestern tip of New Guinea.

FIGHT INCH BY INCH

BY C. YATES McDANIEL.

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 31 [Delayed] —(AP).—Americans have been driving for a month toward Munda, Japanese air base on New Georgia Island, at an inch by inch pace against savage resistance which has postponed but not altered the fate of the enemy virtually trapped on the island.

Allied armies have progressed much more rapidly in Sicily than Americans have on New Georgia. But there is a striking difference between these campaigns.

As compared with the tens of thousands of Italian and German troops facing the allied forces in Sicily, New Georgia is held by a comparatively small force of Japanese who fight back from every foxhole and dugout and machine gun nest until they are literally blasted or burned out.

Fight Bloody Campaign.

The outnumbered Japanese appear to be unweakened on their "no surrender" discipline. This is forcing the Americans to fight a methodically slow and bloody campaign.

American field commanders have no time now to compute the price the Japanese are paying for this kind of resistance. Official reports mention specifically only 880 Japanese troops killed, but this total doesn't include casualties the enemy must have suffered from bombardment by American ships, planes, and artillery.

U. S. Loses Four Ships.

Gen. MacArthur's war bulletins, however, have given a picture of the cost to the Japanese in ships and planes. In the month since the Americans landed on Rendova Island, just south of Munda air field, the Japanese have lost 345 planes, five or six cruisers sunk, one cruiser or destroyer sunk, 13 or 14 destroyers sunk, five destroyers probably sunk, 8 destroyers damaged, and 1 seaplane tender sunk.

During the same period American losses as listed officially were 84 planes shot down or missing in action, the cruiser Helena, the transport Macawley and the destroyers Strong and Gwinn sunk.

Reference books gave the Japanese 36 cruisers and 120 destroyers at the start of war in the Pacific.

The extent to which the Japanese naval balance has been upset is told in reports of successes achieved during the past month by sea and air units of Adm. William F. Halsey, added to the toll taken by forces under MacArthur since he issued his first official statement April 21, 1942.

The Official Score.

The score against the Japanese navy as listed by MacArthur and Halsey is as follows:

Cruisers, 15 or 16 sunk, 4 probably sunk or believed sunk, 17 damaged; cruiser or destroyer, 1 sunk, 1 probably sunk, 1 damaged; cruiser or battleship, 2 damaged; destroyers, 30 or 31 sunk, 12 probably sunk or believed sunk, 23 damaged; unidentified warships, 1 sunk, 4 probably damaged.

Tells How Yanks Rush Supplies in Guinea

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN NEW GUINEA, July 27 [Delayed].—A low voiced guard awakened us at 4:30 a. m. We hustled into our clothes, picked up our packs and stumbled thru the sleeping camp to a truck which took us and other early birds to the air field where we planned to take off on the first stage of a long journey to the fighting front. This was eight days ago.

A grumpy sergeant, obviously wishing he still was in bed, handed us our tickets and directed us to various planes. Our transport, loaded with men for various destinations on various errands, lifted easily off the long runway. But half an hour later the weather became foggy over a mountain pass and we turned back and tried again on a different track.

Forced to Return.

This time the fog was even heavier and we returned to the base and decided to wait for a better chance to clear the jagged peaks which have claimed good pilots more than once in the last few months.

Four passengers, including the writer, scouted around and found a friendly Scottish cook who fried us some eggs and made coffee, and then we returned to the plane and took off once more. This time we reached an intermediate point without incident—unless you call the pilot lifting the left wing abruptly a few feet in clearing an extra tall tree an incident.

At an air field we found the world's biggest Red Cross worker, Thomas Montgomery, 6 feet 8 inches, a former Stanford shotputter from San Francisco. Montgomery took Lt. George H. Bon Jr., U. S. N., of Cazenovia, N. Y., and me to headquarters where we were given a jeep and driver, Pvt. Edwin C. Kossakowski from South Bend, Ind., who is a nephew of the Rev. Anthony Rydecki of St. John of God parish, Chicago.

Begin Trip in Second Jeep.

The jeep failed, however, and we transferred to a second one, the driver of which was Pvt. Edward A. Hawks of Ottumwa, Ia. Hawks, a pleasantly alarming fellow, explained the large muddy holes, saying, "O, the bottom drops out." We carefully skirted a large puddle and Hawks, pointing down, said, "No bottom at all."

We found the people controling a transport going north and ate lunch where we met Capt. Donald F. Madigan of 734 South Lyman avenue, Oak Park, Ill., formerly with the Armstrong Paint company. Then we took a jeep again with a third midwestern driver, Corp. Burley Geralds of Belleville, Ill., whose mother, Mrs. Donald Vancil, lives at Marissa, Ill. Geralds was happy as a lark because he got 24 letters in three days.

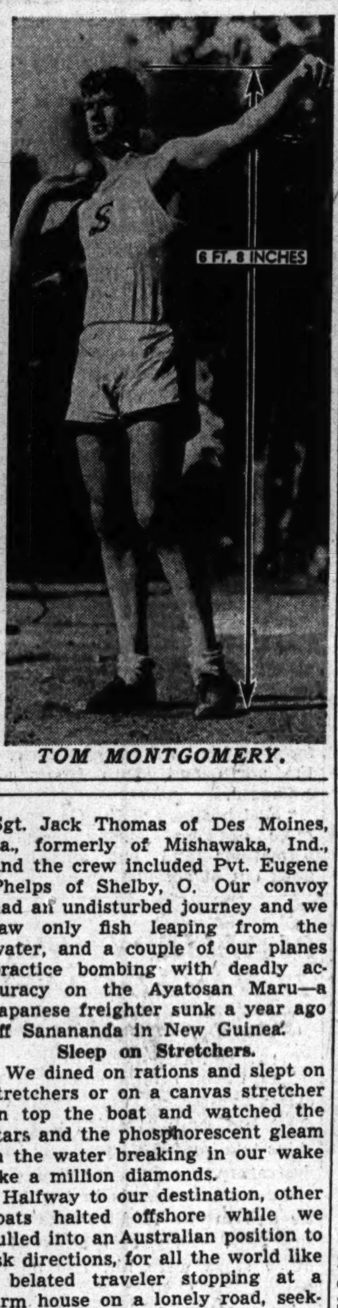
Our route was over a corduroy road thru marshlands, past two Australian trucks in a swamp, past a couple of lonely tents with a sign near-by reading, "No. 10 Lullaby Lane," and past an old Japanese air field now an Australian cemetery.

A Swim and Another Trip.

The road ended at the ocean where men were busy loading boats with artillery supplies intended to make the Japanese even unhappier. Lt. Joseph Bartlett of Atlantic City, N. J., "The Admiral," told us there was plenty of room and to come along. After a swim while the boats were being loaded, we took off late that afternoon.

We found ourselves in the company of 2d Lt. Frank Tourtellotte of Portland, Ore., a former announcer of a Mutual Broadcasting company station at Albany, Ore. As a special service officer of an artillery unit he races up and down the coast, taking cigarets and magazines to men in isolated positions, and never has any for himself. We also were with Capt. Theodore Helmer of Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, owner of a general store, who is a good man in this rugged country since his ambition is to be a state game warden.

The coxswain of our boat was



TOM MONTGOMERY.

Sgt. Jack Thomas of Des Moines, Ia., formerly of Mishawaka, Ind., and the crew included Pvt. Eugene Phelps of Shelby, O. Our convoy had an undisturbed journey and we saw only fish leaping from the water, and a couple of our planes practice bombing with deadly accuracy on the Ayatosan Maru—a Japanese freighter sunk a year ago off Sananands in New Guinea.

Sleep on Stretchers.

We dined on rations and slept on stretchers or on a canvas stretcher on top the boat and watched the stars and the phosphorescent gleam in the water breaking in our wake like a million diamonds.

Halfway to our destination, other boats halted offshore while we pulled into an Australian position to ask directions, for all the world like a belated traveler stopping at a farm house on a lonely road, seeking the way to the nearest town. At daylight we reached the second stage of our journey, beached the boats, and ate a welcome hot breakfast.

I visited a nearby camp which was reached by a pathway constructed of balsa wood from which American kids make model planes. Americans cannot resist posting signs like these:

"Live in beautiful swampy acres—five minutes walk if you run," or, apparently aimed at the camp cook, "Of all who eat at Tom's on Sunday, some are still alive on Monday."

Land at Nassau Bay.

We spent the night there; a tiny lizard with a brilliant green tail was hopping down the steps ahead of me when I left. That afternoon we headed up the coast once more.

We made a routine landing in the darkness at Nassau Bay where only three weeks ago American troops had landed unopposed, only because the heavy surf had created such confusion with the landing boats' forces, the use of lights, much milling around and shouting, which, combined with the noise of caterpillars, probably gave the enemy the impression that at least a division was coming in.

By the time daylight came the Japanese saw their mistake but our men were dug in and resisted the enemy attack.

After unloading guns and supplies every one in our caravan flopped wearily on the beach and slept under their ponchos till dawn, when we were awakened by an air raid alarm. 2d Lt. Albert Segar of Seattle, Wash., a member of the artillery outfit which had now practically adopted me, dug a slit trench faster than a beaver, thoughtfully making it large enough for me also. But no plane came.

Waves Beat in Boats.

We were two days there and inspected a Japanese bivouac area and also walked up the beach and saw a number of our boats which were beaten to pieces in the initial landing. They were an unhappy tribute to the strength of the surf, their sides stove in and some nearly covered with sand. Luckily no one was drowned in landing, but many engineers, suddenly without boats, were handed rifles and were a great help in repelling a Japanese attack which came 24 hours later.

Two engineers and two artillery men leaped into a boat in Nassau bay while I was there and raced to the sea and rescued a couple of our flyers whose bombing plane had crashed. Not waiting for orders and ignoring Japanese planes in the vicinity, one artillery man dived into the water, despite the danger of sharks, and pulled the injured flyers to safety.

So far the most striking impression I have is the almost unbelievable speed with which supplies flow in behind advancing Americans, and the high spirits of our men, whether living in comparative comfort or sleeping on the ground and eating cold food and lacking such creature comforts like heat, cigarets, and reading matter.

CHICAGO RADIO OPERATOR HERO OF PLANE CRASH

LONDON, Aug. 1 (AP).—For two days and nights the crew of the Flying Fortress "Weary Willie" floated in rubber lifeboats in the North Sea just 50 miles from the German coast, but they managed to escape detection by the Nazis.

The entire crew survived when the Fortress, shot up by flak and enemy fighters, was forced down during the Hamburg raid July 25. The pilot, 1st Lt. Thomas Estes, 24, of Winnsboro, S. C., gave the command to "ditch." Then, after the crew had thrown overboard parachutes, two waistguns, their few remaining rounds of ammunition and anything else loose two FW-190s and a JU-88 attacked until the Fortress dropped into the ocean.

Sgt. Fred S. Wagner, 21 years old, of Chicago, radio operator and gunner on the plane, sat stolidly at his table patiently sending out "S. O. S," and refused to leave when the other crewmen gathered for the crash landing. The crew scrambled into two dinghies and a fishing boat picked them up.

German Raiders Bomb British Town; Lose Plane

LONDON, Aug. 1 (AP).—German raiders, retaliating for air assaults on their homeland, bombed East Anglia last night, but caused only slight damage, it was announced today. There were no British casualties and one raider was destroyed.

RUBBER, RUBBER EVERYWHERE BUT TOKIO, JAPS SAY

Radio Reports Lack of Ships Hits Nation.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1 (AP).—Japan's conquest of most of the world's natural rubber supply is bouncing back in her face, judging from enemy broadcasts monitored in Australia and the United States.

"The Japanese have not been able to transport and use the huge rubber supplies they have acquired," the Netherlands information bureau said today.

U. S. Subs Halt Ships.

"The result is economic chaos in the rubber industry comparable to that in 1932, when the price of rubber in Batavia fell to around 3 cents a pound."

[The Japanese transportation troubles have arisen in no small part from the operations of United States submarines. The latest tally of enemy ships sunk by American submarines shows a total of 210, of which 169 were noncombatant vessels, mainly cargo carriers.]

A Singapore broadcast said the price of rubber was to be lowered 15 cents a pound to enable the wider use of crepe rubber in place of rubber for shoe soles.

Allot Rubber Plantations.

The Netherlands agency reported that the Japanese are trying to cut down on rubber production. The Tokio radio said that "according to the present plan, 40 per cent of enemy rubber plantations, totaling 1,620,000 acres in Malaya and 790,000 acres in Sumatra, will be allotted to the rubber producers, while the remaining 60 per cent will be placed under the direct supervision of the military administration."

"Dutch sources in Australia are speculating as to whether this may mean the cutting down of 60 per cent of the rubber trees," the Netherlands agency said, "since the Japanese need for wood for building ships and making paper far outweighs the need for additional rubber.

"It would take a long time, however, for the Japanese to cut down 60 per cent of the billion and a quarter rubber trees in the Netherlands Indies and an even larger number in Malaya."

Even Rubber Ship Idea.

Japanese broadcasts have told of plans to make paper out of rubber trees, the invention of a process for making gasoline out of rubber and the construction of a rubber ship, to be sent loaded with goods from the East Indies to Japan and then scrapped for the manufacture of rubber goods.

The latest outlet for the surplus rubber that has been reported by the Tokio radio is the building of rubber coated air field runways. They were described as better than concrete or asphalt in the tropical weather of southeast Asia, but have a bad odor, which the Japanese propose to overcome by mixing charcoal with the rubber.

MEDAL OF HONOR IS CONFERRED IN FIELD 1ST TIME

A SOUTH PACIFIC BASE, July 30 [Delayed]—(AP).—The congressional medal of honor was presented today to Maj. Charles W. Davis, 25 year old Alabaman, in recognition of his heroic exploits in the "battle of Galloping Horse hill" on Guadalcanal Jan. 12.

It was the first time the nation's top military honor had been conferred in the field in the South Pacific. Davis led four enlisted men up the hill which was swept by Japanese rifle and machine gun fire and wiped out the strongpoint, killing 10 or 12 Japanese.

Critical Shortage of Waste Paper Here

A dangerous paper shortage exists, due to heavy war demands for paper products. You are urged to save every scrap of waste paper, old boxes and containers, newspapers, and brown wrapping paper—they will be used as a substitute for wood pulp, for conversion into airplane parts, shell packing cases, and similar essential military equipment. Flatten out boxes, stack waste basket accumulations and loose paper into neat bundles. To sell your salvage to a dealer, or give to charitable or other organizations, telephone a collector at STAte 8787.

CHARCOAL MADE FOR CAR FUEL AT TRIBUNE FARM

Serves as Substitute for Gas in Motors.

BY HAL FOUST.

In an earth covered mound on the Tribune experimental farm yesterday lay a batch of charcoal to be used as an auto fuel. It was produced this week-end as a demonstration of how a farmer may produce a substitute for gasoline from his woodpile.

The mound was built Saturday by three American volunteers for Chinese ambulance service as part of their training for driving vehicles with charcoal in place of gasoline. It was ignited at 5 p. m. For 14 hours it burned under control designed to remove water and resin from the wood and to obtain the carbon content with a minimum of oxidation. At 7 a. m. it was smothered for a 24 hour cooling period.

This morning the earth seal will be broken and the charcoal shoveled into sieves for cleaning and grading. Pieces ranging from ⅜ of an inch to an inch will be poured into a burner on a truck equipped with apparatus to operate on this fuel without gasoline. That's tomorrow's story.

Used Extensively in Europe.

The production of charcoal is a story in itself. Its import will increase in the next year, as America is forced to substitute for gasoline. Europe, with its long experience with petroleum substitutes, is using between 200,000 and 300,000 charcoal burning motor vehicles.

The demonstration was directed by Miss Dorothy E. MacKenzie, president, and George H. Wolfe, vice president of M. and R. Products, Inc. They manufacture gasogene, the charcoal burning attachment, under a lend-lease contract to supply China. Both Americans, they made their first gasogene, also called gas producers, in Rome in 1938. The following year the war drove them to France, where they built another plant in Paris, only to flee with their blueprints two days before the German arrival in June, 1940. They are now manufacturing in the plant of the Kalamazoo [Mich.] Stove and Furnace company.

Center High for Drainage.

As the first stage in building a charcoal kiln, ground was smoothed in a circle 11 feet in diameter. The center was left slightly high to form a drain toward the circumference for dripping resins.

In the center of the circle, a five foot stake was driven as a guide for laying a chimney of crisscross firewood sticks about 15 inches long. Then logs about five feet long and four inches in diameter were laid radiating from the chimney like the spokes of a wheel. Spaces between the spokes were filled with more wood, forming a floor.

Other pieces about two feet long and one to four inches thick were stacked on end, leaning against the chimney. Smaller pieces were used as calking to reduce incidental drafts. With the mound of wood about four feet high, it was covered with mud bound by weeds.

Four Vents in Covering.

Four air vents were poked thru the mud covering at ground level to form a draft under the rough flooring. Then dry grass and kindling were dropped into the chimney, followed by pieces of flaming chips. In a few minutes, smoke was pouring from the mud igloo.

For the next 14 hours this smoke was a guide to the progress of the process. First the column was almost pure white, steam from the water in the wood. Later there was a slight brownish tinge, indicating that resins were evaporating. A final blue tinge indicated that the toasting was completed, and that any farther burning would be at the expense of the charcoal yield.

MAKE NEW MOVE TO GET HELP TO JAP-HELD YANKS

New Mexico Leaders Will See Hull.

Dr. V. H. Spensley, an Albuquerque, N. M., dental surgeon, whose son, Dr. Homer Spensley, died two weeks ago in a Jap prison camp, passed thru Chicago yesterday en route to Washington for a conference with Secretary of State Cordell Hull in an effort to establish a direct route thru Russia for sending food and medical supplies to Japanese-held prisoners.

Accompanying Dr. Spensley were Brig. Gen. Russell C. Charlton, state director of selective service in New Mexico, and Gov. John J. Dempsey's representative, W. B. McCollum.

Fear for 2,000 Men.

Gen. Charlton organized the 200th coast artillery which was in the Philippines at the war's outbreak. More than 2,000 New Mexico boys are now prisoners of war in Japanese prison camps. When the Philippines fell, Dr. Spensley and a group of New Mexicans formed the Bataan Relief organization which today has representative groups in 35 states.

The New Mexico delegation said it had learned that negotiations for the forwarding of supplies to Japanese-held prisoners might be undertaken thru the Russian embassy. This possibility will be discussed with Secretary Hull. The New Mexico Bataan Relief organization has a large fund ready to purchase needed supplies if arrangements can be made, said Dr. Spensley.

Chicagoans Interested, Too.

The outcome of Dr. Spensley's mission to Washington is being awaited with interest by many in Chicago and Maywood who have relatives in Japanese prison camps. Mrs. Lucy Palermo, 10406 South Leavitt street, a former county commissioner, whose son, Dr. Amiel Palermo, is a Japanese prisoner, said yesterday that she will communicate with Dr. Spensley and will form a Bataan Relief organization in Chicago to coöperate in every way to get food and materials to prisoners.

CARRIER BATAAN IS LAUNCHED AS VICTORY SYMBOL

Camden, N. J., Aug. 1 (AP).—Hailed by President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines as a "symbol of the inevitable defeat of Japan," the aircraft carrier Bataan was launched today at the New York Shipbuilding corporation yards.

The Bataan, named for the peninsula where American and Philippine troops fought a gallant, losing battle against the Japanese in the early stages of the war in the Pacific, is the first carrier to bear the name of a campaign of the present war. Carriers customarily are named for famous battles in American history or famous ships of the old navy.

Coast Guard to Observe Its 153d Anniversary

Coast guard day will be observed at stations and aboard vessels of the service on Lake Michigan Wednesday, the 153d anniversary of the founding of the organization. The day has been proclaimed by Mayor Kelly and the observance will be highlighted with the opening of a million dollar bond sale campaign in Grand Haven, Mich., to provide funds for a new cutter to replace the Escanaba, coast guard cutter lost in the Atlantic early this summer. It formerly was in service on the Great Lakes and had many crew members from this area.

OEW DENOUNCED FOR EMPLOYING A 'TOE TWIDDLER'

'It's the Last Straw,' Congressman Says.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1 [Special].—Revelation that the office of economic warfare has employed a ballet dancer as chief of the man power unit of its Asiatic division brought a long distance blast of indignation today from Rep. Harris Ellsworth [R., Ore.].

Ellsworth's wrath was touched off by a photograph of the OEW economic analyst, John Bovingdon, prancing over a grassy meadow in a loin cloth. In his home town of Roseburg, Ore., he seized a telephone to announce to a Washington reporter that he intends to hop a plane for Washington to demand that the Bovingdon photograph be printed in the Congressional Record.

Ellsworth said he had decided to hop a plane because he is "hopping mad."

Will Make Things Hum.

"The minute congress got out of the capital, they appointed a ballet master to a job from which an advocate of nudism had just departed," he fumed. "I am coming to Washington to make things hum."

Informed that illustrations have never appeared in the Congressional Record, Ellsworth snorted:

"Well this picture is going in or I'll know the reason why. I'm going to fight to the last ditch to get it in. The American public has a right to see it and judge for itself. The people ought to know what the New Deal is doing to them.

"Here's a supposedly important job on which the lives of thousands of our soldiers may depend, for all I know, and who do they get to fill it—at $5,600 of the taxpayers' money—a fellow who leaps in the air and twiddles his bare toes. This is much more than the last straw."

Succeeded a Nudist.

Bovingdon is known as the founder of a new school of rhythmic expression thru the ballet, and the job which he took over June 7 in what was then the board of economic warfare is the one vacated under congressional pressure by Maurice Parmelee, advocate of nudism in "office, factory, and home."

Max Ways, immediate superior of Bovingdon in OEW, said Bovingdon had been hired thru civil service. He said he had no power to investigate the appointment.

Frank Peckham, Washington attorney and American Legion official, recalled that the Legion protested in 1933 or 1934 against an appearance by Bovingdon in Washington under the auspices of the Friends of the Soviet Socialist Republics. Bovingdon at that time recited "some beautiful poetry about Russia," he said.

SUBMARINE AND TWO SHIPS SUNK IN NORWAY RAID

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Aug. 1 (AP).—The American Flying Fortress raid on Trondheim July 24 destroyed one large submarine, a 5,000 ton tanker, a 1,500 ton cargo ship and two tugboats, damaged a destroyer, and broke up a banquet of German officers, the Swedish newspaper Jaemlands Tidningen, on the Norwegian border disclosed tonight. Several smaller boats were damaged and 800 persons, including many German officers, killed or injured.

The attack was concentrated on the Nyhamnen submarine yards. Seven factory buildings containing machinery to repair submarines were ruined and the administration and storage buildings destroyed by fire which blazed for two days.

The attack came as the German officers were in the midst of a banquet. When the alarm sounded they thought it was merely another reconnaissance plane and failed to go to the shelters. The dead included some Dutch and Danish workers and 10 Norwegians.

URGES CONTROL OF BRITAIN'S WAR LAWS BY COURTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Members of parliament today renewed agitation for substantial changes in regulation 18-B following the release of Adm. Barry E. Domvile and the reference in the house of commons last week to Capt. A. H. M. Ramsay, Conservative member of parliament, who is still under detention, as "a gallant and loyal officer."

Robert Rankin, Conservative, took the view that the powers held by the government under regulation 18-B "give rise to misgivings, controling as it does the liberties of citizens." He advocated the withdrawal of these powers from the hands of Home Security Minister Herbert Morrison and suggested they be transferred to "a properly constituted legal tribunal."

Regulation 18-B allows the government to hold without public trial members of any organization "which have had associations with the enemy or are subject to foreign influence or control and which may be used for purposes prejudicial to national security."

PREDICTS DOOM OF 'LITTLE MAN' IF TAXES GO UP

George Says Ability to Pay Is Nearing Limit.

Vienna, Ga., Aug. 1 (AP).—Sen. Walter F. George [D., Ga.], chairman of the senate finance committee, warned today that further drastic increases of individual income taxes may destroy the nation's little man, and asserted:

Sen. W. F. George.

"The virility and strength of any civilization depends upon the middle classes. There is no other way to pull together the very poor and the very rich. The middle class is the liaison."

Observing that revenue of the federal government has increased tenfold in the last decade, Sen. George said in an interview at his home that new taxes to be enacted at the forthcoming session of congress may be expected to yield not more than 5 or 6 billion dollars, or scarcely half the administration's estimate of need.

Taking 35 Billion Now.

Federal income now, he said, is approximately 35 billion dollars annually, and new taxes would raise this to possibly 40 billions. The magnitude of the job can be appreciated, he continued, when it is remembered that all federal income, including tariffs, never exceeded 3 or 4 billions annually prior to 1933.

"One of the strong reasons why I believe we cannot greatly increase individual rates in 1943," he explained, "is that, under law, income tax rates must be uniform. Since we have this principle any drastic increase would be overwhelming for those taxpayers with low or moderate fixed incomes, such as wages, salaries, self-owned business, annuities and the like."

Boom Incomes Escape.

Because rates must be uniform, George explained, the government cannot levy a heavier tax on persons with war boomed pay, except as such pay places them in the higher brackets.

"Few people realize it, but the present income tax on persons making $150,000 a year or more is right at 90 per cent. Obviously, we cannot expect to get much more from the relatively few Americans with incomes over $150,000.

"Any large increase must fall on the middle income brackets and down to $2,500 and $3,000.

"When we realize that taxes must be uniform, it is clear that further drastic increase would be backbreaking and destructive to the middle class and to the lower upper class.

"I would be greatly surprised if the ways and means committee of the house undertook to raise any specific sum of additional revenue, and I would be still more surprised if, at the end of the work of the two committees [house and senate], we succeed in raising more than 5 or 6 billions in new revenue.

Must Increase Surtax.

"Some 5 or 6 billions can be raised without destroying our taxpayers.

"In order to get 5 or 6 billions the corporate normal and surtax rate must be raised from 40 to 50 per cent. This is drastic.

"Extension of excise taxes and increase in rates of some items now subject to excise taxes might produce another 1½ billions.

"We will have to get 3 billions in additional revenue, then, from the individual taxpayer. I believe the individual taxpayer can stand an additional 3 to 4 billions without disastrous results, if the tax is an equitably distributed burden. It will be a difficult job."

TYDINGS FINDS FISCAL POLICIES SPUR INFLATION

Urges New Effort to Balance Budget.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—Sen. Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.] charged today that the financial policy of the administration is "contributing to inflation."

Sen. Millard Tydings.

In his regular radio address from Baltimore this afternoon Sen. Tydings asserted that the policy is "running up our national debt beyond 200 billion dollars, and by so doing helping to retard the country's recovery after the war is over."

"This means less jobs and higher taxes in the post-war period," he said. "We know we are not going to have as big a national income after the war is over as our people are enjoying today. We will not be as able to pay taxes after the war as we are today. The larger the national debt, the higher the post-war taxes will be. The higher the post-war taxes, the more difficult it will be for business to function, to expand, to provide jobs not only for returning service men but for the 20 million workers in our war plants as well."

Points Again to Britain.

As in previous Sunday afternoon talks, Sen. Tydings called on national planners to stop seeking so hard to emulate British subsidy programs, and begin copying them in other matters.

"The British and the Canadians realize fully that the lower the national debt is after the war, the easier it will be to provide jobs for their ex-service men and war workers in the post-war period," the Maryland senator said.

Subsidies, Sen. Tydings said, mean expenditures, not revenues, but he quoted figures to show that even with subsidy programs the British government and the Canadians are fighting a more financially solvent war than is this country. [Last week he asserted that lend-lease is paying for British subsidies.]

British Figures Better.

In 1943, he said, the United States' revenue amounted to only 27.6 per cent of its expenditures, while the comparable figures for the British government and the Canadian government are 43.7 per cent and 48.1 per cent, respectively.

In the last 12 years, the Tydings figures show, this nation's revenues were only 40 per cent of expenditures to compare with 62.6 and 60.9 per cent in Canada and England, altho those two nations were engaged in a war more of that time than was the United States.

"We can most fittingly imitate our British and Canadian allies in reducing the inflationary gap by bringing our budget more nearly in balance," Tydings said.

The national income for 1943 will be 148 billion dollars, Tydings said. He placed the federal government's income at 32 billion of that amount, which, he contends, leaves 116 billion dollars as a national income for the people after paying federal taxes. This, he said, is 42 billion dollars more national income than the average for the six years prior to Pearl Harbor.

STEVENS HOTEL BIDS WILL BE TAKEN SEPT. 4

The 3,000 room Stevens hotel, now used by the army air forces, will be offered for public sale Sept. 4, the war department announced yesterday. The property, to be vacated by the air forces on Aug. 15, includes the 12 story Stevens service building, connected with the hotel property by overhead and underground passageways, as well as all hotel furnishings and equipment.

Built in 1927 at a cost estimated in excess of $25,000,000, the 22 story hotel was purchased by the war department a year ago for $5,500,000. It has been used to house men in training for air force assignments.

At the time of the original purchase, certain furnishings were disposed of, but the war department said all rooms now are completely equipped with hotel dressers, chairs, desks, and lamps, and all rooms and hallways are carpeted. The department added that the mechanical plant, coffee shop, and kitchens are equipped for immediate operation. Prospective bidders may inspect the property upon application to the division engineer, Great Lakes division, 332 South Michigan avenue.

CORONER INVESTIGATES DEATH.

A microscopic analysis will be made to determine the cause of the death of Mrs. Leona Olson, 37 years old, 14745 Myrtle avenue, Harvey, in St. James hospital, Chicago Heights. Dr. S. S. Snyder, coroner's physician, said yesterday.

LEARNS HERO SON IS DEAD ON EVE OF MEDAL AWARD

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 1 (AP).—Mrs. Adeline Goss today bought a ticket for Washington, D. C., to receive for her marine son the conspicuous gallantry award conferred upon him by England.

A few hours later she received notification that he had been killed in action.

Her son was Marine Gunner Robert Goss, a veteran of 13 years with the marine corps, who recently was recommended for the congressional medal of honor for cleaning out a nest of seven Japanese at Tulagi. The marines had tossed an explosive into the nest, the Japs tossed it back at them, and Goss was wounded. Despite that, he singlehandedly cleaned up the nest, killing all of the enemy.

British Ambassador Halifax had arranged to present the decoration to Mrs. Goss at the British embassy next Saturday.

PHOTOGRAPHIC EQUIPMENT STOLEN.

Photographic equipment valued at $300 was taken from the Aristo studio, 528 South Halsted street, by burglars who entered thru a skylight yesterday, the owner, Peter Manferdi, reported to police.

DOUGLAS DELIVERS
first C-54 Skymaster for CHICAGO DEDICATION

"FLY IN JULY"—that slogan inspired us all at Douglas. But it was more than a slogan—it was a pledge to our men on fighting fronts everywhere to deliver C-54 Skymaster Combat Transports in quantity, on time.

The first C-54 has been delivered to our Army Air Forces even before completion of the factory in which it was built! Its four deep-throated engines roar defiance to the Axis as we now dedicate the Douglas Chicago Plant at Douglas Field.

Largest all-wood structure in existence and greatest factory devoted to the exclusive production of transport airplanes, the Douglas Chicago Plant is destined to supply the air transports that will speed our final victory—and will produce and service the transport airplanes that will eventually call at Chicago (future cross-roads of the world) from every point on the globe.

Thus will loyal and diligent Douglas men and women at Chicago make a major contribution to Victory—and have a rendezvous with a brave new world that must depend on air transport to maintain lasting peace.

Amount of Loan	$100	$200	$300
	Total Costs
A typical loan plan	20.84	39.52	57.12
At Merchandise Bank	5.50	11.00	16.50
YOU SAVE	$15.34	$28.52	$40.62

*Savings shown apply to co-maker loans repaid in 12 monthly instalments. If on your signature alone, savings are somewhat less, but in any case are at least half the cost of the typical loan plan.

Don't make the mistake of thinking an interest rate of 3% per month gives you a cost of $3 per year for a $100 loan. Figure it out yourself this quick, easy way.

Take as an example, a $100 loan to be repaid in 12 monthly instalments of $10.07 each (a typical loan plan). In 12 months you pay back $120.84. But you borrowed only $100. Therefore, the difference—$20.84—is the cost of your loan.

BANK RATES LESS COSTLY

On your signature only, the cost is only $8.00 at Merchandise Bank—a savings of $12.84. With one co-maker, the cost is still less—only $5.50. By either plan you save nearly enough to make two monthly payments . . . and the payments are less.

You don't have to take time off your job to apply for a loan here. Complete arrangements made by phone or mail.

OUTPUT OF ARMY PLANES EXCEEDS TOTAL FOR AXIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—On the 34th anniversary of the purchase of the first army airplane, the war department today announced American factories are delivering more planes to the army air forces every day than are produced by all the axis nations.

American aircraft production averages more than 7,000 planes a month, it reported, and production charts call for a steady increase during the next year.

Altho details of plane distribution among lend-lease recipients and the army and the navy have not been made public, the war department estimated the army air forces receive 4,500 or more planes each month.

In 1941 a total of 16,651 planes was accepted by the army. Plane production zoomed with the attack on Pearl Harbor and from Jan. 1, 1942, to July 1, 1943, a total of 73,132 planes was delivered to the army.

The war department estimates total axis production does not exceed 4,000 planes a month, as follows: Germany, 2,200; Japan, 1,200, and Italy, 600.

The war department also said that England and Russia together produced more planes than the plants of the axis.

It was 34 years ago that the army signal corps division of aeronautics, which was one day past its second birthday, bought the first army airplane. There was $25,000 appropriated for its purchase.

Here's what it bought: The latest 1909 model Wright Brothers' CI-plane. It had a wing span of 48 feet 6½ inches, was powered with a 4 cylinder 28 horse power engine, and flew at a speed of 32 miles an hour. The plane weighed 826 pounds and could stay in the air two hours and 19 minutes.

Not until 1912 did the army's budget provide for more aircraft. Then $125,000 was allocated.

The war department reported that now it is spending more than 20 million dollars a day for planes. The 23 billion dollars that is ear-marked for the army air forces in the fiscal year 1944 compares with the overall military costs of between 20 billions and 31 billions for the World war. Of this approximately 503 millions went for airplanes, engines, and parts.

Up to June 30, 1943, allotments to the army air forces totaled 40 billian dollars in the present war.

Powerful 'Shots' of Heat Do the Trick.

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 1.—Radio nails, which are needle-shaped shots of radio power that substitute for real nails and staples to pin together stacked sheets of plywood, were demonstrated at the new RCA laboratory here this week-end.

With consent of the war department, the laboratory was opened to the press for the first time since it began operations last September. The showing was confined to new industrial uses of radio.

The radio nails were one of numerous discoveries in a new field called radio power. Actually this power is intense heat, generated by high frequency, or short wave radio.

Saves Time, Expense.

Radio nailing is a time and expense saver in assembly of plywood for both military and industrial uses. Plywood is made of thin sheets of wood, coated with plastic glue, which binds them permanently under heat and pressure.

During assembly, pre-formed plywood sheets have to be stacked like cards. This required pinning them together to prevent slipping out of line. Pinning has been done usually by running staples or nails thru pre-formed holes in the wooden sheets. After the plywood has been pressed into final form, staples must be removed and holes filled.

Heat Produces Nails.

The radio nail requires no holes. The intense heat almost instantly heats the glue in the narrow path of the beam to several hundred degrees Fahrenheit. This produces spots of glue between the sheets that hold like pins.

The radio nailer is a small, fat barreled pistol. The operator presses its point against the top layer of wood wherever he wants a nail. The pistol has a trigger, and when he pulls it a measured shot of radio power drives thru the wood to the bottom of the stack.

In final forming of plywood the heating by usual methods frequently takes many hours. Radio power now does this in a few minutes.

Heat Is Uniform.

The radio heat forms inside the wood. The unique fact is that this heat is uniform everywhere and simultaneous. Similar heating is done to any material which is not a good conductor of electricity.

Food is usually such a material. Many experiments in radio cooking are under way here. Marshmallows toast in three seconds. Almost any food can be cooked by radio much faster than on or in a stove.

But the scientists here believe the public is not going to care much for radio cooked food. For the radio only boils the food. The boiling comes from the internal water and juices. Boiling alone fails to bring out many desired flavors. The marshmallows, for example, taste flat, because they don't brown.

For metals, which conduct electricity, radio power works equal miracles, but on an entirely different heating principle. The radio current flows only over the surface and not thru the metal. But it can be controled in split seconds and in intensities that place the heat to any hundredths of an inch depth desired, or all the way down thru the metal.

ARMY-TRIBUNE WAR SHOW ENDS, PRAISED BY ALL

392,887 View Exhibit; Guns Go to Front.

Chicago's ordnance show, which attracted 392,887 visitors during its six week run in Tribune square, closed last night, acclaimed by fighting men and civilians as a war time stimulant.

The score of exhibits, weighing in the tons and costing several hundred thousand dollars, will be sent to ordnance depots, checked and then continue to fighting fronts, the ordnance department said. Two sections of a B-26 Martin Marauder bomber will be sent to an assembly plant, where they will go on the production line which turns out completed planes.

Extended for Two Weeks.

Show attendance reached a peak of 24,021 on July 5. Because visitors were still coming at the rate of more than 8,000 daily after one month, the show was extended two weeks.

Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, chief of the Chicago ordnance district, said the show had been a great benefit to midwesterners, spurring workmen to new efforts, showing relatives of fighting men how their soldiers are equipped with the world's finest guns, tanks and planes, and helping visiting soldiers grasp the ordnance picture.

Gen. Hammond's praise was backed up by visitors from many walks of life. A. J. Eberhardy, international representative of the Blacksmiths' union [AFL.], said that danger of slumping war production would be averted if all war workers could have visited the show and seen some of the completed products they help make.

Farmer Learns of Guns.

A soldier's father, an Iowa farmer, said his tour taught him about guns "so I can talk intelligently with my boy when he comes home." Lt. Ruth Straub, a nurse who was evacuated from Corregidor by submarine, found the show a stimulant to morale. A group of nuns examined the weapons on display, then added their praise for the exhibit.

Thru the show, the ordnance department encouraged engineers and others who are mechanically minded to try to improve the thousands of small parts that go into the equipment. During the show, 2,400 engineers participated in special tours.

The show was sponsored jointly by the ordnance department of the army service forces and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Janni, Liberal Journalist, Edits Milan Newspaper

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Ettore Janni, described as a "liberal" writer and journalist, became editor yesterday of the Milan newspaper "Corriere Della Sera," the Rome radio reported. The broadcast said Janni was one of the foremost members of the same paper's staff before rallying to the Fascist regime in 1925.

IS BALDNESS A SIGN OF INTELLIGENCE?

Some people say that this is a sign of intelligence, but it is not. Conditions today put a premium on personal appearance, and if this man were really intelligent, he would find out why he is losing his hair, by seeking expert advice. Baldness today is more apt to be judged by one's friends and the world about him as a sign of negligence and carelessness. At least 80% of all premature baldness is due to local scalp conditions which can be corrected and checked if caught in time. Thousands of men have saved and improved their hair through treatment by John E. Warner and Associates, leading hair and scalp specialists, and hundreds of others have been rejected because benefits were not certain. There is no charge for a private consultation and examination, and if your case is accepted for treatment you can be sure of saving and improving your hair.

Examination and treatment are given in strictest privacy. FEES FOR TREATMENT ARE VERY MODERATE AND ARE PAYABLE AS THE TREATMENTS ARE TAKEN. There is a separate department for women.

So now, more than ever, ask yourself:

IS MY TRIP NECESSARY?

If the answer is "yes"... please remember that you may have to stand

Travel is almost 4 TIMES as heavy as in 1939, yet the railroads have nowhere near the equipment to accommodate it comfortably that they had in that year.

That is because half the Pullmans—and at least a third the coaches—are now on the go day and night moving troops.

So if travel is not all that you or we would like it to be, please bear in mind that never before in railroad history has so little equipment had to serve so many. If there's no Pullman space available, take the coach. If all coach seats are occupied you'll have to stand.

To make things easier for yourself—and for the railroads—the suggestion is made that whenever it is necessary for you to travel, try to plan your trip for days of the week when travel is not quite so heavy. As a rule, these days are Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday. Above all, avoid weekends—that's when furlough travel is exceptionally heavy.

Your thoughtfulness will help us do our best for all who must travel, while keeping the wheels turning for Uncle Sam—our No. 1 job

DISNEY EXPOSES PROPAGANDA IN FILMS FOR U. S.

Admits He Makes Them, but Begrudgingly.

(Marcia Winn of The Tribune staff went to Hollywood to see what was happening there. The following article is the ninth of a series.)

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 1. — Walt Disney is doing one of the most superb war jobs of the film industry. Even those who envy his success, and they are legion, admit this.

It is both difficult and impossible for the cut-throat trusts of the film industry to embroil Disney in their perennial intrigue and collusion. He remains as honestly aloof and apart from them as his animated drawings from their shadows and substance.

Disney is one of the few frank men in Hollywood. He candidly, calmly, and with a measure of annoyance at the truth of his words, says he has made and is making propaganda films. He doesn't like the idea, but he makes them. He has been asked to.

"Sure It's Propaganda."

Others inject specious half truths, historical distortions, and political venom into their films and call it patriotism. "No propaganda there," they will say triumphantly. Disney waves a hand and flatly says of much of his own work, "Sure it's propaganda." In this some of his subordinates disagree. "He may call them propaganda films," they say. "We don't."

Disney should know.

Ninety-two per cent of the Disney output now is for governmental agencies. Much of it is confidential and restricted work, training films for the army and navy. This is executed in closely guarded upper stories of the long, low, air conditioned studios down in the San Fernando valley. Here work goes on 24 hours a day.

With that rather dull paragraph, the subject of Disney's actual war work might be dropped, but actually it gives no idea of the true picture. This may be gained only when you realize that in a normal year the Disney studios produce a total of around 30,000 feet of film. That is infinitesimal as far as footage goes, but it includes the annual short subject program [Donald Duck and all his rowdy playmates] and possibly two features ["Snow White"].

Makes Films at Cost.

In the last 10 months the studios have turned out almost 250,000 feet of film in training films alone. This is at the rate of 25 to 30 thousand feet a month, a year's output. Disney has had to devise methods of getting it out, and of circumventing cost, for he makes the films at cost ["They offered us 7 per cent profit, but think I'm going to let anyone say after this war—'Yah! Sure Disney's doing all right! He ought to, the way he cleaned up on films! And what is 7 per cent profit on a million dollar film anyway?"] And always there is the hammer-hammer-hammer of haste, haste, haste.

"Everybody fights about priority," Disney said, rubbing a weary hand across his forehead. "The navy says, 'We come first!' And the army says, 'No, we do!' They ask for the moon, and they want it tomorrow, and somehow we give it to them. I don't know just how, either."

100 Pilots Aid in Work.

Only two of these training films, each a 30,000 foot production for the navy, may be discussed. One, "Aerology," not quite finished, is being made for the bureau or aeronautics and is a combination of meteorological and practical flying conditions. As far as weather goes, it will be a visual Bible for fighter pilots.

Here the genius of Disney, transplanted to hitherto alien soil, may be seen graphically, for here are analyzed vividly and unforgettably fog, lightning, rain, thunder storms, cold front, hot front, what happens inside them, how to avoid them and handle them. In the film's making, Disney artists, 24 of whom are pilots themselves, have gone far beyond the textbook. More than 100 pilots from battlefronts all over the world have been at the studio collating their experiences with weather.

Teaches Nautical Pilots.

The other, a 24,000 foot film, is "Rules of the Nautical Road," and teaches nautical pilots what to do on high or inland seas. It points out that in peace time America suffers a $150,000,000 shipping loss occasioned by lack of knowledge of rudimentary rules of the road and shows that the Halifax and other disasters of the last war were caused by misinterpretation of signals.

The audience for these naturally is rigidly restricted in contradistinction to the work Disney has been doing for Nelson Rockefeller's office of coördinator of inter-American affairs [known as CIAA]. For these the audience cannot be wide enough, for their sole purpose is to engender good will between the continents of North and South America. This good will is to come thru the great common denominator, that in which Disney specializes, a laugh.

A year ago, the CIAA financed a South American expedition on which Disney and his crew gathered material for "Saludos Amigos," a 42 minute feature about a silly Brazilian parrot, José Carioca. José now is a leading man on both continents and did more business in South America than that leading lady of all time, "Snow White." The CIAA offered to underwrite Disney against loss on José, but there will be none. Moreover, he gathered enough material for four or five new features, the first of which, "Let's Go Latin," a 60 minute nonsensical film about a Mexican rooster, will come out this year.

Separate Sound Trucks.

These, as well as four shorts Disney made for the CIAA, have separate English, Spanish, and Portuguese sound tracks. Disney frankly calls the four shorts propaganda. One, "The Winged Scourge," deals with malaria and shows the anopheles mosquito as public enemy No. 1. Another, "The Grain That Built a Hemisphere," magnificently done, is the story of corn. The third, "Water: Friend or Enemy," deals with water pollution, and the fourth, "Defense Against Invasion," with vaccination. All employ the animated cartoon technique in color.

"These go to a free market," Disney explained. "They reach a tremendous audience. The army is even using the malaria one all over the world, showing it to natives to get them to coöperate. We use the seven dwarfs in it [the dwarfs of "Snow White"] to get an appeal to children because in those countries the children affect the adults.

"Corn is a propaganda thing for South America to let them know we give them credit for something. It starts with the Incas and shows how corn is used for blood injections, plastics, gasoline, everything. Its only propaganda value is from that point—to give them a little credit.

"I have made several types of propaganda. I made the out and out kind, and then I made 'Der Fuehrer's Face,' which was poking fun at them.

"We worked with the people in Washington, We were asked to do it. They have definite reasons.

"I made one propaganda film called 'Rumors' based on Chicken Little and the sky falling. That's the wrong type of thing for us to do. I made another, 'Education for Death' based on Gregor Ziemer's book ['Education for Death: The Making of a Nazi']. It's wrong, all wrong. We got too serious, too vicious. We started out with fairy tales and then — bam! — we went serious, and that was wrong.

Working on Better One.

["Education for Death" portrays a Nazi boy, Hans, from childhood to adulthood. It begins as Hans' mother tells him the legend of Sleeping Beauty. In this the ugly witch is democracy, the buxom Brunhilde flopping about in bed with a beer bottle is Germany, and the prince who rescues her is Hitler. Hans is trained on legends such as this. In school he learns to distort history, to lie, to hate, to kill. Later he is a marching automaton. Later he is a white cross.]

"We are doing one now, 'Reason and Emotion'," Disney continued, "which I think is much better. That's propaganda, but it's all right. It could be propaganda for a lot of things—propaganda for thinking.

["Reason and Emotion" shows the human mind as an automobile with reason at the wheel and emotion in the back seat. Emotion struggles to obtain control of the wheel, and often does, with dire results. At one point, emotion begins to talk and says "A friend of mine said——" and repeats various rumors. "Taking all our food and sending it to Europe," the voice continues rising to a shrieking crescendo, "while we starve to death, starve to death, starve to death . . ." Eventually it portrays Hitler controling thru fear and hate.]

Story of Tax Film.

"When war was declared," Disney went on, "we got all fired up. They came to us. I found that some were thinking right. Some were all mixed up.

"I did that tax thing ['The New Spirit'], a short about the income tax. That was the first thing. They had a problem. All the noise about bonds, and people thought that was the only way to contribute. The treasury department wanted to make people conscious it is taxes that really support the war. They called me Dec. 17 [1941]. I had the film in production the next day and finished a month later. Normally it would require six months.

"I had to distribute it before March 15. To do that, I couldn't release it as a short subject, so they paid production costs, and the theaters ran it free. We reached an audience of about 30 million in six weeks.

"The treasury had Gallup make a poll to find out if the film helped. It surprised me. I didn't think people would admit a little film influenced them, but many said the film made them feel taxes were very important."

Assails "Mission to Moscow."

[The film, reissued this year under the title, "The Spirit of '43" shows Donald Duck singing and yapping, "Aw, what's the hurry?" when a radio voice asks him to pay his taxes. Then he sees sequences of men marching, tanks, planes, swastikas flying. He goes right to work to fill out the simplified return. The film ends with Donald singing "The New Yankee Doodle Spirit" and mention of the four freedoms.]

"I think it is the best example of propaganda films," Disney concluded. "It is propaganda for taxes, which is really a tough subject."

Disney was the only Hollywood producer to say what he thinks of "Mission to Moscow." The others hemmed and hawed and went off the record. Disney termed it indecent and outrageous falsification. "It just makes me so darn mad!" he said.

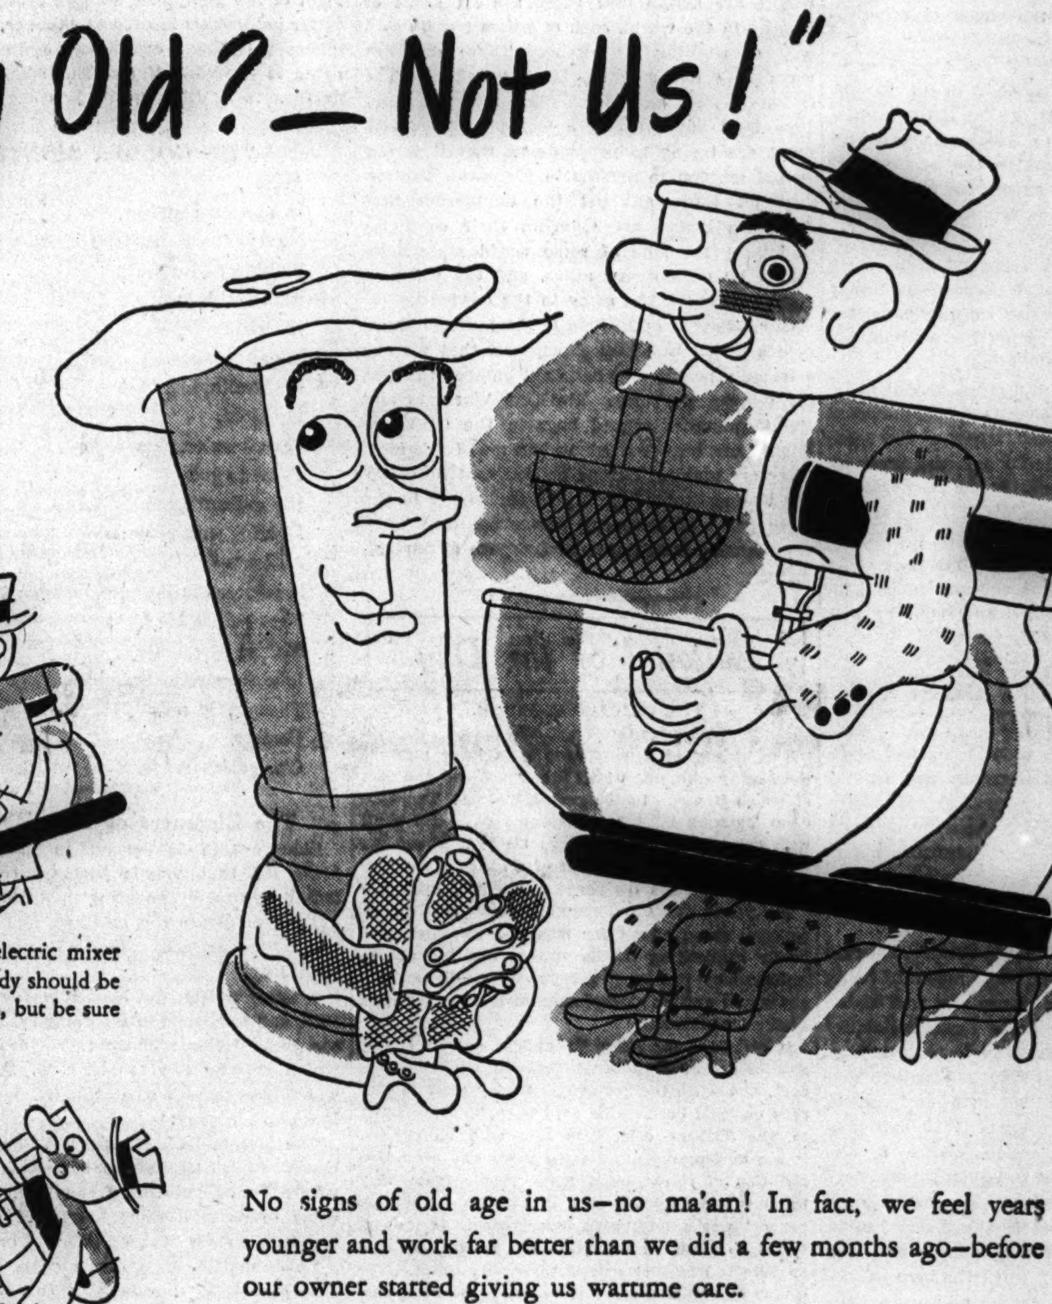
TIPS ON THE CARE OF ELECTRIC MIXERS AND LIQUEFIERS

"Getting Old?—Not Us!"



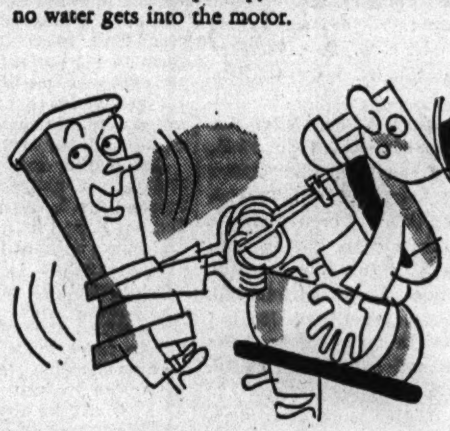
Spic 'n' span—Keeping your electric mixer clean is most important. The body should be washed with a damp, soapy cloth, but be sure no water gets into the motor.

The beaters and other attachments should be detached immediately after using, and washed in warm water. For oiling the motor and attachments follow manufacturer's instructions.

No signs of old age in us—no ma'am! In fact, we feel years younger and work far better than we did a few months ago—before our owner started giving us wartime care.

Now we're treated like kings and we show it. Our appearance is improved a hundred per cent and we work as smooth and easy as new appliances.

You know it would be a good idea for you to give your electric mixer and liquefier this care, too. Here, we'll show you exactly what to do.



No Turkish bath is necessary for your liquefier. Simply wash the glass container in warm water as you do your glassware. And wipe the chrome surface with a damp cloth.

Save the blades by cleaning them as soon as you are finished using the liquefier. And every few months apply a little vaseline or lubricating grease to the drive shaft.

Watch those "yanks"—When you pull out the cord, take a firm grasp on the plug and pull it out—quick. Never yank the plug from the outlet by using the cord as a handle.

Electricity has gone to war—don't waste it!

PEACE BY BOMBERS?

A good many people have been saying of late that the problem of policing the world after the war will be a relatively easy one. For one thing, Italy, Germany, Japan, and their satellites will have been disarmed. That will leave only the United States, Britain, and Russia in possession of the kind of military equipment needed to maintain whatever settlements may be made. In this reckoning, France will play no important part because her army and fleet have been disrupted and her arms scattered or destroyed; and China can also be left out of consideration because for many years she will lack the industrial plant required to equip a force capable of bringing pressure beyond her borders.

Airplanes, it is said, are an ideal instrument for policing. Great fleets of bombers strategically placed about the world will maintain order by threatening any nation which shows aggressive tendencies with the destruction of its factories, its communications, and its cities.

The plan is advertised as a cheap and easy way to maintain peace and as a modern version of the sea power by means of which Britain is supposed to have kept the world in order in the 19th century.

There are some important considerations in connection with the plan that ought not be overlooked. One of them is that if the plan is to be made acceptable to Americans, the burden will fall chiefly upon the United States if we may judge from the experience of this war in which we have become the world's arsenal. Moreover, we alone have developed the type of long range bomber that is regarded as desirable for the policing job. If we encourage other nations to build similar ships we may endanger our own national safety by putting weapons for our own destruction in their hands.

Americans should and will reject any arrangement that reduces this country to helplessness against attack from abroad, whether the force that threatens us is called a national army or an international air police. If the New Dealers seriously propose that we allow an international force to obtain the strength to coerce the United States, the country will know that its leaders have despaired of imposing collectivism and internationalism on the American people by persuasion and have turned to force.

MEN THE ARMY DOESN'T NEED.

The army is constantly redesigning and revising America's production of armaments. Quotas of guns, tanks, shells, and even airplanes change from day to day as need for them appears and disappears. Newly completed munitions plants are abandoned. Factories are switched from production of one kind of fighting material to another.

Meanwhile, men in their late thirties, married and some of them with children, are still being drafted. They are men whose age and whose burdens in civilian life make them a liability to the army, but they continue to be called up.

The war department convinced congress that we needed 10 to 12 million men under arms during the first year of the war. The axis then was sweeping all opposition before it and Japan's military machine was racing southward thru the Pacific unchecked. It was assumed that the great armies of England and Russia, so sorely beset then, might collapse and that America would have to furnish the men as well as the guns to win the war on all fronts, without allies.

But the tide has long since turned. We invaded Africa and drove the Germans out. Italy, the number two axis partner, has collapsed. Russia is not only unbeaten but is rolling the latest German offensive back. The President says the war of attrition is working against Japan.

The British still have their big army and they are pledged to the war against Japan—if Hitler goes down first. Even if we have to go the rest of the way against Japan alone, our communication and supply lines cannot support 8 or 10 million men across the Pacific, or anywhere near that number.

The war department should have revised its man power demands long ago, but it is not too late to do it now. The age limit should be rolled back and over-age men released as rapidly as possible.

When we have enough shells, the army stops ordering them. The army should show the same good sense in requisitioning men.

COFFEE IN THE BAG.

Mr. Roosevelt, with something of the air of a prince distributing largesse to his humble and perhaps hungry following, has announced the end of coffee rationing.

That's fine and no doubt everybody is pleased. It was unkind of the Reader's Digest almost at the moment that Mr. Roosevelt was making his announcement to publish an article by Mr. Henry J. Taylor who suggests among other things that there never was need for rationing coffee. Mr. Taylor says the burocrats had assigned quotas to the coffee exporting countries. It frequently happened that a ship would unload in a Latin American port where warehouses were bulging with coffee bags, but if that country's quota had been taken the ship returned to this country in ballast. The desire of the American people for an adequate supply of coffee was deemed a secondary consideration. The burocrats were concerned primarily to maintain the sanctity of their precious quotas.

The statement is plausible and recalls the complaint made by a coffee importer about the time the rationing was instituted. He said there was a good deal of coffee available in Mexico and it could be brought to this country by rail if minor price adjustments were permitted. They weren't authorized and in consequence the coffee stayed in Mexico.

Mr. Ickes is now talking about reducing gasoline rations in the middle west. Before the step is taken there should be a much clearer showing than has yet been made of the inability of the oil industry to supply the people of this region now that somewhat larger quantities are to be sent east. The question arises whether the administration may not be planning to withhold available supplies now with a view to removing the restrictions a few months hence when the voters may need mollifying.

MAKE THE WELCOME LAST.

American troops entering North Africa found themselves cheered by the French inhabitants whose land they were invading. The Yanks received a similar welcome from the Sicilians. The same reasons that won friendship in North Africa and Sicily will operate to open their path in any other European country that they may enter.

The melting pot must be given some credit. However tiny the country or province into which our men march, it has its sons or grandsons in the army of liberation. There are few villages that do not have an innkeeper, farmer, or merchant who came to this land of opportunity, saved a competence, and returned to his birthplace [as he then thought] to enjoy it.

But even more important than these racial ties is the faith of all European peoples that when the Americans march in they are coming to do a necessary job, but not to stay. The British soldier in occupied territory is just as friendly to its people as the American. But while they may have no reason to dislike the British soldier, they have no reason to trust his diplomats. As for the Russians, no amount of elation at Hitler's catastrophes in that country blinds the enslaved peoples of Europe to the knowledge that communism, whether home grown or imported on the Russian soldier's bayonet, is as bloody a tyranny as Hitler's.

The friendship that we command is worth many divisions to us in any European campaigns in which we may engage. Its value is not military alone. It will continue to accrue to us after the war, if we do not destroy it.

Because of their varied origins the American people are aware that there are all kinds of peoples in the world, each of whom has its own way of running its affairs. These different ways may not suit us, but suit them. The Union Nowers and Mr. Willkie and the other New Deal advocates of a world super-government are trying to persuade us that it is our sacred mission to meddle in European politics. Just let Europeans get the impression that American troops are entering their countries to impose the rule of some world state dominated by us and our allies, and the welcome signs will be tucked away in the cowbarn.

Our strength in Europe is the average European's belief, based on experience, that we are a friendly people who have not entered the war for ulterior purposes. The One Worlders and the Communist errand boys in the OWI are doing their best to disabuse Europe of this idea. They are making Europe believe that hereafter the United States is going to participate in the dirty game of European power politics. They are planting land mines in the path of our soldiers.

Editorial of the Day

[Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock.]

The history of a newspaper is in large measure the history of events which it has recorded and part of which it was. In the period 1847-1865 THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE lived in memorable days and dealt with great events in America's history. These are the years covered in the first of a series of volumes which are to mark the paper's centennial in 1947.

The young CHICAGO TRIBUNE, fighting strong competition, going all-out for men and measures, and boldly challenging hostile forces, was brought to eminence by two great factors—its excellence as a newspaper and its championing of causes that were destined to triumph.

It embraced the rising Republican party. It was sponsor and advocate of Abraham Lincoln for President, and when the Springfield lawyer came to Chicago on legal business he used to "climb the stairs to The Tribune office" to talk with its editors. It was uncompromising for the Union and demanded abolition of slavery—and many people today may be surprised to know that in Chicago "Abolition paper" was a term used in reproach. It was inspired to hitch its wagon to the military star of an Illinois brigadier named Ulysses S. Grant. The course of events enabled it to enjoy the most substantial journalistic satisfaction and gain increasing prestige—and greater circulation. In vulgate, it picked winners: a new political party, a President, a general who ended a great war, an indivisible America, an epochal social and political issue and that foreordained metropolis of the west—Chicago itself.

From the hands of its founders THE TRIBUNE came in the hands of such men as Joseph Medill, John Locke Scripps, Charles H. Ray, and Horace White. They had exceptional newspaper ability and there were great missions to give them inspiration and call forth the fullness of their powers. In Joseph Medill, who had come from Cleveland in 1855, THE TRIBUNE had a man who was to become its soul and sword.

"The Chicago Tribune: Its First Hundred Years" is by Philip Kinsley of The Tribune staff. In volumes that are to come more history will be told from the background of a newspaper in the thick of it all, along with the story of progress from 400 copies a day to more than a million a day.

FRUITS OF THE FIELD.

Listed in a government bulletin: Loganberries, boysenberries, johnsonberries, youngberries, olympic berries. We have met all of them except the olympic berry on the restaurant pie front, and have frequently asked about their origins and family trees, to receive only the answers that waiters and maitres d'hotel give when examined in botany. They seem to be much alike, especially in the vague and mushy quality that is characteristic of hybrids.

* * *

So we tried to find them in the unabridged Webster of 1940. The only berry on the list with dictionary prestige is the loganberry, thus described:

Named after Judge J. H. Logan, who found it in 1881. It is a red-fruited, upright-growing dewberry, variously regarded as a variant of the western dewberry or as a hybrid between it and the red raspberry.

* * *

The munching of kohlrabi on the war garden front has brought up the question: To be or not to be cooked and served with its greens. A brand new cook book favors combination with the greens in its only kohlrabi recipe. Veteran home-cookers say that the greens should be omitted because they are coarse and strong.

* * *

To settle the matter we had a batch of the greens cooked separately, with ample strips of bacon to add that old southern touch. At the first mouthful the dish resembled horse food, but the stuff got better as we chewed. We polished off a large dish and felt our vitamins improving every minute.

* * *

The turnipy part of the kohlrabi plant, meanwhile, has become our favorite vegetable, especially when served with a cream sauce. Incidentally, it is not a root or a fruit, but an enlargement of the plant's stem above ground. The peculiar kohlrabi is related to cabbage, kale, Brussels sprouts, savoy, cauliflower, and broccoli. The name is German; if any English form of the name were in use it would be cole-rape.

THE GOLDEN MONTH.

August,
In aureate grandeur,
Surveys the treasures of his vast domain;
Waiting to scatter
With lavish hand
His riches
For all to share.
His wealth, like Midas',
Is untold,
For all he touches
Turns to gold.
His radiant figure,
Lighting with gladness
All around,
Is mirrored in the placid brook
That bathes his feet;
Making it sparkle
Like the stream Pactolus
That gently rolls
Forever
O'er golden sands. Shandy Gaff.

The Bloomers of Mrs. Bloomer.

Shandy Gaff is correct in his assumption [July 13] that Amelia Bloomer revolutionized ladies' apparel by adopting pantaloons. But she did not originate the costume, and the date of adoption seems to have been a few months earlier than July.

A letter written by Mrs. Bloomer on Aug. 21, 1889, and published in the January, 1890, issue of the Ladies' Home Journal provides some facts which may be new to Mr. Gaff. Mrs. Bloomer was 72 years of age when this letter was written. It follows in part:

"In March, 1851, Elizabeth Miller visited her cousin, Elizabeth Stanton, at Seneca Falls, N. Y., where I was publishing the Lily. Mrs. Miller came to us in a short skirt and full Turkish trousers, a style of dress she had been wearing.

"The matter of woman's dress having been just previously discussed in the Lily led Mrs. Stanton to adopt the style, and I soon followed. In the next issue of my paper [April, 1851], I announced to my readers that I had donned the style, to which their attention had been called.

"The New York Tribune noticed my article and made it known to its thousands of readers. From this it went from paper to paper thruout the country. I was praised and censured, glorified and ridiculed, until I stood in amazement at the furor I had wrought by my pen.

"I never called it the 'bloomer costume.' With me, it was always the short dress and trousers. I was not its originator, but adopted the style and made it known to the public. The press did the rest." Hig.

TO ONE OVERSEAS.

Remember when the moon climbed up the sky
It seemed a path inviting us to try
To walk upon the quiet, deep blue lake.

Remember when we danced in Reynolds' club,
And went to Blackfriars' shows in Mandell hall,
Where you were leading lady, and the hub
Of the whole cast, and ranking tops of all!

Remember when you said, "Not now, dear love,
But when I come again, so wear my ring
Set with my pin, to keep, my love to prove." . . .
And tho in loneliness my heart will sing!
For I remember all you said, and are,
And time and distance are to faith no bar!

Between One Bookend and the Other.

The two bookends met for the first time since they were lifted out of the beribboned holiday box and placed on the library table.

"To whom do we owe this unexpected meeting?" asked bookend No. 1.

Bookend No. 2 replied: "There is no gas in the tank of the old car, the bicycle has bent spokes and there's no mechanic to fix it, the scooter lost a wheel and you can't buy one, grandpa has lost the rubber tip off his cane and can't replace it, you can't squeeze into a streetcar with a shoehorn, the buses have nothing but skip stops, and nobody invites you to dinner due to rationing. So the whole family sits on the porch and reads books." Maxellus.

ROUSING THE DEFENSE FORCES WITH FEVER.

A HIGH temperature is a sign of trouble. Whenever the tissues become overheated it means that they are resenting an attack on the part of an enemy.

It may well be that they are trying to make it so uncomfortable for the invader that he will retreat. On the other hand, the very exhibition of surplus energy [heat] may enable the cells to manufacture antitoxin more readily than otherwise.

Fever does something to the system. Metabolism is increased and, as a rule, the heart will beat faster and the breathing will be more rapid. Since it involves the expenditure of energy, weakness and wasting will ensue should it continue for a long time. Not infrequently the shorter and sharper the bout the more speedy will be recovery.

But occasionally it brings compensations. Most of us can recall friends who achieved freedom from a chronic ailment following a severe attack of flu when the thermometer mounted. Stubborn skin maladies may give way at such a time, never to reappear. Many a siege of St. Vitus' dance has faded abruptly subsequent to measles.

Recognizing this tendency, physicians have employed fever as a healer. In other words, they have deliberately created a situation which will put the vital organs on the alert. Thus vaccines [including typhoid] have been utilized to combat arthritis, or certain diseases of the eyes which have proved resistant to other measures. Stubborn cases of undulant fever have responded so satisfactorily that we now look upon this therapy as applicable when other remedies fail.

Several years ago malaria parasites were introduced into the blood of individuals suffering from syphilis of the nervous system. The results more than justified the experiment. It was then reasoned that perhaps toxic substances could be replaced by raising the temperature artificially. Electric blankets were devised and, later a special cabinet insured perfect control. The apparatus is so designed that the height of the mercury is known at all times and the subject can be observed constantly.

Reliable reports indicate that 70 per cent of the dementias due to syphilis, when treated either by malaria or physical agents, will show marked improvement. But one course may not suffice. Repetition may be required at intervals.

In a naval hospital in Philadelphia over 1,000 fever treatments were given to 173 patients. Eighty-seven per cent of cases of gonorrhea that did not yield to other procedures were cured. In those suffering from syphilis, 71 per cent were benefited.

But neither method is foolproof. We cannot deliberately raise the internal fire to between 106 and 107 degrees F. and hold it there for several hours without taking every precaution against collapse. Furthermore, every patient cannot withstand the regime. Those who are older, with brittle blood vessels, may fail to react favorably. When the plan is feasible, however, defense forces are reawakened and many a disorder will be put to rout.

PLEURAL REGION.

M. C. writes: What is meant by pleurisy in the shoulder and back?

REPLY.

Pleurisy is inflammation of one or both walls of the sac which houses the lungs. Pain may be experienced in any part of the chest cavity, including the shoulder and back. It usually is increased on taking a deep breath.

MAY BE NEEDED.

R. Y. writes: Is an operation necessary if mastoid symptoms continue to occur?

REPLY.

The use of the sulfonamides has reduced greatly the necessity for mastoid surgery. Recurring attacks, however, may demand drainage. The condition should not be allowed to hang on as extension to the brain is a possibility.

SHOULD NOT RECUR.

Mrs. W. M. writes: After an abdominal operation I suffered from phlebitis. Now I am faced with surgery again, and wonder if I will have another siege.

REPLY.

Inflammation of a vein [phlebitis] is usually the result of an infection. The chances are that you will encounter no trouble.

ARTERY OF THE HEART.

M. G. writes: What is aortic disease?

REPLY.

Trouble with the main "pipe" which receives the blood from the heart. Its walls may undergo degeneration due to inflammation.

Thoughts on Taxes.

"I look at that check of mine now," the girl was saying as she detailed her income tax, war bond, and social security deductions, "and I feel like that one-third of the nation. I have to sit down when I open the envelope. I can't take it standing up."

Rana Guppyi.

A new war song, "Bullfrogs and Marines," will be introduced over the air tonight, the first anniversary of the marine landing on Guadalcanal. In case you don't know, the Solomon Islands are infested by bullfrogs [rana guppyi] that weigh as much as two pounds and are said to be the largest in the world. Two ladies on the home front, Dorothy Wayman and Clarissa L. Aiken, composed this new marine hymn. Of it they said: "All of a sudden the bullfrogs and marines and queer double syllables of pidgin English spoken by natives in the orient all swam up to us out of the peace and quiet of an evening at home. . . ."

Thought you might like to know how inspiration comes.

Is alive, and will always be:
Ergo, tho it does sound funny,
Is there more to be made than money?

ROWLEY NIEKAMP.

It's a Kind World.

Mrs. Thomas Stout, a cashier at a State street store, was working on the store's seventh floor last February when a customer asked to be directed to the china section. Mrs. Stout indicated the route, but after taking a few steps the customer drifted back to ask, hesitantly, whether Mrs. Stout were Scotch.

"Your accent, you know . . ." she apologized.

Mrs. Stout said yes, she was; born in the Shetland Islands, in fact. At this the customer became curiously eager. Were the Shetlands barren and cold? Mrs. Stout said no; they were balmy and beautiful and considered by Shetlanders the garden spot of the world. The customer's delight was amazing; with tears in her eyes she said she had tried to find literature which would tell her of the climate, but had failed.

Then, quietly, as she turned to leave, she said that her son, a pilot in the royal Canadian air force, had been killed in active duty and buried at Lerwick in the islands. "Lerwick?" asked Mrs. Stout. "But that was my home."

The tale could end there, but it does not. Mrs. Stout wrote to a niece in the Shetlands, who wrote to a relative in Lerwick, and the other day back came clippings from the Shetland newspapers telling how the Women's institute had placed flowers on the grave of the Chicago boy. The clippings even described the flowers and told in whose gardens they were grown.

Somehow we thought this very nice.

Move Over, Dr. Crane.

A gentleman who uses the baffling pseudonym, Adposter, suggests this column's readers, without reference to the family Shakespeare, answer this:

[Editor's Note: We tried it out on five of our more erudite compatriots. Only one, Claudia Cassidy, knew.]

Crackpot Haven.

Who says the American Revolution is over? Now comes a letter, special delivery, from a gentleman who says he was present at the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

MR. ROOSEVELT AND THE VETS.

Peoria, Ill., July 30.—Your editorial in today's TRIBUNE entitled "A Political Speech" was read with much interest. I particularly noted your remarks about the President having vetoed the soldiers' bonus bill a few years back.

You are absolutely correct; he did veto this bill, however, this is not half as bad as what he did against veterans immediately after he took office the first time he served as President. Surely you remember the economy measure which he so cleverly talked our congress into passing. This measure reduced greatly all benefits that had previously been granted to veterans, such as compensation to the disabled and even turned the sick veterans out of veterans' hospitals. Of course it also reduced the wages of the little fellows who were on the government pay roll.

Mr. Roosevelt's record as far as taking care of veterans is concerned is well known by the boys who served during the World war and the boys who are serving now had better look over this record and take heed, for this plan that he now advocates for the boys who return from this war may be just another campaign promise which will soon be forgotten

A VETERAN OF THE WORLD WAR.

PROMISES AGAIN.

Coatsburg, Ill., July 29.—The portion of the President's most recent speech outlining all the things he plans to do for our service men after the war interests me. They deserve everything he promises, and more.

However, I can't keep from thinking back to Mr. Roosevelt's speech of Oct. 30, 1940. A good many of us have learned to take our promises with a grain of salt after ten years have prompted us to believe most of them are scattered where they are most likely to reap votes for the next presidential campaign.

Promises, like national emergencies, have been seized upon one after another to promote the New Deal and continue it. Any mistaken idea that only a fourth term can protect the interests of the returning doughboys should be dispelled. The American public will demand and provide the benefits the ex-service men should have. A new administration, given to fewer promises and more performance, is bound to take over in 1944 to carry out these provisions. And the boys in the service may vote as they please with the assurance that their future welfare does not rest with one man alone, as some would have us believe. ALBERT SHANHOLTZER.

MR. SHERWOOD'S BUTTONS.

Chicago, July 28.—First it was "bundles for Britain," then "bundles for Russia," then "bundles for all the allies." Now it's "buttons for Italy," but not enough "bundles of bombs" for our Pacific fighters.

It wouldn't be at all surprising to see a new immigration law rushed thru congress so that those people who receive Roosevelt buttons can get here in time for that fourth term affair.

E. TIETZ.

ON DR. HORSWELL.

Chicago, July 29.—At least one old-timer is not at all pleased over your twice repeated story about my teacher of long ago, Dr. Charles H. Horswell. For three years, more than 40 years ago, I was in Dr. Horswell's class five days a week in Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston. He was a great teacher. No man in the faculty gave us more brain food and soul food than did he. Many a time I saw tears roll down his cheeks in class as he talked of the downtrodden peoples of Bible days and ours.

I was in his class when the fires of the heresy hunters were burning brightly about him. He left school a year or two after I graduated. I was asked to testify against him in a secret meeting, without his knowledge and refused. His disagreement "with the church's hell fire and damnation doctrine," as asserted wrongly by your reporter, was not at all involved in his leaving the school. The whole trouble was that he did not accept the traditional views of those days on the historical character of some parts of the Old Testament. His difficulty was that he was ahead of his day. Much that he then taught, considered then by many as heretical, is today generally accepted as true by Biblical scholars.

I have been a Methodist minister 50 years, 46 years in and around Chicago, now retired. W. S. FLEMING.

MUSSO'S ONE VIRTUE.

Chicago, July 28.—In spite of everything Mussolini may have done to humanity, for one thing he could be heartily commended, even by the most outspoken and enthusiastic champions of democratic principles: He has not allowed his spouse to keep chasing up and down the country. H. J. S.

HENRY'S NAME-CALLING.

Moline, Ill., July 28. — President Roosevelt gets all "het up" because a representative of the OWI called Pietro Badoglio a Fascist, yet it is all right—and nothing is said—when his little Vice President calls decent Americans Fascists. H. B.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

PARK TOILET.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a shanty in Winnemac park along Winnemac avenue which was used as a toilet but has been out of use for the last two years. The stench from it is sickening and something should be done about it. A. J.

Our inspector reports that there are three old buildings in this park on Winnemac avenue about one block west of Damen avenue, none of which is used as a toilet room and there are no such facilities. Two brick buildings in about the middle of the park have toilet rooms. These structures are under the jurisdiction of the board of education.

FOOD OUTPUT UP, BUT THE PUBLIC WILL GET LESS

Meat, Milk, Eggs, Fruit Scarcer, Says WFA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1.—In a midsummer review of the civilian food outlook for the remainder of this year, the war food administration today forecast food production this year would exceed the 1942 record output by 4 per cent. However the report was not entirely rosy. It noted, for instance:

1. Meat rations cannot be increased even tho production may set a new record. There will be less beef, veal, lamb, and mutton for civilians than in 1942.

2. Rationing of milk is being considered. Demand for eggs will exceed the supply "by a sizeable margin" in the coming months.

Less Fruit, Vegetables.

3. Fresh fruit for civilians will decrease 25 per cent or more from last year. Fresh vegetable supplies are down 15 to 20 per cent.

4. Midsummer food prices showed at 15.2 per cent increase over the corresponding period in 1942.

WFA officials predicted that pork production would be up 18 per cent to offset the decline in beef, veal, lamb, and mutton. They estimated that the American people would eat 30 per cent more chicken in 1943 than they did last year.

Less Ice Cream, Too.

There was some other bad news in the report, WFA announcing that the ice cream output would be slashed about 20 per cent. Evaporated milk, major food of the country's infants, already rationed, may become even harder to obtain. Production must be cut 13 per cent and an equal cut must be made in cheese production in order that more fresh milk and butter may be sold.

WFA estimates of the prospective per capita consumption of various foods in 1943, as compared with 1942, follow:

Beef and veal	68.2	58
Lamb and mutton	7	6
Pork	59.3	60
All meat	134.5	124
Fish, fresh	5.6	4.5
Fish, canned	3.2	2.5
Eggs	40.1	43
Chickens	21.9	29
Milk	848.7	774
Butter	15.7	13
Cheese	6.4	4.9
Lard	13.6	14
Citrus fruits	53.1	55
Apples	28.8	25
Other fresh fruits	49.2	33
Canned fruits	15.8	9
Fresh vegetables	250.2	224
Canned vegetables	43.1	36
Potatoes	123.8	131
Dried beans	8.3	9
Sugar	89	75
Coffee	13.3	13
Tea	.5	.4
Cocoa	3.9	3.3

Crop Production Off.

The outlook for the consumer has brightened since planting time, the report revealed. With the exception of wheat, the WFA had in almost every instance raised its predictions on per capita consumption of the various food crops from its mid-April report. Food crop production, however, is expected to be down about 10 per cent from last year.

Because of the lower yields of the food crops, WFA said that the outlook for 1944 meat production isn't too favorable. It predicted that it may be necessary to reduce the number of some classes of live stock to conserve animal feed supplies.

Police said the trouble arose when Patrolman James Collins attempted to arrest a woman on a disorderly conduct charge.

FIND NO CLEWS IN ASSAULT ON WOMAN WORKER

Detectives were keeping a vigil in Ravenswood hospital last night in the hope that Phyllis Blair, 23 year old war worker who was severely beaten by an unknown assailant early Saturday, would recover sufficiently for questioning.

The girl was slugged on the head near her home at 4937 North Hoyne avenue as she was returning from work at the Republic Tool and Die company, 322 South Green street. A search of the neighborhood by Summerdale police, questioning of her fellow workers by detectives, and a check of suspects in other assault cases had revealed no clews last night.

Miss Blair, near death, has been in a coma since shortly after the assault.

Election to Afford Index of 1944 Trend.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 1.—Harmony among Republicans and discord among Democrats are outstanding in Kentucky's state-wide primary. The election is Saturday.

This state elects its state officers one year ahead of Presidential elections, and the results in the November election will be of national interest as an index of trends for 1944.

Republicans have no primary fight for governor, the only candidate being Judge Simeon S. Willis of Ashland. State Sen. David Crockett [Baby] Jones of Harlan withdrew from the primary race early in June, leaving it clear sailing for Judge Willis, who had the support of some important figures in the state Republican organization. Three candidates for lesser state offices also are without opponents in the Republican primaries, leaving some minor state contests.

G. O. P. Organization Fills Up.

So, as yet, the platform fighting has not started for the G. O. P. Judge Willis is traveling about the state meeting all the folks he can but making no important speeches, leaving that for the main campaign. The Republican organization is filling up its precinct machinery all over the state, and many women are enrolling as workers to take the place of men in service or who have moved to war industries elsewhere.

Republicans express high hopes of electing a governor and other officers in November, and headquarters is fairly bubbling with reports of an increasing upsurge for the G. O. P.

Kentucky is a marginal state. It has gone Republican for President twice in the last 20 years—for Coolidge in 1924 and for Hoover in 1928. Harding lost it by 4,017 votes in 1920.

Democrats in Hectic Fight.

On the Democratic side three governorship candidates are fighting tooth and toenail. The three are J. Lyter Donaldson, former state commissioner of highways; Ben Kilgore who was secretary of the Kentucky farm bureau federation for 10 years, and Lt. Gov. Rhodes K. Myers.

Donaldson is the choice of Gov. Keen Johnson, and the state administration support thrown behind the candidates has led his opponents to raise the cry of "machine rule at Frankfort."

Sen. Alben W. Barkley has come out for Donaldson and Sen. Albert B. Chandler so far has intimated he is not for Donaldson. With state patronage support, Donaldson is fancied by politicians to have the inside track. Others recall, however, Sen. Chandler, then lieutenant governor, pushed over the statehouse machine a few years ago when he won the governorship nomination over Thomas S. Rhea.

Runoff Primary Abolished.

High man in the primary wins nomination. The old runoff primary, in case no one got a majority of the vote cast, has been abolished.

Kilgore and Myers, both strong campaigners, have been shrieking that unless the Democrats clean house at the primaries the Republicans will win in November. Donaldson, who has been introduced to audiences in Kentucky as "a Christian gentleman," is strong for the equality of man and advocates a love thy neighbor policy.

Gov. Johnson is making heated speeches in Donaldson's behalf and is blistering the opposition.

Kilgore Charges Hypocrisy.

"Donaldson strikes the pose of being pious and dignified and avoiding personalities, but he has no objection to letting Johnson do the dirty work for him," Kilgore said.

"The real issue is whether Kentucky is to have free elections. We've got to fight with ballots for the same thing that our boys overseas are fighting for with bullets."

Myers tells Democratic audiences: "If you don't clean your own house Saturday, the Republicans are liable to clean it for you in November."

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

THE QUESTION.

How have you changed yourself to please your husband?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Mrs. Glenn Kimball, receptionist, 4555 Malden street—At first I thought it was expecting an awful lot of a young wife, but I learned to cook like my mother-in-law. I gave up my style of fried chicken to fix it as my husband' prefers it. And now the beet pickles and puddings I make are as good as hers, too.

Mrs. Edward T. Morris, statistical supervisor, 2248 North Central Park avenue—The changes I've made have been small, but all-important to my husband. I wear light colored nail polish now. I can dress in a hurry, so he won't be waiting more than half an hour. And I can cook now without using onions.

Mrs. Roberts E. Howe, housewife, 5000 Marine drive—My husband was always saying that I made too many social engagements. I had my clubs and parties in the afternoons and outlined programs for our evenings, too. But I'm much more of a stay at home now and he's happier about it.

Mrs. William J. Mercier, Pay roll clerk, 2970 Sheridan road—My husband told me it would make him happy if I learned to fish and like it. At first I had to hold the worm in a piece of paper to get it on the hook, but I endured everything until I actually learned to enjoy fishing.

Mrs. Raymond Chojnacki, bookkeeper, 4001 North Menard avenue—It never has been one of my habits to eat before retiring. My husband always wants sandwiches and coffee and has always tried to get me to join him. At first I joined in a bed time snack just to keep him company, but now I enjoy it myself.

Mrs. E. Liebmann, housewife, 5218 Berteau avenue—My favorite colors have always been blue and white. Then one day my husband brought me a bright red slack suit I knew he really must like the color. When he admitted it was his favorite I wore it more than ever even tho I didn't care for it.

ANTI-ICER ENDS ONE OF FLYING'S CHIEF HAZARDS

Planes Already Equipped with Device.

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 1 (AP).—Perfection of a new thermal anti-icer which definitely eliminates one of the chief hazards of aviation—ice formations on wings—was reported today by Tom M. Girdler, board chairman of Consolidated Vultee Aircraft corporation.

Girdler said the device, now being installed on military planes, had been given final tests in far northern latitudes and functioned perfectly.

Gases Warm the Air.

With the new contrivance, hot exhaust gases which formerly were wasted are used indirectly to heat the wing and tail leading edges. These exhaust gases heat air thru heat exchangers in the exhaust pipes. The air then is circulated thru wings and tail surfaces with controled initial temperatures ranging as high as 850 degrees.

The heated air keeps the leading edges of the wings, where ice usually forms first, at a temperature of 60 degrees—28 degrees above freezing, even when the outside air temperature is 40 degrees below zero.

Planes Already Equipped.

Girdler said that for several months now units of the navy's Catalina long range flying boat patrol bomber have been equipped with the anti-icer.

Other Consolidated built warplanes—the Liberator bomber, the Coronado four engined patrol bomber, and the P4Y-1, described by the company as the world's fastest flying boat—are expected to be in production with anti-icing systems before winter.

Detail work leading to perfection of the anti-icer was done jointly by Consolidated engineers and Lewis A. Robart, senior engineer of the national advisory committee for aeronautics, after an original idea conceived six years ago by the NACA.

Efficiency Unimpaired.

Tests of the finished product demonstrated that because it causes no loss of aerodynamic efficiency in either wing or tail surfaces, the anti-icer could be used in combat, at slow flying speeds and during takeoffs and landings.

Besides preventing the formation of ice in flight, the system also begins, as soon as the engines are started, to remove whatever ice or frost may have accumulated on the surfaces of a grounded plane. Previously it has been necessary to clean frost from these surfaces and from the controls by hand—a process often requiring several hours.

NEW DEAL COPIES NAZI IDEOLOGY, BARRETT SAYS

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 1 [Special].—Atty. Gen. George F. Barrett told a Republican audience at the "Twin Oaks" picnic here today that many phases of national socialism as practiced in Nazi Germany have parallels in policies of the New Deal administration in Washington.

Asserting that Nazi Germany is ruled by executive orders, Barrett said that we have had more than 4,000 executive orders in the United States since the advent of the New Deal, almost as many as laws passed by congress. He compared New Deal decrees freezing workers to their jobs and putting ceilings on their wages with the Nazi labor passports system.

"When we permit rules, regulations, and penalties to be exercised by the executive branch of the government, do we not place our country in the same class with Germany?" he aked. "Are we not perilously close to national socialism?"

REPORT LEWIS MAY WITHDRAW PETITION TO AFL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1 [Special].—John L. Lewis may withdraw the United Mine Workers' petition for reaffiliation with the American Federation of Labor if action on the application is postponed until after the AFL convention in October.

This was disclosed today by sources close to Lewis who also indicated that he had made his views known to the AFL committee which conferred with him several weeks ago. The committee consisted of Daniel J. Tobin, president of the teamsters' union; George M. Harrison, president of the railway clerks' union, and Vice President Matthew Woll of the AFL.

The present plan of the AFL committee appears to be to make a factual report Aug. 9 to the executive council on its talk with Lewis. This report, it is said, will deal with Lewis' refusal to reveal the size of his union's District 50, a catch-all organization, or any details of this auxiliary's makeup.

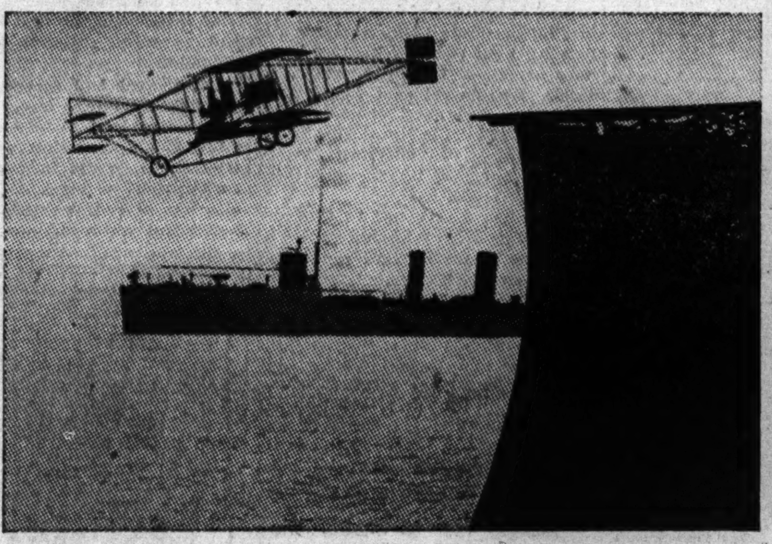
YESTERDAY

The world's first military airplane. American army aviation was born August 1, 1907, when the army created a Division of Aeronautics of the Signal Corps. Two years later, on August 2, 1909, the plane pictured was purchased from the Wright Brothers. It averaged 42.6 miles per hour over a five mile course. Shown in foreground are Lt. Frank P. Lahm and Orville Wright.



First plane to take off from a ship. American naval aviation got its start when Eugene Ely made this successful flight from an improvised runway on the U.S.S. Birmingham on November 14, 1910.

The start of aerial bombing. Phil. O. Parmalee and Lt. M. S. Crissy launch the first explosive ever to be dropped from an airplane. The place: San Francisco. The date: January, 1911.

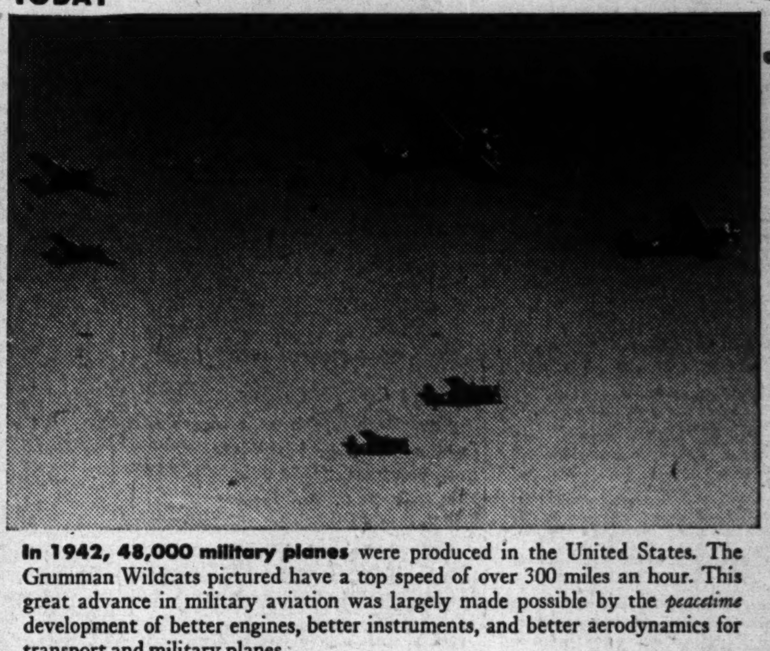
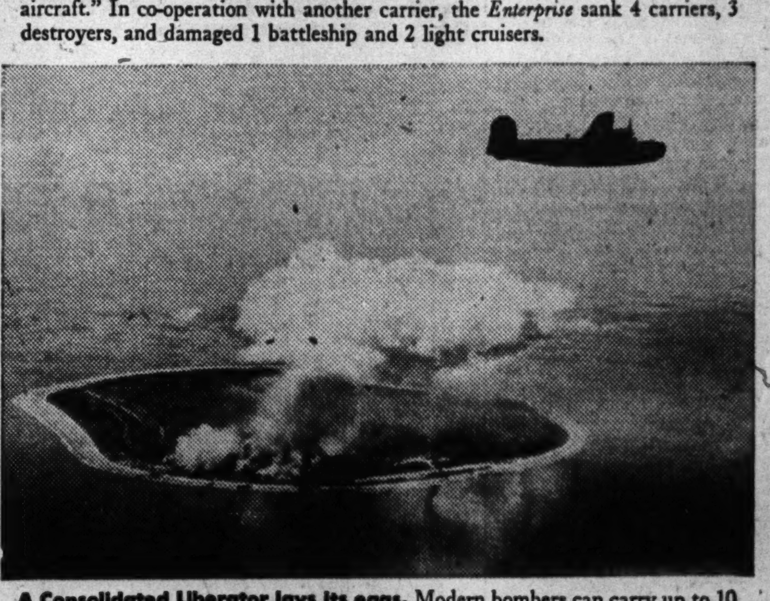
TODAY

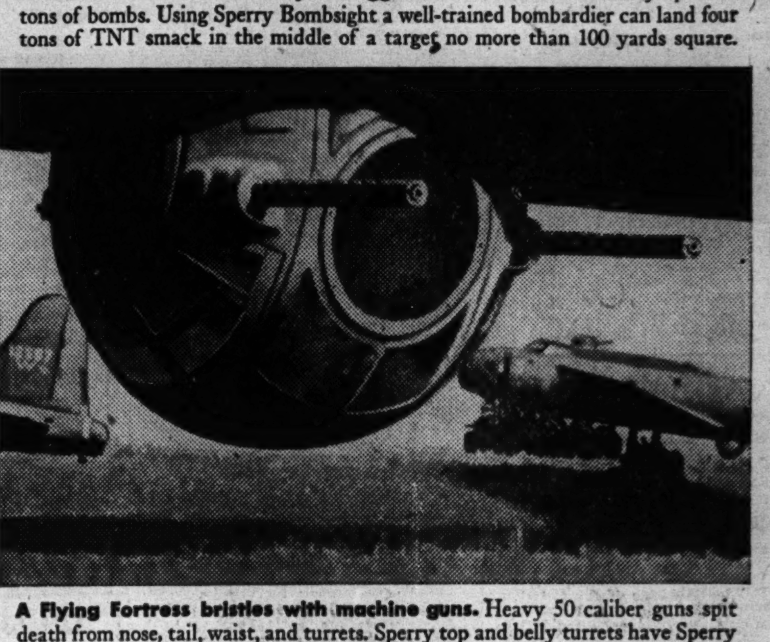


In 1942, 48,000 military planes were produced in the United States. The Grumman Wildcats pictured have a top speed of over 300 miles an hour. This great advance in military aviation was largely made possible by the peacetime development of better engines, better instruments, and better aerodynamics for transport and military planes.

Today's carrier-based planes hit hard. Their striking power can be judged from the presidential unit citation of the U.S.S. Enterprise: "did sink or damage on her own a total of 35 Japanese vessels and shoot down a total of 185 Japanese aircraft." In co-operation with another carrier, the Enterprise sank 4 carriers, 3 destroyers, and damaged 1 battleship and 2 light cruisers.



A Consolidated Liberator lays its eggs. Modern bombers can carry up to 10 tons of bombs. Using Sperry Bombsight a well-trained bombardier can land four tons of TNT smack in the middle of a target no more than 100 yards square.



A Flying Fortress bristles with machine guns. Heavy 50 caliber guns spit death from nose, tail, waist, and turrets. Sperry top and belly turrets have Sperry computing sights which automatically compute the range and lead enemy planes as a hunter leads a duck. The top and belly turrets in every Flying Fortress are hydraulically powered by the Vickers division of Sperry to enable gunners to turn turrets with pressure of a finger.

THE REAL STRENGTH OF OUR AIR FORCES OVER LAND AND SEA LIES IN THEIR MEN

● THE MEN OF OUR AIR FORCES are the pick of the country, physically and mentally. Patient months of training teach ground crews and air crews to work as a precision team. Without them . . . pilots, bombardiers, navigators, gunners, radio operators, mechanics . . . all the rest is useless. To them, America owes a debt it never can repay, and must never forget.

NO BOTHER TO REDUCE

New Vitamin Way!

Thousands Lose Lbs. of Ugly Fat and Feel Better

Would you like to get rid of that ugly flabby fat that spoils your figure and is so annoying? Of course. Everyone does. But now you can reduce without going hungry, without giving up a single type of food—and without resorting to drugs, exercise or dangerous starvation diets.

All you have to do is this. Eat a light breakfast, starting off with 2 teaspoons of VEE-MOR in a glass of any fruit juice. Have your regular dinner or supper. But here's the trick. For lunch, however, take 2 teaspoons of VEE-MOR in a glassful of fruit or vegetable juice, or any other suitable beverage. With it, if you wish, take a cup of tea or coffee, and that's all. It is pleasant and enjoyable, and notice how it satisfies your appetite. The important thing, however, is that it supplies Vitamins A, B, D, G and other B complex factors, as well as calcium, phosphorus and strength-building proteins in sizable quantities and in a way that keeps up your strength and energy while foregoing the food you normally take for lunch. VEE-MOR helps the body use up its own fat.

Thousands who have tried it are delighted with the way pounds slip away, all without any bother or feeling that you are starving yourself to death. Test VEE-MOR for 10 days. If it doesn't produce satisfactory results, bring back the unused portion and every penny of your money will be returned.

8-oz. Jar $1.50....18-oz. Jar. $3.00

Sailor Discovered Dead in Hotel Room Bathtub

Robert Parrow, 39 years old, a boatswain's mate first class, of Syracuse, N. Y., was found dead yesterday in a bathtub in the Weston hotel, 355 West Madison street. He had registered five days ago. The body was undressed and the water was still running in the tub, first district police reported. The case was turned over to naval authorities.

HOTEL CLERK HELD UP.

A gunman held up William Scott, night clerk at the Linwood hotel, 1812 Washington street, early yesterday, and took $45, Scott told Warren avenue police.

EMIL, A CON MAN, MOURNS PASSING OF 'SUCKER AGE'

Seized for Selling Money Machine in Chicago.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

"The times," said Emil Lustig, who describes himself as the son of an Austrian nobleman, "aren't what they used to be. The suckers are smartening up. They want receipts."

Emil Lustig.

Just in case Chicago police didn't know how tough times are, Lustig pulled out his billfold and showed them it contained only $50—all genuine, however. Not many years ago, Lustig said, he had $200,000 in cash, also all genuine, and his brother who calls himself Count Victor, had a cool million. That was in the days before the count was sent to Alcatraz for counterfeiting eight years ago. During the trial, government men said the Lustig gang had circulated more than 2 million dollars in bogus bills.

Brags About His Brother.

"My brother," said Emil, "could take a $1 bill and change it into a $100 bill so good that nobody could tell—or almost nobody."

Emil, 53 years old, did his talking after being returned from New York, where he had been seized outside his apartment at 233 East 70th street, in Manhattan's fashionable midtown district. He was brought back to Chicago by Detective Edward Egan and yesterday participated in the weekly Sunday afternoon showup at police headquarters.

Emil is accused of jumping a bond in January after being arrested for fleecing Paul Stryzewski, 1229 Montana street, a tavern operator, of $4,000. Stryzewski said Lustig sold him a machine and chemicals for changing $1 bills into $100 bills. Three bottles of "chemicals" were nothing but red, brown, and clear soda pop, police said.

While being returned to Chicago, Lustig told Egan fabulous stories of the days before suckers smartened up and asked receipts.

Newberry's Name Helps.

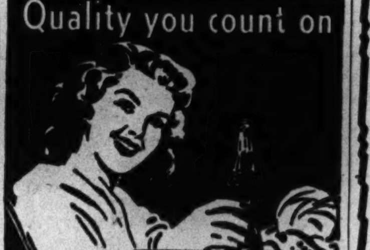
"We took two Louisiana bootleggers for $45,000 by selling them a money making machine," he said. "They grabbed me and was going to bump me off but I said I was a pal of Teddy Newberry [north side gangster shot 10 years ago] and told them Teddy would eradicate them if they didn't let me go in 48 hours. They did.

"Another time we took a Texas sheriff and banker for $60,000. And remember Charley Birger, the southern Illinois gangster who was so smart he thought up using an airplane to bomb the hideout of the Stanton boys? We took Charley for $20,000. He was so mad he knocked off the steer—the local boy—who put us onto him."

Lustig said that back in the golden days of prohibition he and his brother sold money-making machines all over the country. Only one sucker in 10 would squeal, he said, and most of these were satisfied when Ludwig would kick back half of the amount taken. Occasionally, he said, he would hide out in European resorts, but his record shows he has never been sentenced to an American prison.

Re-elected for Sixth Term by Order of Sons of Italy

George J. Saptuzza, Chicago attorney, yesterday was reëlected for the sixth consecutive term to the office of grand venerable of the grand lodge of Illinois, Order of the Sons of Italy in America, at the closing session of the state convention in the Hotel Sherman.



Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

M. O. T. asks: "Why should the army keep pestering me to buy insurance when I have no relative in the permitted class to name as beneficiary?"

ANSWER: There are several very good reasons why you should subscribe for this insurance. First, altho you may not have any one within the permitted class to name as beneficiary now, you may designate a beneficiary at any later time by simply notifying the veterans' administration. Secondly, you have only 120 days from date of entering service to take out the insurance without a special physical examination and you'll never be able to obtain such reasonable insurance again. Third, from our mail it appears that a great many young men entering the service as single men somehow suddenly acquire the number one person in the list of eligible beneficiaries and then find they have to take another physical and pay higher premium rates.

C. R. H. asks: "Can a man who was refused a commission in the navy because of substandard eyesight ever be reconsidered for a commission in the navy if he is inducted and finds himself in some part of the navy such as the Seabees or coast guard?"

ANSWER: Up to now the navy has required that enlisted personnel meet the same vision and physical requirements as is required of civilian appointees. The minimum vision requirement for naval reserve personnel is 12/20 using both eyes, and the poorest eye may not be lower than 6/20, both eyes being correctible to 20/20. The minimum vision for a naval reserve commission is 12/20 in each eye, correctible in both eyes to 20/20. You will see there is quite a difference.

N. W. P. writes: "I plan to graduate as an army navigator in about six weeks. While planning my clothing list I was informed the clothing allotment had been lowered from $250 to $150. Could you please inform me as to the accuracy of this statement? We find that even $250 could not cover our clothing requirements."

ANSWER: The air forces office says, "'Tisn't true," and the air forces couldn't treat navigators, bombardiers, and other men any differently than the pilots or flight officers.

CARMICHAEL, 49, A LAWYER, KILLS HIMSELF IN HOME

George A. Carmichael, 49 years old, an attorney at 10 North Clark street, was found shot to death yesterday in the basement of his home at 1555 West 100th place. Police said Carmichael apparently had killed himself while despondent over ill health. A revolver was found beside his body. He had suffered head injuries in the first World war and recently suffered a nervous breakdown.

G. A. Carmichael.

Carmichael had served as assistant state's attorney under Robert E. Crowe and John Swanson. He was a former assistant United States district attorney and former assistant corporation counsel. Carmichael also had served as attorney for the police and fire departments.

He was commander of Aviation post, American Legion, in 1936 and for the last three years had been commander of the Chicago chapter, Disabled American Veterans. He was a member of the Illinois St. Andrews society.

Carmichael is survived by his widow, Frances, and a son, Charles Stuart, an apprentice seaman in the navy now stationed at Great Lakes.

Safety Crews Removing Hazards Left by Blast

Salvage crews yesterday began to remove the huge scale hoppers from the blasted 200 foot elevator tower at the Norris Grain company's Midwest elevator at 5556 Shields avenue. The hoppers, hanging precariously since an explosion and fire early Friday morning, are being removed as a safety precaution. Fire equipment was withdrawn from the scene early Sunday morning. Damage was estimated at $600,000.

10 LAUNDRY BUNDLES STOLEN.

CHARGES PECORA GROUP INCLUDES FASCIST FRIENDS

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 1 (AP).—State Sen. Anthony J. Di Silvestro of Philadelphia, refused today to join the American Committee for Italian Democracy, declaring in a wire to Judge Ferdinand Pecora of New York that the committee "includes persons who were outspoken in their Fascist sympathy."

Di Silvestro is a director of the Mazzini society, a group named for the 19th century Italian revolutionist.

Yesterday, Di Silvestro said, he received a telegram from Judge Pecora, asking him to join the committee and attend a conference dinner in New York Thursday.

In his reply, Di Silvestro said, "as an American of Italian descent, I have always cried out against the evils of Fascism and I am, therefore, unwilling to align myself with those who not only extolled Fascism but worked for its perpetuation. If your committee will eliminate from its ranks those who were Fascists before Pearl Harbor, I and thousands of others will be more than willing to unite with you to help make Italy once again a bastion of democracy."

History Really Repeats Itself —in War News

BY JUDITH CASS.

"REPORT Turks Quit Kaiser," "Pershing Men Add New Glory to U. S. Army," "Returning Liners Tell of Fights with U-Boats." These were the headlines in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on a mid-summer day 25 years ago—the same sort of news one reads today, substituting Eisenhower for Pershing, Italians for Turks, and Hitler for the Kaiser.

There were the customary casualty lists, broken down by rank and covering the entire country. There were Women in War Work, too, in the form of a picture titled "Fair Strafers of the Hun." It showed three feminine factory workers garbed in ballooning slacks that fastened like knickers just above their high button shoes with French heels—a far cry from today's smart, efficient work dress.

Wartime Social Life Hasn't Changed Much.

Social news of that mid-summer day in 1918—the summer before the collapse of Germany—also resembles that of today. There were informal parties at the Onwentsia, and the same rush of wedding and engagement announcements.

Out in Lake Forest the Would-be Actors club busily was rehearsing for a performance of "She Stoops to Conquer" which was presented at Durant institute for the benefit of the Italian wounded. Taking part in the show were some of the "young set," Hollis Letts [Mrs. George F. McLaughlin], Roberta Thorne [Mrs. G. Corson Ellis], Ellen Thorne [Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith], Mary Meeker [Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer], the late Kellogg Gary, Byron S. Harvey Jr., Durand Smith, and Arthur Meeker Jr. They were some of the young crowd who kept the Aldis playhouse buzzing.

A Martial Wedding Has a Martial Sequel.

Miss Georgiana Owsley and Lt. Lon C. Hill Jr., of the army aviation service, were married in Winnetka and went to live in San Antonio, Tex., where he was stationed. Their son, Lon III., now is serving with the navy, and their daughter, Mrs. Kenneth F. Burgess Jr., who was married in a current war time ceremony, is in Miami Beach with her navy lieutenant husband. Texas apparently remained a second home for the Hills, who spend much time near Corpus Christi.

The engagement of Miss Carolyn Dole to Lt. Charles Goodrich of the army aviation service was another bit of society news. Their sons,

Nano O'Brien and Soldier to Be Wed Today

Adrian Padon of Tulsa, Okla., will take place at 11 a. m. today in St. Gertrude's church, with a breakfast following at 50 East Huron street. The bride, a graduate of the Sacred Heart convent and of St. Mary's college at Holy Cross, and Mr. Padon, a graduate of Notre Dame, will go to Sea Island, Ga., on their wedding trip and then make their home in that state. Mr. and Mrs. Padon are here for the ceremony. The bride will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Richard Baus Jr. of South Bend, Ind.

At 4 p. m. today Miss Suzanne Hawxhurst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Reynaud Hawxhurst of Wilmette, will be married to Lt. Robert L. Megowen of the marine corps aviation service, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Megowen of Wilmette. The ceremony will take place in the Hawxhurst home, with Mrs. Philip Callanen of Kenilworth attending her sister, and Capt. William L. Condy of the marine corps aviation service as best man. Lt. Megowen and his bride will live in Cherry Point, S. C.

Announcement is made of the marriage in New York on Saturday of Miss Jean Elizabeth Winter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Allen Winter of Wilmette, to Lt. [j. g.] Melvin Wolf Haines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haines of Evanston. The ceremony took place at 5 p. m. in the Little Church Around the Corner. Mrs. Richard Allen Winter of New York, sister-in-law of the bride, and Lt. [j. g.] William Blackman, brother-in-law of Lt. Haines, were the only attendants. Robert Winter gave his sister in marriage as their father was unable to be present. Lt. Haines and his bride will live in New York.

In the Palm Beach, Fla., home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Jacobs of Homewood last Saturday, Miss Roxann Schwartz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Schwartz of Paxton avenue, became the bride of Ensign Walter Albert Jacobs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs. Ensign Jacobs and his bride will live in For: Lauderdale, Fla.

A CHANGE IN PLACE.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY

Pretty Patriotic.

For the Dog Days.

"During the dog days, I have invented a new typewriter game to amuse myself. Using the right and left keyboard [or the left and right] alternately, how many three letter words can you find? For instance the word spa. [Sap won't do because it uses two left hand letters together.] So far I have found 20. Any takers?"—Grace.

School for Bosses.

Some time ago a suggestion came to this column that "to avoid the company losses—why not a School for Bosses?" Now along comes a small book titled "Busy Lines"—a collection of verses by Carl H. Claudy Jr., an advertising man with the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company. The verses were used as monthly inserts with telephone bills and celebrate in rhyme, the romantic, humorous, and business aspects of the telephone. One verse might be slipped [while he's not looking] onto any executive's desk.

HOW TO INFLUENCE FRIENDS AND WIN STUFF.

All his callers LOVE to call
Efficient Mr. Gurry.
For when they ring his line, he always
Answers in a hurry.

All his callers HATE to call
The lazy Mr. Mutts.
He takes his time in answering
Which drives his callers nuts.

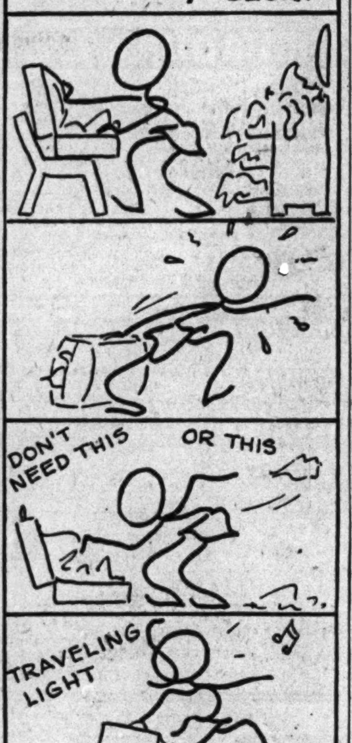
It isn't very much to do,
This being prompt to answer.
If you resolve you WANT to, why
You always find you CAN, sir!

What It Takes.

"May I comment on 'one girl' offices? Having worked in one most of the time I know from experience what it takes to make a success of such a job. In close association with her boss the girl in the one girl office must take care, first of all, not to deflate the ego of her employer. If she is better informed on a certain subject than he is, she must not show it. She must have initiative and know how to do things, yet must listen patiently and attentively while matters she understands perfectly are painstakingly explained to her.

"However, to offset the personal element in the small office, there are advantages. If she comes late occasionally it is not a crime. She is free to do things without having to worry about the effect upon the others in the office because there are no others in the office. Now I am questioning, do the most successful business women get their start in large offices or in the one girl office?"—Betty.

Dear Diary BY BECKY



These 20 Women in War Work Aspire to High Goal

BY KATE MASSEE.
(Editor: Women in War Work.)

TWENTY young women in the Chicago area are spending most of their days, and many evenings as well, as student flyers at Pal-Waukee airport, on Milwaukee road. Their ambition is to qualify for the Woman's Auxiliary Ferrying squadron [WAFS], and many of them are well on their way toward having the required number of solo hours to their credit.

The length of time required to assemble the minimum of 35 hours demanded by the army air forces depends upon the aptitude of the student. Some can make it in a month or so, others take longer. And, of course, the weather plays an important part in the flying schedule.

It seems highly probable that most of the young students will qualify for the WAFS, provided they obtain pilots' licenses and are able to pass the rigid army air forces' medical test. Thus they will aid the enlarged program for women within the command. When the program was increased several months ago, the 75 hour solo requirement was reduced to 35 hours, to allow more young women to enter this important auxiliary service.

Successful applicants for the WAFS will go to training schools at Houston or Sweetwater, Tex. They will receive 170 hours of flight training, plus courses in navigation, meteorology and radio telephone. Then they'll go out and become full fledged members of the ferrying squadron.

The Red Cross nurses' aid corps has arranged to interview training course applicants this evening and tomorrow evening. This will accommodate women who cannot register in the day time. The corps office at 529 South Wabash avenue will be closed on Saturdays until Sept. 11, but applicants are interviewed the first five days of each week.

Mrs. Norman Bauer and Miss Emma Peters, as receptionists at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street, meet hundreds of service men each day. The two young women answer numerous questions, issue free membership passes to more than 300 each day, and direct the service men to clubrooms, lounges, showers, the swimming pool and the various sports courts.

Mrs. Bauer, a Chicagoan, is the wife of Pvt. Bauer of the army. Miss Peters' home town is Lansing, Ill.

Thru the Looking Glass

It's a curious thing that a beautiful speaking voice often can be a woman's compensation for a variety of defects of physical beauty but that not even classic features and knockout taste can compensate for the bad voice, badly used, that sets the listeners' nerves on edge.

The soft voice is an asset. Discipline yours, and pitch it low if it has even the slightest tendency to hit the high registers. You can do it. Most voice defects result from bad breath control habits and these can be corrected with perseverance.

The voice that flies up to a squeak is not pretty. Neither is the torch singer affectation. Try to keep your voice on a fairly low level and never, never permit it to be loud. After a very short time the loud voice can so wear down friends, family and co-workers, that your rating as an attractive person goes down to zero. Nothing — not even intelligence or kindliness or good intentions — can make people love the feminine owner of a voice that rattles the walls.

Just keeping the voice low, in conversation or on the telephone, can intensify its attractiveness. Actual improvement in the quality of the voice comes with breath control. Breathe deeply before you speak and in the natural pauses during speech and your voice will have a rounded note that is attractive. It's an old, old trick of the theater, and a good one.

And use your head when you speak. The slaphappy rush of meaningless words isn't attractive in a woman. Reflection on what you say and quiet control in the voice you use to say it can help you gain a reputation for charm.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

SHE: A Norwegian girl who, not so long ago, had skied over Norway's flashing mountains, lightheartedly singing folk songs as she sped.

HE: A timid English barrister, too tender-hearted to shoot a rabbit.

LATER.

SHE: A spy working with the underground; fiancée of the resident Nazi major—and bitterly suspected by Stavik town folk of being a Quisling.

HE: A commando, commissioned, thru his own request, to make a secret landing near Stavik and complete final plans for a commando raid and the blowing up of secreted Nazi oil stores . . .

How can the folks of Stavik know that Nicole uses the major's infatuation in their behalf? To extract information which she passes on to the British thru the medium of an old oculist who treats her openly for snow blindness—and makes glasses bearing messages written with invisible ink—for Norwegian fishermen? . . . How can they know that the basement of her house will become a haven for the wounded Capt. Lowell? How can they know—a lot of things?

How can Maj. Paul Dichter be aware that this gentle and beloved woman is the leak which causes him to be in perpetual disgrace with his superiors?

Not being an utter ass there comes a day when he has the uneasy feeling that perhaps he should put a little cheese in a trap and see what he catches. The trap clicks and——? Go on with the picture from here.

Another "underground" story Another staged in a Norwegian fishing village. Like many preceding ones it is dramatic and excellently acted. Merle Oberon, Brian Aherne and Carl Esmond, in key roles, play to both heart and head.

See you tomorrow.

INSTALMENT XXXVII.
LONG JOHN'S STORY.

"What do you think yourself, Ewan?" inquired Big Ellen.

"I think that the man that killed got amongst the trees quickly—and came back again." He leaned back in his chair and put his finger tips together. "Big Ellen, you will let me be the devil's advocate for two minutes?"

"And what have you been the last hour? Go on!"

"Right then! I will put the scene before you as a middling smart counsel might put it in a real court of law. There's Mistress Ann Harper sitting on top of Skene's Rock an hour before the time. Why? To view the scenery, looking up and down and 'round about, and especially at Lodge Affran over there. Not at all! says our smart counsel. She is there for that hour to spy out the ground for her accomplice coming up thru the woods from Loch Beg and hiding below amongst the trees. She is there with her keen sight to see that no one leaves the lodge but the victim who knew where she has gone and who had been taunted into following her. If any one else left the lodge between 6 and 7, it would be easy for her to signal with her staff from the edge of the cliff. No one came but the man she wanted."

"His brother came."

"He told you why. But he did not come from the lodge. He came by the side of the water and could not be seen. And that was the unforeseen thing that spoiled their guilty plans. The husband came, and was killed with his own rifle by a man 40 years younger—easy work. The woman on the rock, hearing the shot, as if it were a signal, without hesitation, went tearing down the track. To see who fired a shot in a sporting estate where shots are fired at all hours of the day? Not at all, says our smart counsel! To join her lover and accomplice amongst the trees. And to make sure that her husband was dead, this foreign woman used to blood, bent over him and lifted the gun. A fatal error.

"Her cool and callous accomplice would not have left fingermarks on the weapon, and now he has to come from the wood and wipe hers off, and restore the marks that pointed to accidental death—or suicide. And that gave time for Maj. Harper to arrive on the scene. Need I go on?" He held up his finger. "And mark you! a real sign of guilt and collusion is that after the major's intervention the guilty pair fled to the hills and disappeared for 24 hours. Why? Panic—or to give their infatuated friends time to stage this mock inquiry?"

"Are you saying that Hamish and I and our friends are in the plot?"

"I don't know how many might be in it. The whole Glen might be in it. We all know the feelings of the Glen, and your clever counsel would point out how certain men in it would seek to palliate the crime and reduce the charge to manslaughter."

"I don't like your clever counsel, Ewan. I am right sorry I invented him."

"Haven't you a clever counsel of your own, Big Ellen?"

"As you say yourself, he's nane sae blate."

Aunt Ellen sounded despondent to Diego. The devilish reconstruction of the old lawyer had taken the wind out of her sails.

"He had better take off his jacket then," said Ewan. "Up to the present all he had succeeded in doing is to transfer the actual act of killing from the woman to her accomplice. What have you up your sleeve, do you pass on the guilt—?"

Maj. Harper interrupted.

"This is a plot." He glared 'round the table. "This Irish woman instigated you—you dreamers—and you thought you could browbeat me and hoodwink an able lawyer like Ewan McInnes. I am glad we came down." He pointed an authoritative finger at the policeman. "Are you going to do your duty, Campbell?"

Angus Campbell was shaking his head, and his eyes were turned amazedly on Ewan McInnes. "That's the queerest ever I heard!" he marveled. "He'll be for proving myself guilty in a minute."

"Just a devil's advocate, Angus," the lawyer said.

Maj. Harper rose to his feet. "Campbell, I order you to do your duty."

"My duty! O, yes!" Campbell was not perturbed. He turned over a folio. "It's your turn next, Long John."

Maj. Harper looked down at Long John and found that Long John was looking up at him. The big man's mane of hair, was actually lifting like a lion's, and his eyes were yellow like a lion's in anger. A big fist moved an inch.

"You'll hear me, Maj. Harper. Sit down!"

Maj. Harper sat down. "Let the farce proceed," he said.

For the last 10 minutes Diego had been watching Ann with a good deal of anxiety. She had pulled her mantilla further forward and her head was downset so that he could not see her face, but he could see that the edges of the mantilla were trembling, and that her hands were clinched tightly on her knees.

Then Long John was talking.

"I will tell what I know," he said, "and I am warning Mr. McInnes that I will not tell any lies."

"You misunderstood me," said Ewan, sitting up. "I was no more than speaking with another's voice. Personally, I believe every word that Donald Gunn said, and I will believe you, too, Long John."

"Thank you, Ewan. My mistake. This is what I have to say."

Ann's tension slacked down. Her hands relaxed, she drew in a deep breath and lifted her head. Her eyes met Diego's and all the fire went out of them. Her head went back against the chair and moved disconsolately from side to side. She shut her eyes against his, and Diego saw that strange mood of hopelessness was on her again.

"As Donald Gunn told you," said Long John, "I was making hay at the Strath till dinner time. There was himself and Don Diego and the Piper and myself. After dinner Donald took the Piper and me outside and gave us our instructions from Hamish.

"I went up with the Piper to the corner of the wood, and he went on from there into Glen Sallagh. I went into the wood and worked back towards the bothy till I had a fair view of it back and front. After a while Donald came out and went up the Strath. He had no rifle with him, only his glass and his holly crook. Don Diego was still in the house.

"When he came out his jacket was off and his sleeves up, and he hung the dish clowt on the line, so I knew he had been washing the dishes that we had left, and that is a thing he'd do being a homely man. He looked down at the meadow below the house, and up at the sky. There was a couple or so rows we hedn't time to put up, and I could see that he was thinking it might rain and the hay down, and I wanted to tell him it wouldn't rain for two days anyway, the wind where it was north of west.

"But down he went and at it he went like a man in a great hurry, and I'm telling you he made the hay fly. A right swack lad. First he shed his shirt and then his linder, and I thought he'd shed his trews—begging the ladies' pardon. But he didn't. He stripped well. In no time at all the hay was up to the last cock, and that time he peeled off his trews, and in with him to the lochan, giving one or two skellochs to make the dogs bark. An active figure of a man he was racing up and down the shore to dry his pelt, and I said to myself I wouldn't care to face him coming at me angry like.

"He dressed himself then, and the hurry went off him. He took the tools up to the shed, and went into the house and came out again with his jacket on, and spoke to the dogs, and moved up past me, and 'round the corner into Glen Sallagh all at his ease. I came behind, keeping a turn of the hill between. He had his foot on Hamish's bridge when he changed his mind and went up by the other side of Loch Beg."

MARRIED to Goldie, engaged to Maria, in love with June . . . that's the predicament of the likeable scoundrel, Ronnie Banks, survivor of Dunkirk, but no hero. You'll enjoy following him thru fast-moving adventures in war time London in the new novel, "Luck of the Devil," by Elizabeth York Miller. Don't miss the first instalment next Monday in The Chicago Tribune.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 1.—Roz Russell teams again with Brian Aherne in "Ten Percent Woman." Also in it will be Willard Parker, the hunk o' man with Gertie Lawrence in "Lady in the Dark." He gets the part of an unknown. . . . Visiting Joan Fontaine on "Frenchman's Creek" set, she said. "I should keep it secret but I'm so excited I've just got to tell you. Eddie Goulding is writing an original story for me which he'll direct. We don't know yet what company will produce it." . . . After seeing "This Is the Army" I've come to the conclusion Warners couldn't make a picture without Alan Hale. He's an indispensable. . . . Paulette Goddard invited Jinx Falkenburg to come and visit her for two weeks if she'd bring her maid along. Jinx did.

All the Elements.

In "Rickenbacker, the Story of an American," which Winnie Sheehan will do, Winnie says, "Only America could have produced Rick. Only here could you have found the doors of opportunity opened wide to him. Rick is a case of dual personality. In business and military affairs, he's a hand pan sort of guy, austere and a driver. On the human side, he loves to laugh, joke, and have a good time. The picture will emphasize his human side, which calls for many laughs. Rick's had a spectacular career on land, sea, and in the air. We'll try not to miss any high spots." Sheehan hopes to get Gary Cooper for Rick.

Pays to Advertise.

Orson Welles hasn't seen Anne Baxter since he returned from South America. "If people get fun writing that Anne and I are that way about each other, why should I stop 'em?" He's always broke, but Joe Cotten says Orson's got a new deal—His agent now only gets 90 percent. . . . If Mussolini hasn't yet been found, they might look for him in Countess Dorothy Di Frasso's villa Madona near Rome. At least, friends of Dorothy's cabled that's where he was hiding. . . . Hitler evidently heard some of our "Command Performances" by short wave. He knows a good thing when he hears it, and he's copying the idea and making same kind of records for his soldiers. . . . Perry Waram, father in "Life with Father," regrets he didn't start his picture career until he was 63. He goes from "Ministry of Fear" into Bing Crosby's "Going My Way?"

Head of the Clan.

Lunched with Mrs. Crosby, Bing's mother. Quite a remarkable woman, keen sense of humor. She has 16 grandchildren. Told about Bing's youngest, Lynn, aged 5, getting into a row at his birthday party. When reprimanded, he said. "Gee, I didn't start it. He did. He picked on another fellow from the rear. I had to help him out. That's no way to fight but how could he know? He hasn't any brothers."

Gracie Allen and George Burns told me that at Santa Maria, the army cleared a hangar and they gave a show in there for 4,000. . . . Does this mean marriage? Susan Peters took her mother with her to see Richard Quine at his army base. . . . Aldonade, world's fencing champion who's 6 feet 2 and weighs 128, here from the east to teach Arturo De Cordova how to handle the foils for his cutthroat scenes in "Frenchman's Creek." . . . Lee Trent did a part with Barbara Stanwyck which hit the cutting room floor, but has signed a long termer at R. K. O., where he's playing in "Government Girl."

Stage Note

Ralph Thomas Kettering announces that he has leased the Civic theater from the 20 Wacker Drive Building corporation for a term of years beginning Sept. 6, and that he proposes to add it to Chicago's brief list of legitimate playhouses. Long the Chicago representative for A. H. Woods, and manager of the Adelphi theater [now the Clark, devoted to movies], as well as an occasional playwright, Mr. Kettering returns to show business after an absence of almost 10 years. The Civic theater, which seats 900, has been used for recitals, operetta, and radio shows more than for plays. However, a few amateur groups have rented it from time to time.

Green Peppers Stuffed with Liver and Rice: Cut off tops of 6 green peppers, scoop out seeds. Parboil peppers 5 minutes. Chop tops and add to ½ cup cooked rice and ground, pre-cooked liver [simmer 1 pound pork liver 5 minutes, then grind]. Season with salt, pepper, minced onion, and moisten with water used to cook liver. Stuff pepper shells and bake 30 minutes in shallow pan with small amount of water in bottom.

Tomato paste and canned tomatoes are so high in point value that we don't like to use them for the macaroni and noodle dishes we're serving so much nowadays. Canned tomato soup, on the other hand, is very cheap in points [3 points per can] and will give the same fine tomato flavor, plus other seasonings to such economy dishes.

Spanish Macaroni.
[Serves Six.]
⅓ pound macaroni
3 tablespoons bacon drippings or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
Salt, pepper
1½ cups grated cheese
1 can condensed tomato soup

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Blend fat and flour, add milk and blend. Add soup, plus a can of water, cheese and any salt and pepper necessary. Cook until smooth, add macaroni, heat and serve.

An excellent variation of this recipe will cut down on the amount of cheese. Saute a chopped onion and ½ green pepper, chopped, in the fat before adding the flour. Reduce the amount of cheese to ½ cup. The whole thing can be put into a casserole with the cheese on top, and baked for 20 minutes at 350 degrees.

Bacon or ham drippings may be used to season noodles which you serve in place of potatoes. Buttered noodles are a favorite dish with many families, but in these times we can't afford to be so extravagant with our rationed butter. Meat drippings will do the job as well, and add interesting flavor to noodles so cooked.

[Serves Four.]
2 tablespoons grated cheese [optional]
¼ cup bacon or meat drippings
Salt, pepper as necessary

Cook noodles in boiling, salted water, drain and add cheese and drippings. Toss with fork to mix. Add salt and pepper to season and serve hot.

Boiled noodles may be served without any other seasoning if they are cooked in water to which 1 teaspoon meat extract to a cup of water has been added. In order not to waste any of the extract, it is best to do the cooking in this manner: Bring 1 quart water to boil in upper part of double boiler, and add 4 teaspoons of meat extract and ½ pound egg noodles. Cover and cook over boiling water until noodles have absorbed moisture. This amount will serve eight.

Macaroni and Tunafish Salad.
[Serves Four.]
1 small can tuna, broken in pieces
2 cups cooked marcaroni
1 cup cooked peas
½ cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Salt, paprika
1 teaspoon onion juice
2 sweet pickles, chopped
Mayonnaise to blend

Chill macaroni and tuna, combine with other ingredients and serve on leaf lettuce. These will be generous servings. This salad should be the main dish of the meal.

TODAY'S $5 PRIZE RECIPE

Nutaroons.
[About two dozen.]
¼ cup shortening
1 egg
1 cup finely chopped peanuts
¼ teaspoon almond extract
4½ to 5 cups cornflakes

Cream shortening and sugar together well. Add egg and beat thoroly. Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroly. The mixture will be dry. Pack very firmly into bowl of large tablespoon or mixing spoon and place on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate [350 degrees] oven for 12 to 15 minutes. Let cookies cool ½ minute before removing from pan. Store carefully to avoid breaking.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

[a] Three honor tricks divided among three suits; and if any one of the suits has less than four cards, the hand should contain strong intermediates.

[b] Three honor tricks in two suits, provided the hand has a rebiddable suit containing four trump tricks or more.

These fairly high requirements were established to combat the dangerous tendency among many players to shade their takeout doubles to a point where the only thing that could save them from destruction was to find partner with more than his share of the undisclosed cards. It is a fact, however, that under the proper circumstances takeout doubles may and should be shaded somewhat for strategic purposes. For example:

NORTH
♠ K 7
♥ A 8 2
♦ A K Q J 6

WEST
♠ Q 10 5 4 3 2
♥ 9 7 6
♦ 8

EAST
♠ A J 8 6
♥ 10
♦ 9 2

SOUTH
♠ 9
♥ K Q J 5 4 3
♦ 10 7 5 4 3
♣ 6

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	2 clubs	4 hearts	Pass
Pass	Pass

South, of course, had no trouble fulfilling his contract; indeed, he made an extra trick. This was not only expensive for East-West; it also was slightly humiliating because, as they quickly discovered, they could have taken the contract away from South with a bid of four spades or, if necessary, five spades. Considering that they could have made 11 tricks against the best defense, it was not pleasant to reflect that, holding the highest ranking suit, they had been virtually shut out of the bidding.

It was East's choice of calls over North's original diamond bid that accounted for this shut-out. Unquestionably, East felt that he was doing his full duty in mentioning the club suit at the two level and, in fairness, it must be admitted that such a call does denote substantial playing strength. Unfortunately, however, this knowledge was of little use to East's partner when the question arose of what action might be taken over South's jump to four hearts. Surely West could not dream of entering the auction at this point with a wild stab of four spades nor an even more optimistic venture of five clubs. It would have been a far different story, however, if East, instead of bidding two clubs over one diamond, had made the more strategic call of a takeout double. East had within a plus value of the conventional honor requirements for this double, and he also had a refuge, clubs, in case West had to answer with the feared heart call. West's hand would not have become good, no matter what action East took, but it would have been good enough to overcall South's four hearts, if only as a sacrifice. The result then would have been either that East-West bought the contract at four or five spades, winning the game and rubber, or, at worst, that North-South did some sacrificing on their own hook at six hearts or six diamonds.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Miss Ethel Corder, Chicago—I live alone and do very little cooking, yet have dinner service for six. In order to keep the dishes clean at all times, I rotate them, always putting the clean piece or pieces at the bottom of the pile. This same method applies to linens.

Mrs. G. H. Brown, Chicago—When I want to extract juice from an onion I cut it in half and then use the squeezer, as I do for orange or lemon juice. This works fairly well.

Mrs. Ed W., Milwaukee, Wis.—Have learned thru experience that sweet potatoes keep better in air that is dry and temperature at least 45 degrees or more. We have storage quarters for our sweet potatoes in a corner of our furnace room, and we handle them with care as any sort of bruising will start decay.

Mrs. David S., Chicago—For years I have used an old teapot for melting and pouring parrafin. This has been a big time saver and also a temper saver. It's easy to drop bits of parrafin into a teapot and then set the pot in a pan of hot water.

History Really Repeats Itself—in War News

Preston Latimer Goodrich and Andrew Latimer Goodrich just have gone off to this war, serving also in the army.

Missing in the current news of war weddings are the glowing accounts, and sometimes sad stories, of ceremonies in Paris. Mme. X spoke briefly of "gentle, lovely Ethel Forgan, who went to France in February heart-free, and returns next month as Mrs. Vernon Booth Jr., a stricken widow."

Love Snipped Military Red Tape Then, Too.

More detailed was the account of the marriage of a World War I heroine, Suzette Ryerson, and Lt. George Washington Patterson. She studied bacteriology at the University of Chicago for two years before going to France to serve in a military hospital. He received his commission from the French school for officers at Fontainebleau.

They met during his first leave, and were married during another leave, after her hospital had been bombed and evacuated. It took three days to clear up the red tape for the wedding, and they went to Brittany on their wedding trip. The late Mrs. Patterson's mother, then Mrs. Arthur Ryerson and later Mrs. Forsythe Sherfesee, was in Paris, too, and established a children's home at Nancy. The late Mrs. Sherfesee had a day nursery in her Chicago home also.

But Let's Get Back to Boogy-Woogy Days.

The announcement that Dorothy Donegan will headline the boogy-woogy evening planned as a benefit for Poetry magazine on Saturday night, Aug. 14, at the Saddle and Cycle club should make the party an unqualified success. This Negro pianist, 19 years old, who has boogy-woogy fans in a dither all over the country, appeared in a concert last May in Orchestra hall, and soon is to appear in Carnegie hall in New York.

Naturally, the very young have clamored for reservations for the party, but listed on the reservation sheet also are the names of Miss Flora Cooke, retired principal of the Francis Parker school, and Miss Joanna Fortune. The former is giving her tickets to service men.

Miss Joan Mitchell, who is studying at a summer school of painting in Saugatuck, Mich., is coming home for the party, at which she will be entertaining some young friends. Her sister, Miss Sally Mitchell, will come from Sarah Lawrence college. Their mother, Mrs. James H. Mitchell, is on the committee that is selecting the entertainment.

Tip to Mothers: You're the Sun in Your Child's Life

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Summer is sunbathing time. But all the year around you can give your children sunbaths, spiritual sunbaths. How? Well, I'll tell you.

The mother of a little child should be to his mind and spirit what the sun is to his body: The source of life, strength, and growth.

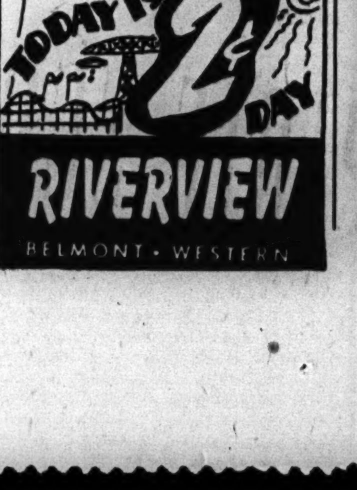
Think for a minute what the physical sun does for our physical bodies! It helps to keep them alive.

Even on the darkest day the sun is still sending its life giving rays thru the clouds. When it comes out full and clear, how our spirits rise!

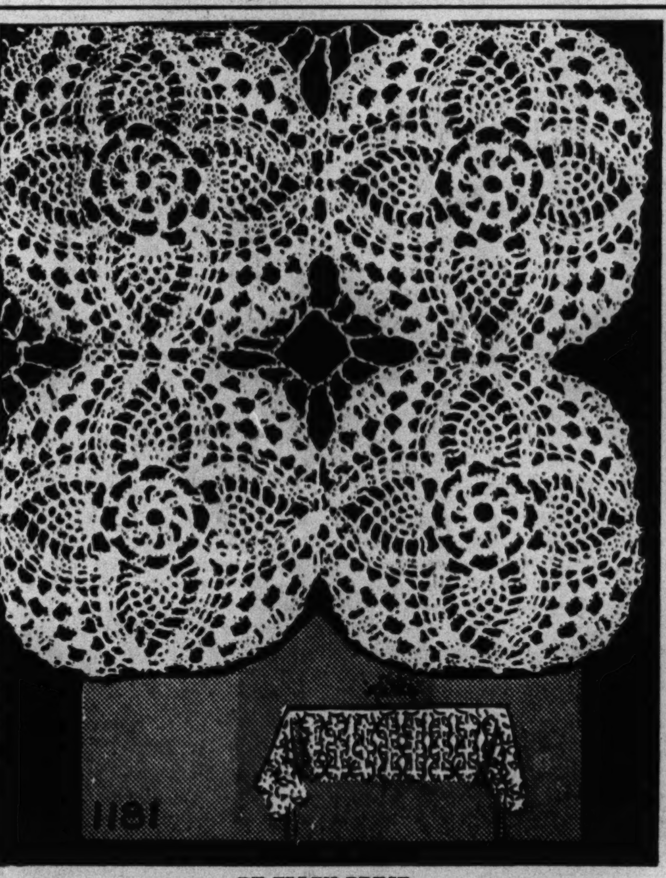
The grouchiest kind of person feels differently, altho he may not admit it, when the sun is shining bright. Doctors say that children, even more than adults, need sunshine if they are to be physically well and strong. Ill health in a child's mind and spirit may not be so easily detected as is bodily ill health, because we are not apt to think so much about it.

Some of the symptoms of mental and spiritual ill health are sullenness, irritability, inability to get on with others, discontentedness, or just plain apathy, a lack of interest in life. As children go to school and associate with a larger group of people they become less dependent on mother, but a little child is appallingly dependent on his mother's moods.

If the mother is, like the sun, dependable, calm, warm, and comforting, the child grows strong and well in mind and spirit. If the mother is undependable, cross, or lacking in affectionate warmth, if she forgets or doesn't understand how dependent her little child is on her words and ways, his emotional health suffers.



Crocheted Tablecloth



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

A crocheted tablecloth in an interesting pineapple pattern is something every needleworker is anxious to have. The simple medallions used to create a whole have attractive joining motifs which afford a cobwebby effect. This same design may be used for a bedspread. Lusterless bed cotton may be substituted for the mercerized cotton used in the tablecloth.

For instructions in crocheting the pineapple tablecloth, No. 1181, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Victim of Fire, Family in Need of Furniture

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

A community house in one of the poorer sections of the city has requested our assistance for a family in the vicinity. There are three small children, and another baby expected. The father of the family has been ill for some time and only recently returned to work.

Then misfortune hit again. A fire destroyed all of their belongings and the family is now living with neighbors in a home which was already crowded.

Donations of furniture are needed so the family can move into new quarters. Any items would be welcomed, but beds, a table, chairs, and bedding are essential. The community house has provided clothing and will arrange transportation. Offers from the near south and west sides could be most conveniently transported.

A recent request for iceboxes brought such a generous response that we were able to fill all our requests and now have several surplus ones on hand. They range in size from 50 to 100 pounds.

You Save Cold Cash on Warm Furs in August

BY REA SEEGER.

All shrewd shoppers, will, during the month of August, haunt the coolest spots in town selecting new fur coats. For not only are the fur salons cooled down to comfortable temperatures while the rest of the world sizzles with dog day heat, but the usual August fur prices prevail.

This year you'll see what are unquestionably record breaking displays of tuxedo collared coats. Everyone wants one, for they're young, snappy and different. Tuxedo collared coats are becoming to everyone, having zestful swagger flare at the side and a back that is flattering both to extreme youth and to older figure lines.

Sleeves are wide and easy to slide into, no matter what the material of the suit or dress worn under the coat may be. Cuffs are obliging affairs, ready to be worn turned back four to six inches or to a mere inch or two, thus adapting the same model either to dress parade or casual wear.

Fitted long coats and the tuxedo models in three-quarter and seven-eighths lengths also are featured in black furs. When you spend your money for a fur coat it's good shopping to spend it only for the finest quality and workmanship available, which means only in the shops of reputable furriers.

Czech Music Fiery; Ravinia Forgets Heat!

Symphony No. 5, E minor, "From the New World" .... Dvořák
Overture, "Carneval" .... Dvořák
Symphonic poem, "From Bohemia's Meadows and Forests," from the cycle, "My Fatherland" .... Smetana
Polka and Fugue, from "Schwanda, the Bagpipe Player" .... Weinberger

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Despite the weather, which would have been ideal for steaming clams, Ravinia had a large and vociferous Sunday afternoon audience to admire the brilliant performance of Czech music by the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of George Szell. You will note that Mr. Szell bears no national tag. Born in Hungary of Czech parents, he is claimed by both sides, a flattering situation demanding enormous tact. This helpful department will save itself and Mr. Szell considerable difficulty from now on by referring to him as the-about-to-become-an-American-conductor. It will save space when he gets his final papers.

Meanwhile, it probably is safe to say that Mr. Szell has a warm feeling for Bohemian music. It gets into his blood and his baton, so that he sways on the podium and makes his orchestra dance the furiant as well as the polka. Yesterday, for all that blast furnace heat, the orchestra was playing as crisply, as accurately, and as gaily as if it really possessed what we all wish it had, an air conditioned concert shell.

There was fire in the music, and the kind of impetuosity possible only to a crack orchestra led by an expert. Dvorak's "New World" symphony was richly played, with the English horn defying the temperature, with the orchestra held on a convenient pedal point while a train chugged by, and with the brass more than ever out of "Tannhäuser" as it thrived on Ravinia's recently installed insulation against tonal blasts.

After this tribute to his new country, Mr. Szell reminisced about the land that had been his home. He played the "Carneval" overture so that it glistened, and devoted his most persuasive attention to Smetana's idyllic "From Bohemia's Meadows and Forests," fourth of the passionately patriotic cycle of symphonic poems, "My Fatherland," which was the deaf composer's legacy to his countrymen. This is an exuberant scene of curving landscape and joyous dances, and the orchestra played it as if all the musicians shared Concertmaster John Weicher's Bohemian ancestry.

The concert ended, inevitably, with Weinberger's Polka and Fugue from the gala tale of "Schwanda, the Bagpipe Player," with the polka completely captivating, and the fugue a crackling piece of orchestral fireworks from the instant it entered with such precision in the second violins.

So Mr. Szell ended his first week, but he has a second coming up, again with Artur Rubinstein as soloist, playing Rachmaninoff's Concerto in C minor Tuesday night, and Beethoven's Concerto in G major Saturday night. Next Sunday afternoon, after the final performance by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the annual invitation party will be aided by musicians from the Great Lakes, including Musician 1st Class Lehman Engel.

Alice Baran Scores Triumph Over That Grant Park Piano

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Easily the outstanding item of the Grant park concert last night was Alice Baran's performance of the Liszt piano concerto in E flat, accompanied by a symphony orchestra under the direction of Jerzy Bojanowski.

With the crashing chords and octaves of the introduction Miss Baran straightaway revealed herself as a pianist of steady nerves and sure, strong muscles. This favorable first impression was pleasantly verified by consequent developments. Her tone has depth and solidity, her musical taste is correct and artistic, her command of the keyboard met few obstacles in the hazards so neatly devised by Liszt to trap the unwary and incompetent.

That Miss Baran was able to make so convincing a display of her talents was all the more to her credit in view of the handicaps imposed upon her by an instrument far too small for the wide open spaces of Grant park, and by a lagging orchestral accompaniment. Nothing, apparently, can be done about the Grant park piano.

Whereas some conductors have been criticized for presenting too ambitious programs under the rehearsal restrictions of this series, fault must be found with Mr. Bojanowski in offering a list of orchestral works which included not one item of substantial merit.

If the conductor's purpose in confining himself to such trivia was to obtain better performance he must have been disappointed, for tho the personnel was almost the same as that of a group which gave a brilliant performance last Friday, the playing of the first half of the concert was frequently rough and generally indifferent. You could not really blame an orchestra which had nothing more interesting to sink its teeth into than the overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor," excerpts from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Golden Cockerel" and Smetana's "Bartered Bride," and Glazounow's empty "Ruses d'Amour."

OPEN MEETING AT WASHINGTON PARK TODAY

Three Major Races on 31 Day Card.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Washington Park Jockey club will begin its own meeting this afternoon after having been host to the Arlington Park organization during the last six weeks. For 31 more racing days the sport will continue at the Homewood track, the final program being scheduled for Labor day.

Thruout this meeting the high standards set during the Arlington session will prevail. The American Derby, the Washington Park Futurity, and the Washington Park handicap are the major events in prospect, and in addition there will be numerous stake events for all divisions of competition. The pace of three stakes a week will be maintained, one each Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

Sysonby Purse Today.

The main event on today's program will be the six furlong Sysonby purse. In this race Woolford farm's Contradiction will continue his comeback. This 4 year old colt was one of the most promising juveniles of 1941, but foot trouble in that year and more foot trouble last season kept him out of the major events.

He came back to the races during the Arlington meeting, winning his only start in impressive fashion. If he continues in good condition he's expected to be a major factor in the late summer and fall stakes. Among his rivals today will be Sales Talk, Cabin Creek, Wishbone, Daily Trouble, and other speedy performers.

Most Horses Stay.

Most of the horses which distinguished themselves during the Arlington meeting will continue their campaign in the Chicago area. Slide Rule, W. E. Boeing's winner of the Arlington Classic, will be back from New York in time for the American Derby on Aug. 28. John Marsch's Jezrahel and Occupy, which ran one-two in the Arlington Futurity, will attempt to continue their success in the Washington Park Futurity on Sept. 4.

Most of the seasoned campaigners which took part in Saturday's Arlington handicap, will be seen again in the $50,000 Washington Park handicap on Labor day. This event also is expected to be a major point in Alsab's comeback campaign.

The three stake events on this week's schedule are the $5,000 Flossmoor handicap on Wednesday, the $5,000 Princess Pat on Thursday, and the $10,000 Chicago handicap on Saturday.

WEST ALL-STARS BEAT EAST, 2-1, BEHIND PAIGE

The West, with Leroy [Satchel] Paige showing the way for a four man hurling corps, yesterday defeated the East, 2 to 1, in the 11th annual Negro All-Star game in Comiskey park.

A crowd of 51,723, with more than 10,000 turned away because of lack of space, saw the game, which was a pitcher's battle from the time Paige took the mound until Porter Moss finished.

It was the West's fifth triumph and broke the three year victory monopoly of the Easterners.

Dark Interim.

When life is dull and hope gleams but to die,
Then summon I the mem'ries you'd impart
And linger over days that have gone by
With morbid longing tugging at my heart.

Suspended helplessly without a tie—
Endeavoring to grasp the past and cling
To that which seems too dear to let it die.

Alas! The yesterdays have flown,
Yet, let's have faith, and hope the future years
Will reap a crop of happiness—not tears!

M'KAY, CARLSON AND DE MARIA JOIN ALL-STARS

Collegians to Start Drills Saturday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The midwest contributes three more football players today to the All-Star squad which begins practice Saturday for the game in Dyche stadium Aug. 25 with the Washington Redskins. Bob McKay, Wisconsin center, will report to his coach of the last three years, Harry Stuhldreher, who will direct the college squad. The other players reporting Saturday are Ray Carlson, Marquette half back, and Peter DeMaria, Purdue guard.

Carlson fully demonstrated his versatility in the two seasons he played under Coach Tom Stidham at Marquette. As a sophomore in 1941 he started every game at right end. Last fall he started every game at right half back. Ability as a defensive player both against runs and passes, and his skill as a pass receiver prompted Stidham to move Carlson to the back field. Ray is 6 feet tall, weighs 180 pounds and he displayed a brand of hard, accurate blocking that was a prime factor in shaking loose Johnny Strzykalski for many long runs last fall.

Tells Greatest Thrill.

Carlson attended West Division High school in Milwaukee, the school also attended by Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Bob Zuppke, who climaxed his long coaching career last summer as head of the College All-Star team.

Carlson says his greatest thrill in college football was scoring his first touchdown in 1941 on an 18 yard pass in the game with New Mexico. Ray is a private in the army air forces school of applied tactics, air defense branch, at Orlando, Fla. He recently completed a course at Miami Beach. He has one more year of competition for Marquette.

McKay won three varsity football letters at center during his career at Wisconsin. He's 6 feet tall and weighs 185 pounds. He majored in public utility economics and he is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon. Like all Wisconsin players of the 1942 team, McKay believes the Badgers' defeat of Ohio State was the thrill of a lifetime. Bob also names Jay Berwanger of Chicago as his favorite athlete for his individual brilliance on a mediocre team.

Win 3 Varsity Letters.

De Maria, whose home is in Glenside, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia, won varsity football letters three seasons at Purdue as a guard. He is 22 years of age, weighs 180 pounds, and is 5 feet 7 inches tall. He received the degree of bachelor of science this summer in mechanical engineering.

Joe Domnanovich and Russ Craft of Alabama will not be able to report to the All-Star squad. Both were in the army reserve corps and had not expected active service until next month. Their induction date was advanced, however. While the college squad has lost these two stars, others, who earlier had not believed they could participate, have been able to accept invitations when induction was delayed.

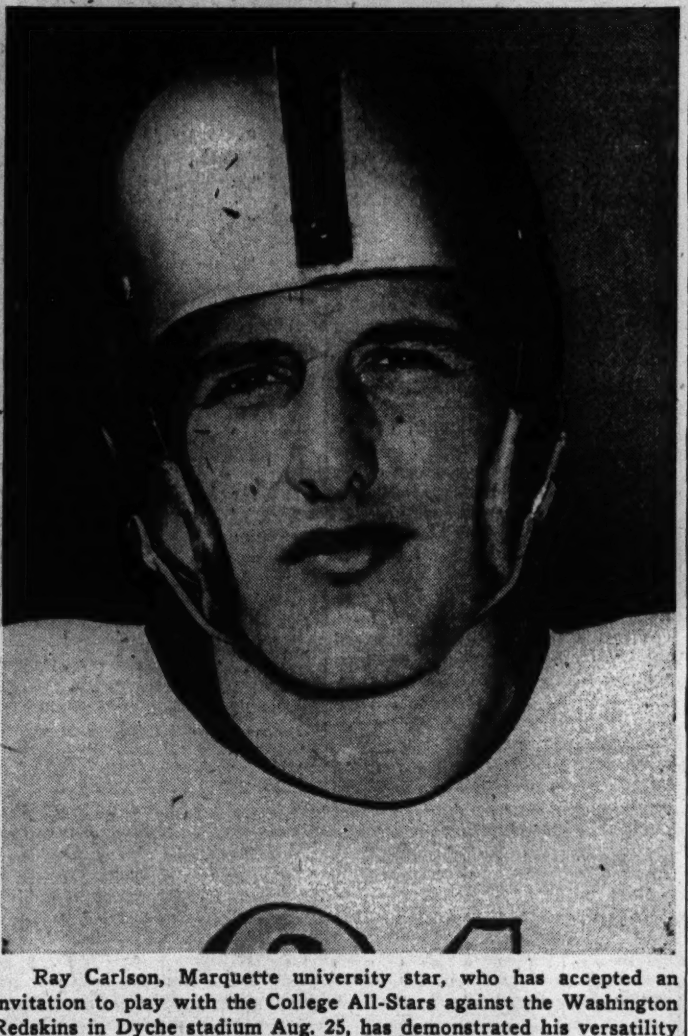
BOWL CONTESTS ARE BANNED FOR NAVY TRAINEES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1 [Special].—Football teams made up of navy men in training will not be allowed to participate in bowl or other contests this fall. The order, effective immediately, was issued today by Navy Secretary Frank Knox.

The regulations, sent to commanding officers of all naval units in the continental United States, also set territorial limits for games played away from home bases. "All athletic contests," said the order, "in which navy teams participate will be played from the same area, delineated by the National Collegiate Athletic association in its districting of the nation, as that within which the navy activity is located."

The order does not apply to the naval academy at Annapolis.

PUNCH FOR ALL-STARS



Ray Carlson, Marquette university star, who has accepted an invitation to play with the College All-Stars against the Washington Redskins in Dyche stadium Aug. 25, has demonstrated his versatility in football. As a sophomore in 1941 he started every game at right end and last year he started every game at right half back for Marquette.

Redskins Begin Workouts in San Diego for All-Star Game

BY EDWARD PRELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 1.—Today marked the real beginning of the Washington Redskins' summer offensive, which will be climaxed some 2,300 miles to the east, in Northwestern's Dyche stadium on Aug. 25 against the College All-Stars.

Only four of the professional champions' front line workmen were absent at this morning's two hour workout on San Diego High school's practice field. Likewise the quartet was absent at the two hour performance this afternoon. The p. m. drill was open to the public in Balboa stadium, a football bowl seating 23,000, which is adjacent to the prep practice field.

10,000 Service Men Free.

It is in this stadium that the Redskins will divide their man power two weeks from today in the Shriners' annual East-West pro charity game. Some 10,000 sailors and marines will be admitted free and the remainder of the room is expected to be taken up by paying customers.

One of the four absentees, all of whom are engaged in essential industry, showed up this evening. He was Steve Slivinski, the chunky guard whom the Chicago Bears will remember from last year's title game. Steve came in from Seattle, Wash., where he has been working in a shipyard.

Dick Farman, guard, and George Smith, center, are expected tomorrow, but Clyde Shugart, another guard, will be delayed until Aug. 10.

Guard Greeted Warmly.

Walter Haloupek, from Cornell [Ia.] college, arrived today and got a warm greeting from Coach Arthur [Dutch] Bergman and his assistant, Turk Edward. Haloupek is an end and this is one commodity on which there is a shortage.

The Iowan will be available only for the All-Star game in Evanston.

Volunteers Wanted

COLLEGE and high school musicians who wish to participate in the All-Star band should make their availability known to Ray Dvorak, whose address is University of Wisconsin Bands, Madison, Wis.

He will report to Annapolis for V-7 training on Sept. 2.

The Redskins also may get additional help in this department from a wild looking blond fellow from Virginia Military institute, one Raymond Ruett. Raymond originally was a full back, but was shifted to guard last year. The experiment was such a success that he became All-Southern conference selection.

Makes Nice Catches.

A few days ago the youngster visited Owner George Preston Marshall and told him that without a doubt he had the ability to win a regular job with the Redskins. George took him at his word, but he will have to make his mark at end. That's where he was today, and he was making some nice catches of Sammy Baugh's passes.

Time goes on but Baugh never changes. He was stripped down to the waist today, his ribs so prominent you got the idea he should spend some time fattening himself instead of the cows on his Texas ranch. But Sam's skinniness is deceptive. He's as wiry as a mustang and the hardest worker on the field.

First Contact Wednesday.

The Redskins plan to do their first contact work Wednesday. It will be a sort of skeleton scrimmage, as there are not enough fellows to make two complete lines.

For the charity All-Star game here, several former California college stars will be added, enough to give each squad 21 or 22 players, it is hoped. On that day, Bergman and Edwards will be rival coaches. Can't you hear 'em arguing now over which one gets Baugh?

North Siders Fall, 4-1, 5-3 Before 34,086

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Those two beautiful five game winning streaks which Claude Passeau and Henry Wyse built up thru arduous and skilled endeavor during the hot month of July just wouldn't carry into August. The Phillies whanged Passeau, 4 to 1, in the first game of a double header witnessed by 34,806 paying devotees and Moose Day celebrants and young Wyse blew up in the eighth inning of the second game to lose, 5 to 3.

The crowd at the outset was one of the merriest and noisiest of the year. Perhaps this made the boys try too hard. At any rate there were intervals when they seemed to be in the same daze that engulfed them in the cellar days of May and June. They made only eight hits off Kewpie Barrett in the first game and were held to six by Lefties Jack Kraus and Al Gerheauser in the second game foldup.

Beat Cubs 10 Out of 14.

The aimless Phillies, by the way, have jolted the Cubs 10 times in 14 engagements this year. There never was a time yesterday when they did not seem more earnest, more wide awake than the Cubs.

Fourth place moved 4½ games out of the Cubs' reach as a result of the multiple flops, while the Reds were whipping the Giants twice.

This afternoon the Cubs will play an exhibition game with the Milwaukee Brewers and tomorrow will try to even the series with the Phillies by sending forth Hi Bithorn. Bithorn also has a five game winning streak.

Barrett featured a strikeout ball. He whiffed six of his former buddier in the first four innings and got a couple of more the rest of the way.

Score in Batches of Two.

The Phillies' victory was their ninth in 13 tries against the Cubs and the conquerors acquired their runs in two batches of two each.

The first pair was in the nature of a second inning misadventure but the brace in the ninth was chargable to the pitching of Passeau.

In the second inning Ron Northey popped a high one back of third. Len Merullo made a nice run and apparently made the catch. But he stumbled slightly and the ball popped out of his hands, a two base error. Babe Dahlgren lifted a twister back of first which deceived Phil Cavarretta and fell for a double, Northey stopping at third. Mickey Livingston lined a single to left, scoring Northey and Dahlgren.

Double Play Nips Rally.

The 2 to 0 Philly lead stood up until the sixth. Stan Hack beat out a bunt then Eddie Stanky flied to Northey. Cavarretta singled to left, his third straight hit, Hack stopping at second. Bill Nicholson singled to right center, scoring Hack and putting Cavarretta on third with the tying run. Ival Goodman, the team's leading hitter, who previously had fanned twice, missed on two strikes, then lined to Danny Murtaugh, who tossed to Dahlgren, doubling Nicholson off first.

In the seventh inning the Cubs got the tying run as far as third. Harry Lowrey was safe on Charley Brewster's high throw and moved over on Clyde McCullough's sacrifice. Merullo was called out on strikes for the second time, then Lowrey got to third on a wild pitch. The threat ended when Passeau took a third strike.

Murtaugh Scores in First.

Dahlgren walked at the start of the ninth, the first pass by either pitcher. Livingston attempted to sacrifice but forced Dahlgren. Brewster then walked and the pair raced home almost in lockstep when Merrill May banged out his third, the Phillies' seventh hit, a double to right center.

Wool gathering in the Cub infield led to the first run of the game. At the start of the third inning Murtaugh sent an arching fly to short center and both Merullo and Stanky went after it. Hack stood on third and Wyse remained on the pitcher's mound as the ball plunked to earth. This failure to cover enabled Murtaugh to prance to second for a coma double. Adams dumped a single back of first, Murtaugh scoring, tho Adams was out, Cavarretta to Stanky, when he tried to get a

Appling Gets 4 Hits; Moses Steals No. 30.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 1.—The second place White Sox enjoyed a couple more giddy rides today at the expense of the Athletics by taking both ends of a double header, 5 to 1 and 15 to 9. Along with all this, the Chicagoans tossed in a grand total of 26 base hits of which Luke Appling and Ralph Hodgin drew man's sized shares, and Wally Moses hung up his 30th steal of the season.

The first victory was accomplished with ease because of the steadiness of Lee Ross, who recorded his eighth triumph, but the second affair developed into a jamboree in which the Sox did just about everything except chase the 80 year old Connie Mack out of his own ball park. They cut five of his pitchers to ribbons in this game and much of it had to be done because Johnny Humphries proved a flop and for a while it looked as if Rescuer Joe Haynes would do no better. Joe, however, settled toward the end.

Appling Blanked in Opener.

Appling's pace setting average was kicked around considerably by the pitching of Joe Fagan and Orrie Arntzen in the first game, the Georgia gentleman being blanked in four attempts. In the other match he met all comers successfully. He walked twice, doubled twice and singled twice for a perfect performance, thus raising his season's figure from .326 to .330. But Hodgin, with five hits for the day, went to .331 for the year, but because of not having been at bat 250 times is not eligible for the so-called Big Six.

Among other items with which the Sox endeavored to furnish amusement for 12,096 booing fans, was Tony Cuccinello's maiden American league homer. Another No. 1 homer came from the bat of Moses in the second game. The Rubber Man also contributed two triples and a single. And Vin Castino, the kid catcher, belted three runs across in the second game after the blowup of Humphries in the third had let the enemy plaster the plate with six runs for a 6 to 4 lead. The Sox changed that in a hurry as well as emphatically.

Cuccinello Hits Home Run.

The initial mishap in Fagan's brief career as a starting pitcher in the first game was Cuccinello's homer that drifted into the left field upper story in the opening inning. In the second Kuhel walked and a double by Tresh sent him home. The first man Arntzen met when he took over at the start of the third was Moses, who tripled. He scored on Mayo's fumble of Appling's grounder.

Ross walked White to open the fourth and after retiring two men committed a balk, putting White in position to score on Estalella's single thru Cuccinello. The Sox didn't get around to recovering this run until the seventh when Tresh walked, moved up on Ross' bunt and went the rest of the way on Moses' single. Moses promptly stole his 30th base. In the eighth, Hodgin tripled for his third hit and scored the last Sox run on Webb's fly.

Moses Gets Homer No. 1.

WILLIAMS SAILS BUBBLING OVER TO STAR VICTORY

Bert Williams of the Chicago Yacht club yesterday won the Southern Lake Michigan Star class fleet elimination series for the world championship races on Long Island Sound, N. Y., the last week of this month. Williams and his crew, Richard Napier, sailing Bubbling Over, won both races sailed off Belmont harbor with a total score of 22 points. Orion, Howard Bordner's Chicago Corinthian Yacht club sloop, was runner-up and Tim Angsten's Sky Lark was third. Williams and Harry Nye Jr., who won the world Star boat sailing title here last year for the Chicago Yacht club, will hold a match race probably next week-end to decide who will represent the fleet on Long Island sound.

Tungstens, Parichys Win; Rockolas, Rheingolds Tie

The Tungsten Sparks defeated the Parichy Bloomer Girls, 3 to 0, last night, the Gold Crowns beat the Benda Coals, 5 to 1, and the Rockola Music Maids and the Rheingolds played a 14 inning scoreless tie. There will be only one game tonight in the Girls' Metropolitan Softball league, the Parichy Bloomer Girls playing host to the Rheingolds at Parichy stadium, 75th and Aberdeen.

homer over the right field wall. Then Appling's scratch single, Hodgin's walk, and a single by Webb filled the bases with one out in the third. Black forced in two of these runners by walking Kuhel and Castino, and the third scored on Humphries' infield out.

Humphries' agonies were so acute in the home third that Welaj, Valo, Estalella, and Siebert singled before anybody was retired. These hits drove in two runs. A third scored on a fumble by Grant, and when Jojo White singled for Black the fourth run counted. Humphries went away to make room for Haynes who was jarred by Heffner's double which sent in the last pair of the six runs.

Ridiculous Fourth.

The Sox fourth was slightly ridiculous. Two collegians — Tom Clyde and Louis Ciola—stayed long enough to walk Tucker and Grant. Harris succeeded them and walked Appling, filling the bases with none out. Singles by Hodgin and Castino with a pass to Kuhel sandwiched in, collected four runs for an 8 to 6 lead. The Sox made it a little easier for Haynes with those three in the fifth, the ingredients being hits by Appling, Hodgin, Webb, and Castino.

Haynes experienced a blast of three extra base hits for two runs in the A's fifth so the Sox set off again. Tucker's double and Appling's single accounted for a run in the sixth. Appling doubled to drive in two more against Flores in the eighth. Singles by Webb and Haynes in the ninth fetched the Sox their 15th run.

SMITH HURLS TONIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 1.—The White Sox will return to the night circuit tomorrow for the final of the series with the Athletics. It will be Eddie Smith's turn to pitch.

Due to the strange schedule drawn up during last winter's panic the Sox will have to spend three days in idleness between their last game here and the opener in Detroit Friday.

Nicholson Triples in Fifth.

Chicago's third run was produced after two were out in the fifth when Cavarretta walked and sprinted home on Nicholson's triple off the right field wall. Novikoff let Nick die on third when he flied out to Adams.

Adams opened the eighth with a triple off the left field wall and scored on Dahlgren's single to left. Northey singled to center, Dahlgren stopping at second. The runners advanced on Moore's sacrifice, whereupon Wasdell was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Stewart singled to center, scoring Dahlgren and Northey, and when Lowrey threw the ball past uncovered third base, Wasdell scored and Stewart reached second. Derringer replaced Wyse. May lined to Nicholson and Gerheauser fanned.

2 CHICAGOLAND GOLF TOURNEYS TO START TODAY

Qualifying Rounds Open in Amateur and Junior.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The 39th annual Chicago amateur tournament, grandpappy of our town's tee-to-green arguments, and the annual junior closed event of the Chicago District Golf association, today will open another crowded week of golf in the metropolitan area. Both will set off with qualifying rounds this morning, the Chicago amateur at Jackson park and the junior at the Evanston Golf club, which thus will be warmed up for its setting for the Women's Western Amateur next week.

Mathisen Defends Title.

Harold Mathisen, the nocturnal chemist who has won the city amateur titles of 1934, 1935, 1937 and last year, will defend the championship at Jackson park. Last year Harold and the field were detained by the weather man, who was so cantankerous that he forced the 36 hole final, normally a Saturday event, to be decided at the rate of 18 holes on Saturday afternoon and 18 on Sunday morning. Chick Evans, who won the championships of 1907, 1908 and 1911, lost the prolonged 1942 final to Mathisen, but is not expected to compete this week.

Today's 18 hole qualifying round, which has enlisted a field of more than 200, will decide the 64 match play qualifiers in the championship bracket. These will go to work tomorrow morning, continuing in man-to-man competition thru Saturday's championship match. Those who don't make the championship grade will be paired in subsidiary flights. The fee is $1 and golf and entries will be accepted at the tee.

Junior Event Restricted.

The C. D. G. A. junior closed at Evanston is restricted to sons of members of C. D. G. A. clubs, and thus will not include Jimmy Lamb of Oregon and Harry Busch of Ridgemoor, finalists in the junior open at Ridge last week. Neither is connected with a C. D. G. A. member club. Tournament Chairman Bob Emery of the C. D. G. A. expects a goodly field.

The week also includes the annual Pro-Presidents' tournament, to be held this afternoon at Flossmoor and two Wednesday invitationals—Skokie's Kilties day and Itasca's Salt Creek day.

LEAVE US CASH TO RECONVERT, INDUSTRY ASKS

Accepts Selection as Job Provider.

F. C. Crawford.

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Frederick C. Crawford, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said today that private industry accepted President Roosevelt's nomination of industry as job giver but demanded changes in tax and labor policies as necessary to carrying out the program.

Crawford said in a statement that President Roosevelt made clear in his recent radio address that government itself did not expect to make jobs for returning troops but expected that jobs could be found.

Must Accumulate Funds.

"Private industry unhesitatingly accepts from President Roosevelt this nomination as job giver," Crawford said, then laid down these conditions:

"The first necessary step to post-war jobs is to make it possible for industry to accumulate sufficient funds to reconvert. The earnings which industry should set aside to pay for this reconversion and for the resumption of peace time operations are being taxed away or renegotiated away from private industry almost as fast as they are earned.

"Further, in view of the growth of monopolistic practices among labor, there is need for congress to change the economic climate by establishing a fair labor policy for the nation.

Asks Ending of Controls.

"Enterprise also needs assurance that the war time controls of materials, wages, prices, and rationing will come off as the need for deflecting industry into war time production is eased off, and as the danger of an inflationary scramble for goods is abated.

"The only peace time basis on which industry can hope to provide full employment is under a free enterprise system whereby men, materials, and money draw pay according to their performance and in which the government makes and polices only such rules as are necessary for the maintenance of fair and free competition and a fair and free pricing."

Mutual Banks Report Large Deposit Gains

Deposits and assets of mutual savings banks rose almost a half billion dollars each during the first half of this year, reaching record high totals, the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, New York, announced yesterday.

Deposits on June 30 totaled $11,104,706,532, an increase of $483,748,579 over the level of last Dec. 31 and the first time in history that the total had exceeded 11 billion dollars. Assets followed the same course, increasing $485,489,620 in the half year to a total of $12,436,067,126.

New York Gain Is Biggest.

New York banks led with a deposit increase of $255,307,885. Massachusetts was second with a $81,439,255 gain, and Connecticut third with an increase of $39,600,868.

George J. Bassett, president of the association and of the Connecticut Savings bank, New Haven, Conn., reported that mutual banks had sold and delivered a billion dollars' worth of war savings bonds. Bassett said also that "practically every dollar" deposited in savings accounts of the mutual banks "immediately is invested in federal bonds."

Average Account Is $714.

The member banks of the association reported an aggregate increase of 257,952 in number of savings accounts, raising their total to 15,552,095.

The average account of each depositor, including school savings, Christmas club, and other special purpose accounts, rose to $714.03. Ordinary savings accounts, excluding club deposits, increased to $873.72. The average rate of interest or dividends paid upon deposits was 1.87 per cent, the association said.

JONES EXPLAINS ENDING OF CURBS ON COTTON CROP

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1 (AP).—Restrictions on cotton production for 1944 have been removed, Marvin Jones, war food administrator, today advised Rep. Wright Patman [D., Tex.] because of wartime demands for cottonseed products and more of the better grades and longer staple fiber.

Jones said there were adequate supplies of lower grade and short staple cotton fiber but not enough of midling and better grades and 15/16ths and longer staple.

Jones added that "many people do not understand that two-thirds of the cotton by weight is seed, and only one-third is lint. The seed is used for both food and feed."

NET ASSETS RISE 65%.

HOLD RATIONING AIDS ADVERTISED BRANDS OF FOOD

Advertised brands of food products have increased their popularity at the expense of lesser known private labels since rationing began, the A. C. Neilsen research organization reported yesterday.

Among 20 major food and grocery products, advertised brands have increased their percentage of total sales under rationing by almost 7 per cent, the report said. Advertised brands of coffee have moved up 10 per cent at the expense of unadvertised brands.

Commenting upon the research study, Advertising Age, a marketing trade magazine, asserted:

"For the consumer an advertised and tested brand is in itself a grade label which is demanded as added assurance of value and ultimate satisfaction. Those brands in themselves have become the consumers' standard of quality."

NO OFFSET.

Because of a need for more space I have purchased a new home and sold my old house. Present real estate values being high, I have realized a profit on the house sold, but of course have had to pay a correspondingly high price for the property purchased. Is there any way in which the profit can be offset by the high price paid for the new house, for income tax purposes?—B. W.

Answer: The profit on the sale of your residence is a long term capital gain, if the property was held more than six months. One-half of this long term capital gain must be taken into account in computing your income tax liability.

Altho the same conditions that created the profit on the sale may also be responsible for your paying a higher price for a new house, there is no means for offsetting the higher price against the profit.

CORRECTLY FILED.

My husband claimed our three children as dependents in the employe's withholding exemption certificate filed with his employer. Should I have made a similar claim in filing a certificate with my employer?

Answer: Two persons cannot claim the same individual or individuals as dependents. If your husband listed your children on his withholding exemption certificate, therefore, you are not allowed an additional exemption on their account.

NEW YORK LEADS IN MARCH WAR ORDER AWARDS

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—New York led all other states in receipt of March war contracts, with 1 billion dollars worth of a total of 7½ billion placed during the month, it was announced today by the division of industrial economics of the national industrial conference board. Ohio and Illinois were second and third, respectively.

New York's contracts were primarily for ordnance items.

Ohio and Illinois were awarded 703 million and 681 million in contracts, respectively, according to the announcement, which said that Ohio led all the states in new orders for aircraft.

California, still in first place in cumulative awards since June, 1940, received more than half of the 600 million in orders for shipbuilding, it was said.

Bankers Limit Meeting to 1 Delegate from Each

The American Bankers' association announced yesterday it would hold a limited attendance war service meeting in New York City Sept. 13, 14, and 15, replacing its usual annual convention. The purpose will be to discuss the work of banks in connection with the war and the national and international financial and economic problems. Member banks were asked to limit delegates to one officer other than association officers or committeemen.

G. M. OUTPUT, EARNINGS RISE IN 2D QUARTER

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Increased earnings and production at a rate of 3 billion 300 million dollars a year were reported today by the nation's biggest war contractor, General Motors corporation. Output of war materials in the second quarter this year reached a new peak of $832,275,349, said Chairman Alfred P. Sloan Jr., an increase of 8.7 per cent over the first quarter.

Alfred P. Sloan.

Total deliveries of war materials and other authorized products in the second quarter were $895,347,441, and for the first six months amounted to $1,708,877,388, Sloan said.

Profit Tops 36 Million.

Net income for the second quarter amounted to $36,316,164, equal to 78 cents a common share, compared with $24,613,218, or 51 cents a share a year earlier. Profits were $53,579,568 for the second quarter of 1941, during peace, Sloan added.

For the first six months net income was $69,390,195, or $1.49 on the common, against $47,843,209, or 99 cents a share, in the first half of 1942.

Sloan said adjustments may be necessary later in earnings figures. For example, he said, physical volume exceeded all previous records in June but voluntary price reductions cut dollar value of deliveries under those of May.

Cuts Contract Prices.

"During the second quarter voluntary reductions of approximately 80 million dollars were made on individual contracts, applicable to shipments already made, in line with the corporation's policy of reducing prices as soon as it becomes possible thru the realization of cost savings," said Sloan. "These are in addition to substantial reductions reported for previous periods."

Among records set during the second quarter was a new peak in employment, an average of 426,554 employes, compared with the previous record of 405,894 in the first quarter.

Pay rolls totaled $308,459,110, compared with $285,308,239 in the first quarter. Average weekly earnings of $56.20 compared with $53.80 in the second quarter of 1942.

Hikes Post-War Reserves.

General Motors set aside $8,322,753 in the quarter for post-war contingencies and rehabilitation, making such reserves in the half year of $15,978,012 and lifting the total in this account to $56,562,971.

Net working capital on June 30 was $727,390,662, against $556,772,133 a year earlier. Cash plus government and other marketable securities totaled $368,236,362, compared with $306,553,965.

No borrowings under the billion dollar V-loan credit agreement were outstanding, but the company can make use of the credit until Feb. 28, 1946.

For the first half of 1943 the company set aside $107,686,000 for United States and foreign income and excess profits taxes, against $60,720,000 for the first half of last year.

An increase of more than a million dollars in operating revenues was reported yesterday by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois for the first six months of this year. Net income increased from $1,294,789 in the first half of 1942 to $1,789,633 in the corresponding period of this year. Operating revenues were $25,596,674 in the 1942 period and $26,745,063 in the first half of 1943. Public Service company is a wholly owned subsidiary of the Commonwealth Edison company, Chicago.

American Seating company reported net income of $255,101 for the six months ended June 30, compared with $197,381 in the first half of 1942, despite a decrease of 11 per cent in sales.

Renegotiation Settled.

President H. M. Taliaferro explained in the report that 1943 income included an item of $38,000 representing adjustment for 1942 price renegotiation of government contracts. The amount finally approved in renegotiation as due the government was $200,000 less than had been reserved for this purpose in 1942. After giving effect to the additional income taxes on this item, the net reduction amounted to $38,000.

Skelly Oil company and subsidiaries reported net income for the quarter ended June 30 was $1,334,750, equal to $1.36 a common share, against $908,433, or 92 cents a share, in the second quarter of 1942. For the six months ended June 30 net income was $2,566,675, equal to $2.61 a share, against $2,208,469, or $2.25 on common, in the first half of 1942.

PREDICTS LETUP IN STEEL BUYING DURING AUGUST

Cleveland, O., Aug. 1 (AP).—The magazine Steel said today "with most steelmakers booked thru this year and into 1944 it seems probable that the heavy buying of July will not be repeated in August."

"Important programs are being formulated for the first half of next year," the trade publication continued, "but a temporary lull is likely while they are being completed. The sudden turn of events in Italy has injected an element of uncertainty which may retard freezing of plans for the immediate future and possibly result in shifting of schedules already set up. In any event steel consumption will continue at top speed and no lessening of production can be seen."

OUTPUT OF WINE CUT SHARPLY BY WAR AND PRICES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1 (AP).—Reflecting war time curtailments and higher prices for dried fruits, domestic wine production declined more than 120 million gallons in the fiscal year ended June 30, the treasury reported today.

Output of still wine totaled 192,651,032 gallons, compared with 313,150,974 gallons in the preceding 12-month period, and sparkling wine production was 17,643,392 half pints against 22,286,201 half pints during the fiscal year 1942.

Report Small Firms Get Larger Part of War Jobs

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1 (AP).—Small manufacturers currently are receiving 48.8 cents of every dollar spent on procurement by the army service forces for manufactured supplies, the war department reported today. It said that during the first half of this year, 23.6 cents of every dollar went to such plants on prime contracts, and first-tier subcontracts furnished the remaining 25.2 cents.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 1 (AP).—The office of economic warfare has notified United States exporters that, with certain exceptions, all outstanding individual licenses for exportation to Argentina which were issued before May 1, 1943, have been revoked, effective Aug. 2.

The action, taken to assure that current shipments to Argentina were directed only to "satisfactory" consignees, has the approval of the interested Argentine authorities.

Holders of revoked licenses are to submit them to the office of exports at Washington for revalidation. The revocation of the licenses does not apply in the case of shipments on dock, lighter, or laden aboard the exporting carrier before Aug. 2.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Ben Markland

August 1, 1943.

THE scheming "hoss trader" of 50 years ago has his modern counterpart in the American farm manager. His planning and scheming are concerned with procuring enough workers to harvest his crops. He trades not horses, but the laboring hours of his employes.

Large farms which have had, say, 20 employes in past years now may have only 10 or 12 men to do the necessary field work, and owners of smaller farms who have had two or three hired men now are lucky to have one left. The farm owner or manager and his reduced staff of helpers can bull their way thru the regular tasks by getting up earlier and staying in the fields and barns later, but there are vital harvest days when they need help. It is during these periods when they figuratively go thru their libraries of dime novels and brush up on the frontiersmens' trading tactics.

Swap with Neighbors.

The men on the Wheaton farm have been trading laboring hours with a neighboring farm this season. Last week two of the men from the farm went to the St. James farm and took a pickup baler with them. For several days they used the baler to help their neighbors harvest oats, wheat, and grain straw. During the coming week it is probable that the farm oats will be ready for the bin, and the St. James farm will reciprocate by sending several of its men to the Wheaton form to augment the depleted staff of workers during this important harvest period.

This sort of arrangement is mutually beneficial inasmuch as the grain fields on the St. James farm were ready for harvest before the oats on the Wheaton farm were ripe.

It's easy to see why this type of human trading is necessary on American farms this season. On the Wheaton place there now are only five field workers, whereas in other years the labor of nine men was required for harvesting the oats and oat straw. With the help of co-operative neighbors the job can be done this year without disrupting the work schedules.

Hen Leads Parade.

A particular and insistent White Rock hen disrupted the personal schedule of the flockmaster the other day. This proud fowl has a grand total of 56 guinea hen chicks which follow her around the barnyard all day. The flockmaster stole eggs from the guinea nests this spring and put them under a number of White Rock hens, so this hen's brood includes 15 chicks which she hatched and 41 which she lured away from several other hens.

The old bird couldn't cover all the chicks at night, so the flockmaster interrupted his regular work to build her a special wooden brooder. Each evening she leads her white parade into the rough shelter, and there they stay until daylight.

The GARDEN

THE gardener of the Wheaton farm believes that the corn borer attacks on sweet corn were frightening, but not likely to be a major threat to the corn crop. His guess is that the yield from first plantings of sweet corn which were attacked may be reduced by 15 to 25 per cent, but that later plantings may not be affected at all.

His theory is that the crest of the attack by first brood corn borers has been passed. This brood did move into sweet corn plots because it was farther advanced than the field corn. The second brood is due to hatch between now and Aug. 15, and it is probable that this brood will invade the field corn rather than the sweet corn. Borers almost always invade host plants which are farthest advanced at the time of emergence.

There are corn borers in the farm sweet corn patches and lighter infestations in the field corn. As a precaution the gardener is spraying the tassels of both the first and second plantings of sweet corn with a commercial insecticide which contains rotenone.

CALL TO ARMS!!!
For men and women in the Chicago area who have not as yet had the opportunity to get into war work.
To win this war as fast as we want to win it, we must have more:
AIRCRAFT CARRIERS,
TROOP TRANSPORTS,
TANKERS, CARGO SHIPS.
You can help build these—your country must have your help to build these ships now.
Unfortunately these ships cannot be built here in our back yard. In order to build them you will have to move to the West Coast. However, you can be assured of modern housing, reasonably priced, recreational facilities. Your transportation will be advanced.
Schools for those who qualify. You are paid while in training. Those now engaged in an essenial industry will not be considered.

The common-sense solution to any money shortage is a short-term loan. It allows a "breathing spell" in which to adjust expenses to fit income. Right now, for instance, living costs are up and it is becoming increasingly difficult to make ends meet. A loan from Commonwealth will "tide you over" until you get adjusted to these new war-time conditions. Monthly rate 3% on balances of $150 or less, and 2½% on that part of the unpaid balance over $150.
